Red Missiles Leaving Cuba

Russia Says Ships Ready For Checking

U.S. Navy Plans Cargo Inspection Of Vessels Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has reported that ships are leaving Cuba with missiles aboard, the Defense Department announced Wednesday night. It said arrangements are being made for the Navy to check the number of dismantled missiles being shipped out.

This was reported by Arthur Sylvester, assistant Defense secretary. A Pentagon spokesman said it was probable the first contact between Navy ships and outbound ships from Cuba would be made Thursday.

Reads Announcement

Sylvester read the brief announcement to newsmen, saying he made it in behalf of the U.S. government.

The announcement said:

"The Soviet Union has reported that ships are leaving Cuba with missiles aboard.

"Arrangements are being made with Soviet representatives for contact with these ships by United States naval vessels and for counting the missiles being shipped out."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev told newsmen at a Kremlin reception Wednesday that 40 rockets have been dismantled and "are probably already on their way," presumably meaning some of them at least were on ships steaming toward the Soviet Union.

Sylvester's announcement served to confirm what U.S. officials had said privately earlier in the day.

At the White House, press secretary Pierre Salinger was asked if the arrangement for a Navy check of outgoing Soviet shipments would have any effect on U.S. insistence upon on the spot verification inside Cuba that the Russians had pulled out their missiles. Salinger said he was not prepared to go beyond the Pentagon statement.

Asked if Navy inspections were considered satisfactory, Salinger referred the questioner to the last exchange of messages between Kennedy and Khrushchev.

In his Oct. 27 message to Khrushchev, Kennedy said he understood the Soviets agreed to remove offensive weapons systems from Cuba "under appropriate United nations observation and supervision." Kennedy also emphasize "effective international guarantees." Government sources have said recently Kennedy was determined to verify the dismantling of Russia's weapons by on-site inspections.

Transported On Deck

Government sources said the missiles were being transported on deck, which could explain the speed with which the Soviets apparently are moving rockets and equipment from Cuba.

It was understood that arrangements for the "contact by U.S. Navy vessels" were being made at the United Nations.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro is considered here to have been primarily responsible for stalling the fulfillment of Khrushchev's inspection pledge. But despite the tight secrecy with which the Kennedy administration has now surrounded the negotiations there is also reason to believe that Soviet representatives have been trying to chisel away Khrushchev's commitment so that there would be little or no inspection in the island.

In the face of Cuban refugee claims that the Soviets are hiding nuclear weapons among Cuba's numerous caves, the problem is becoming an urgent one for Kennedy, especially in relation to the withdrawal timetable.

Jets Still Problem

It now appears that in the relatively near future Khrushchev may be able to claim that all offensive weapons are out of Cuba.

Billie Sol Estes Is Found Guilty

Jury Convicts Farm Tycoon In Swindle Charge

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — A jury of 11 men and one woman Wednesday found bankrupt farm tycoon Billie Sol Estes guilty of swindling Pecos, Tex., farmer T. J. Wilson on a mortgage deal. They sentenced the 37-year-old Estes to eight years in state prison.

The jury deliberated two hours and seven minutes before reaching its verdict. It asked Dist. Judge Otis T. Dunagan three times to send various records of the mortgage transaction into their chamber.

Defense Attorney John D. Cofer said he would file a motion for a new trial, a legal procedure which will clear the way, if refused, for an appeal to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Estes was permitted to remain free on his current $5,000 bond, pending the judges' action on the defense motion for a new trial. If the motion is refused, the judge then will pass formal sentence on Estes.

Estes and his attractive wife Patsy walked arm-in-arm from the courtroom after jury foreman W. E. Florey announced the verdict. Mrs. Estes appeared to be fighting back tears.

There were three counts pending against Estes. The jury only had to find him guilty on one. Maximum sentence would have been 10 years.

It was Estes' first conviction. He awaits trial on four other indictments, both state and federal, including more than 30 counts of theft, swindling, mail fraud, false statements and criminal anti-trust violations.

Five Negroes Are Elected To Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the 88th Congress convenes in January, Negroes will hold more seats than at any time since the Civil War reconstruction days.

Four Negro House members won re-election in Tuesday's balloting. They were joined by a fifth, Democrat Augustus F. Hawkins, who will represent the newly created 21 District of California.

Hawkins defeated a Negro Republican candidate to represent the district, which is part of Los Angeles.

In the election of 1874, Negro candidates reached their peak strength. With the southern states under carpetbag rule, one Negro was sent to the Senate and seven to the House.

At least one Negro from the South served in every Congress thereafter until 1901. However, after 1901 no Negro held a congressional seat until 1928.

In Tuesday's balloting incumbent Negro members of the House won re-election with ease. All Democrats, they are Reps. Adam Clayton Powell, N.Y.; Charles C. Diggs Jr., Detroit; William L. Dawson, Chicago, and Robert N. C. Nix, Philadelphia. All of the incumbents represent districts with heavy Negro populations and all were opposed by Negro Republicans.

Couple Arrested Carrying Fortune In Pure Heroin

HOUSTON (UPI) — Milton Barron Bennett of New York and a Mexican woman were arrested Wednesday on a downtown Houston street with $4.5 million worth of pure white European heroin in a suitcase.

Federal, Texas and local narcotics agents moved in on the pair outside a hotel coffee shop after a customs agent trailed the woman from the border town of McAllen, Tex.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Adela Gomez de Castillo of Monterrey, Mexico, and Bennett, 52, were charged and arraigned before a U.S. commissioner with illegal possession of heroin. Bond for Bennett was set at $250,000 and for Mrs. Gomez at $50,000.

President Sees Better Break On Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy figures to get a somewhat better legislative break from the 88th Congress than he did from the 87th, even though Tuesday's elections made no substantial change in the party lineup.

In the campaign, Kennedy asked the voters to send more Democrats to Congress. What he really needed — and what he got, to some extent — was more Democrats likely to support his programs.

It appeared the new lineup in the all-important House would be 259 Democrats and 176 Republicans, compared to the old ratio of 263 to 174. The indicated Senate lineup: 68 to 32 in favor of the Democrats, as to the 87th's 64 to 36.

More important, from the administration's standpoint, is the political bent of new House and Senate members. Indications are that the elections worked to Kennedy's favor in this respect.

On the domestic front, the big legislative issues next year shape up as medical care for the aged under Social Security, federal aid to education, and tax reforms including cuts in income levies. All three rate high on Kennedy's priority list, and on the first two he was rebuffed by the 87th Congress.

Other issues are sure to arise, including many in the field of foreign policy. But the three domestic programs are good bets to be presented for action when the new Congress convenes Jan. 9.

Khrushchev Amiable On Anniversary

Tells Reporters Issues Of Crisis Have Been Removed

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Wednesday the 40 Soviet rockets he sent Fidel Castro probably were "already on their way" back to the Soviet Union, and declared himself relieved at the easing of the Cuban crisis.

In a relaxed and winking mood, the Soviet leader said now that the issue of "peace or war" has been removed there is no need of a summit meeting with President Kennedy.

Chatting with reporters at a Kremlin party marking the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, Khrushchev said some tensions remain but he hinted at more "flexibility" in Soviet foreign policy—including that toward Berlin.

Kremlin Reception

The Kremlin reception came after the Soviets saluted Castro by kicking off the big parade through Red Square with a rousing rendition of the "26th of July," the marching song of the Cuban revolutionary movement.

Rockets resembling those spotted in Cuba rolled by in a 11-minute show of Soviet military hardware that featured missiles—but there was hardly a rocket rattle to be heard in the oratory.

One new rocket displayed, military experts said, appeared to be a naval design similar to the U.S. Navy Polaris missile. But the experts said they did not think it could be fired from under water like the Polaris.

Khrushchev was in a talkative—and seemingly confident—mood when he played host at the Kremlin reception afterward, and ranged over several international problems in talks with reporters and in four toasts.

Venezuela Puts Down Revolt Of Air Force Unit

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The government was reported Wednesday to have put down a pocket revolt among air force officers at the key base a Boca Del Rio, near Maracay, 70 miles west of Caracas.

At least 18 base officers were said to have been arrested, but it was not clear whether any fighting had taken place.

News of the outbreak coincided with disclosure a group of armed men wearing army uniforms hijacked two trucks Tuesday night, one of them with a cargo of a ton of dynamite. The incident occurred near the Petare Rock quarry, less than six miles from the center of Caracas.

Government officials said they would issue a statement soon on the abortive revolt, but they declined to advance any information. Reports of the anti-government move had circulated here throughout the day.

The officer roundup was said to have taken place before dawn Wednesday. The Maracay zone houses Venezuela's largest air force and military complex.

Former First Lady Dies

Wife Of 32nd President Was Ill Six Weeks

Eleanor Roosevelt One Of Best Known Women In World

By STAN HALL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, 78, America's First Lady of the world, died Wednesday.

Her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Halstead, and a son, John, were by her side when she died at 6:15 p.m. EST in her Manhattan apartment after a six-week illness.

The cause of death was not announced, but Mrs. Halstead, who came here from Birmingham, Mich., to be with her ailing mother, said that doctors had been called in Wednesday afternoon because of indications of cardiac failure.

The death of the nation's former First Lady and widow of three-term Democratic President Franklin Delano Roosevelt came one day after U.S. national elections in which the party now headed by President John F. Kennedy scored a major congressional triumph. But Mrs. Roosevelt was too ill to vote or even be told of the results.

President Kennedy led the nation in paying tribute to her.

Kennedy Gives Praise

Kennedy, who said he would attend her funeral, called Mrs. Roosevelt "one of the great ladies in the history of this country."

Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt's longtime friend, party confidant and fellow United Nations delegate, went to the Roosevelt apartment two hours after her death. He stayed for five minutes and then left as the body was put into a hearse to be taken to Columbia - Presbyterian Medical Center for an autopsy.

Former President Herbert Hoover said: "Mrs. Roosevelt was a lady of fine courage and great devotion to her country."

Mrs. Roosevelt, the precedent-shattering wife of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, finally was forced to slow her hectic pace this summer because of illness.

She was sent to Columbia-Presbyterian Sept. 26 for treatment of a persistent lung infection and anemia. On Oct 11, doctors allowed her to return to her apartment home.

Issued Pessimistic Report

But it was not until last week when her family issued a pessimistic report on her condition that most of the world learned that the busy, beloved lady was seriously sick.

She had celebrated her 78th birthday in the hospital where she received more than 8,000 letters from admirers around the world. But the family said she was too ill to look at most of them.

The last of the twice-daily bulletins the family had been issuing came at 4 p.m. Wednesday. In it, they said that the results of Tuesday's election were being kept from her to conserve her strength.

Mrs. Halstead said Mrs. Roosevelt's body would be taken to her family home at Hyde Park, N.Y., about 60 miles north of New York City along the Hudson River.

She said that funeral arrangements would be announced as

Five Airmen Die In Crash Of Jetstar

ROBINS AFB, Ga. (UPI)—Five men were killed and one injured Wednesday when their C140 Jetstar plane crashed on landing and burst into flames after a flight from Oklahoma.

The plane, carrying a six-man crew, took off on its flight Wednesday from Tinker Air Force Base near Oklahoma City, an Air Force spokesman said.

Identification of the victims was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The lone survivor was taken to the Robins Air Force Base Hospital. The Air Force launched an immediate investigation into the cause of the crash.

Newspaper Strike Talks Continue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz announced Wednesday night that 16 of the 18 issues involved in the newspaper guild's strike against the New York Daily News have been settled.

However, he said that negotiators for both sides are still "substantially" apart on the two remaining issues. He said one of the issues was wages, but did not identify the second.

"I know it's (the strike) is going to be settled," Wirtz said. "They always are."

Many Tributes Being Made To Mrs. Roosevelt

By United Press International

A shocked America, mourning the death of Mrs. Eleanor Roosefelt, paid tribute Wednesday to the former First Lady as one of the great ladies in the history of the United States.

President Kennedy: "One of the great ladies in the history of this country has passed from the scene. Her loss will be deeply felt by all those who admired her tireless idealism or benefited from her good works and wise counsel."

Former President Herbert Hoover: "Mrs. Roosevelt was a lady of fine courage and great devotion to her country."

Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations: "Like so many others, I have lost more than a beloved friend. I have lost an inspiration. She would rather light candles than curse the darkness and her glow has warmed the world."

Former Vice President Henry Wallace: "Her passing came as a great shock. It's hard to believe that one so vital is no longer with us. She represented a strong element in the Roosevelt administration, and in a sense her death marks the end of an era."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York: "She was so grand a woman, so rare a person, so pure in spirit, that to judge our loss at this moment is impossible . . .a light has gone out of our lives. Something has died for each and every one of us. We share a universal sorrow."

James A. Farley, postmaster general under Roosevelt: "As long as the memory and an American woman is recorded in our country's annals, the name of Anna Eleanor Roosevelt will be enshrined."

Three States Captured By Republicans

Four Additional Democrats Named To U.S. Senate

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The GOP snatched three vital powerhouse states out of Tuesday's election grab bag but the Democrats kept a sure grip on Congress — and snuffed out the political torch of arch foe Richard M. Nixon.

The new Congress will have four more Democrats in the Senate, probably four less Democrats in the House, and a part-time coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats still calling the shots on some close votes on key issues.

A heavy outpouring of votes surged across party lines to fashion startling upsets in governor and Senate races in New England and the Midwestern farm belt. The Democrats kept control of California but ceded away Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan to Republican governors.

New and old claimants emerged among the Republicans for possible presidential consideration, in states which will have loud voices in president picking in 1964:

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who cinched another term as governor of New York¾but not by as big a margin as in his first turn around the course in 1958. His victory, with only 12 precincts missing out of 12,000, was 488,000 votes compared with 573,000 four years ago.

Political rookie George Romney, who accomplished in Michigan what Scranton did in Pennsylvania.

President Kennedy, who pitched into the 1962 campaign with mixed success, surveyed the rejiggered political scene and said: "I am heartened by the results of yesterday's election. This country and the Congress face major responsibilities in the coming two years and I am certain that the Congress will meet these responsibilities in a progressive and vigorous manner."

Better Than Predicted

The congressional results mean that the Democrats managed to dam up the normal midterm election tide which usually erodes substantially the strength of the party in power in the White House.

But it also means that Kennedy failed to put across his plea to the people to give him just a few extra Democratic seats to swing the close votes and assure House passage of top items on his program. He apparently did pick up some Senate votes on many issues.

Kennedy's aftermath statement omitted comment on any individual races or states — even on the crushing victory of his youngest brother, Edward M. In a Massachusetts contest for the President's old Senate seat.

Nixon Defeated

So was Nixon's fighting-but-failing bid for a political comeback by way of the governorship in California.

Wan and weary, Nixon conceded defeat twelve hours after Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown had claimed re-election. The margin dividing the two at the moment Nixon tossed in the sponge was about 250,000 votes.

Whatever the final edge in what was perhaps the bitterest, stormiest 1962 election battle of them all, Nixon's career as a national political figure will be blighted and blunted.

The California campaign was daubed with charges of smears on both sides. In the end, Nixon congratulated Brown, wished him well, and said he never had attacked Brown personally—regardless of what the press had said about that.

He wound up with a bitter blast at the press, telling what he said was his last news conference:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer."

Others Also Fall

Other well-known political figures around the nation went down to defeat along with Nixon. And a few familiar names reappeared on the political scene.

Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin yielded the Senate seat he had held since 1939 to Democratic Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson.

Nixon Blames Newspapers For His Defeat

By JOE LEWIS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —An embittered Richard M. Nixon, his hopes for a political comeback in ruins, congratulated Gov. Edmund G. Brown on Wednesday, bade farewell to public life, and in an angry denunciation of the press, told newsmen:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer. Because this, gentlemen, is my last press conference."

The 49-year-old Repulican former vice president, eyes swollen from lack of sleep and flashing anger, accused the press of distorting his statements.

In one breath, he said he had no complaints. Then he aired a few.

"Thank God for radio and TV," Nixon said through tightly compressed lips, "for keeping the newspapers a little more honest."

Leveling his gaze at assembled reporters, he said: "Never in my 16 years of campaigning have I complained about coverage to a publisher or an editor. I believe a reporter has a right to cover the news as he sees it. But I'll say to a reporter sometimes: 'I wish you had given my opponent the same going over you gave me.'"

Later he told newsmen: "For 16 years, ever since the Hiss case, you've had a lot of fun. You've had an opportunity to attack me. I've given as good as I've taken—and I've had fun matching wits with you."

The defeat was the most shattering of Nixon's career. He never before had been beaten in six California elections, starting when he ran for Congress in 1946. He was re-elected in 1948, won a seat in the U.S. Senate in 1950, was nominated for vice president, at age 39, in 1952 and won election on the Republican ticket with Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was re-elected vice president in 1956 and lost to John F. Kennedy by 110,000 votes, in the 1960 presidential election.

And now it was over—the man who "talked back to (Soviet Premier) Khrushchev" and "was stoned by Communists in South America," to quote some of his campaign phrases had lost to a governor who was hardly known outside California before winning the office in 1958.

His face grimly drawn, his voice husky, Nixon appeared dead serious and exerting intense efforts to keep his rancor from getting out of hand.

In congratulating Gov. Brown, Nixon said: "He has the greatest honor and responsibility of any governor in the United States. I wish him well.

"I'm proud I defended my opponent's patriotism. But you (meaning the press) didn't report that.

"I believe Gov. Brown has a heart even though he believes I do not.

"I believe he's a good American even though he believes I'm not.

"I want it to be known that I never during the course of the campaign raised a personal reservation against my opponent. I never accused him of a lack of heart, a lack of patriotism.

"You gentlemen didn't report that . . . that I defended him.

"For once, gentlemen, I would appreciate that you write what I said. And I mean that you get it in the lead. In the lead."

Brown, who watched Nixon on television, said: "Nixon is going to regret all his life that he made that speech."

Venezuela Puts Down Revolt Of Air Force Unit

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The government was reported Wednesday to have put down a pocket revolt among air force officers at the key base a Boca Del Rio, near Maracay, 70 miles west of Caracas.

At least 18 base officers were said to have been arrested, but it was not clear whether any fighting had taken place.

News of the outbreak coincided with disclosure a group of armed men wearing army uniforms hijacked two trucks Tuesday night, one of them with a cargo of a ton of dynamite. The incident occurred near the Petare Rock quarry, less than six miles from the center of Caracas.

Government officials said they would issue a statement soon on the abortive revolt, but they declined to advance any information. Reports of the anti-government move had circulated here throughout the day.

The officer roundup was said to have taken place before dawn Wednesday. The Maracay zone houses Venezuela's largest air force and military complex.

Former First Lady Dies

Wife Of 32nd President Was Ill Six Weeks

Eleanor Roosevelt One Of Best Known Women In World

By STAN HALL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, 78, America's First Lady of the world, died Wednesday.

Her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Halstead, and a son, John, were by her side when she died at 6:15 p.m. EST in her Manhattan apartment after a six-week illness.

The cause of death was not announced, but Mrs. Halstead, who came here from Birmingham, Mich., to be with her ailing mother, said that doctors had been called in Wednesday afternoon because of indications of cardiac failure.

The death of the nation's former First Lady and widow of three-term Democratic President Franklin Delano Roosevelt came one day after U.S. national elections in which the party now headed by President John F. Kennedy scored a major congressional triumph. But Mrs. Roosevelt was too ill to vote or even be told of the results.

President Kennedy led the nation in paying tribute to her.

Kennedy Gives Praise

Kennedy, who said he would attend her funeral, called Mrs. Roosevelt "one of the great ladies in the history of this country."

Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt's longtime friend, party confidant and fellow United Nations delegate, went to the Roosevelt apartment two hours after her death. He stayed for five minutes and then left as the body was put into a hearse to be taken to Columbia - Presbyterian Medical Center for an autopsy.

Former President Herbert Hoover said: "Mrs. Roosevelt was a lady of fine courage and great devotion to her country."

Mrs. Roosevelt, the precedent-shattering wife of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, finally was forced to slow her hectic pace this summer because of illness.

She was sent to Columbia-Presbyterian Sept. 26 for treatment of a persistent lung infection and anemia. On Oct 11, doctors allowed her to return to her apartment home.

Issued Pessimistic Report

But it was not until last week when her family issued a pessimistic report on her condition that most of the world learned that the busy, beloved lady was seriously sick.

She had celebrated her 78th birthday in the hospital where she received more than 8,000 letters from admirers around the world. But the family said she was too ill to look at most of them.

The last of the twice-daily bulletins the family had been issuing came at 4 p.m. Wednesday. In it, they said that the results of Tuesday's election were being kept from her to conserve her strength.

Mrs. Halstead said Mrs. Roosevelt's body would be taken to her family home at Hyde Park, N.Y., about 60 miles north of New York City along the Hudson River.

She said that funeral arrangements would be announced as

Five Airmen Die In Crash Of Jetstar

ROBINS AFB, Ga. (UPI)—Five men were killed and one injured Wednesday when their C140 Jetstar plane crashed on landing and burst into flames after a flight from Oklahoma.

The plane, carrying a six-man crew, took off on its flight Wednesday from Tinker Air Force Base near Oklahoma City, an Air Force spokesman said.

Identification of the victims was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The lone survivor was taken to the Robins Air Force Base Hospital. The Air Force launched an immediate investigation into the cause of the crash.

Newspaper Strike Talks Continue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz announced Wednesday night that 16 of the 18 issues involved in the newspaper guild's strike against the New York Daily News have been settled.

However, he said that negotiators for both sides are still "substantially" apart on the two remaining issues. He said one of the issues was wages, but did not identify the second.

"I know it's (the strike) is going to be settled," Wirtz said. "They always are."

Many Tributes Being Made To Mrs. Roosevelt

By United Press International

A shocked America, mourning the death of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, paid tribute Wednesday to the former First Lady as one of the great ladies in the history of the United States.

President Kennedy: "One of the great ladies in the history of this country has passed from the scene. Her loss will be deeply felt by all those who admired her tireless idealism or benefited from her good works and wise counsel."

Former President Herbert Hoover: "Mrs. Roosevelt was a lady of fine courage and great devotion to her country."

Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations: "Like so many others, I have lost more than a beloved friend. I have lost an inspiration. She would rather light candles than curse the darkness and her glow has warmed the world."

Former Vice President Henry Wallace: "Her passing came as a great shock. It's hard to believe that one so vital is no longer with us. She represented a strong element in the Roosevelt administration, and in a sense her death marks the end of an era."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York: "She was so grand a woman, so rare a person, so pure in spirit, that to judge our loss at this moment is impossible . . .a light has gone out of our lives. Something has died for each and every one of us. We share a universal sorrow."

James A. Farley, postmaster general under Roosevelt: "As long as the memory and an American woman is recorded in our country's annals, the name of Anna Eleanor Roosevelt will be enshrined."

Three States Captured By Republicans

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The GOP snatched three vital powerhouse states out of Tuesday's election grab bag but the Democrats kept a sure grip on Congress — and snuffed out the political torch of arch foe Richard M. Nixon.

The new Congress will have four more Democrats in the Senate, probably four less Democrats in the House, and a part-time coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats still calling the shots on some close votes on key issues.

A heavy outpouring of votes surged across party lines to fashion startling upsets in governor and Senate races in New England and the Midwestern farm belt. The Democrats kept control of California but ceded away Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan to Republican governors.

New and old claimants emerged among the Republicans for possible presidential consideration, in states which will have loud voices in president picking in 1964:

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who cinched another term as governor of New York⅞but not by as big a margin as in his first turn around the course in 1958. His victory, with only 12 precincts missing out of 12,000, was 488,000 votes compared with 573,000 four years ago.

Political rookie George Romney, who accomplished in Michigan what Scranton did in Pennsylvania.

President Kennedy, who pitched into the 1962 campaign with mixed success, surveyed the rejiggered political scene and said: "I am heartened by the results of yesterday's election. This country and the Congress face major responsibilities in the coming two years and I am certain that the Congress will meet these responsibilities in a progressive and vigorous manner."

Better Than Predicted

The congressional results mean that the Democrats managed to dam up the normal midterm election tide which usually erodes substantially the strength of the party in power in the White House.

But it also means that Kennedy failed to put across his plea to the people to give him just a few extra Democratic seats to swing the close votes and assure House passage of top items on his program. He apparently did pick up some Senate votes on many issues.

Kennedy's aftermath statement omitted comment on any individual races or states — even on the crushing victory of his youngest brother, Edward M. In a Massachusetts contest for the President's old Senate seat.

Nixon Defeated

So was Nixon's fighting-but-failing bid for a political comeback by way of the governorship in California.

Wan and weary, Nixon conceded defeat twelve hours after Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown had claimed re-election. The margin dividing the two at the moment Nixon tossed in the sponge was about 250,000 votes.

Whatever the final edge in what was perhaps the bitterest, stormiest 1962 election battle of them all, Nixon's career as a national political figure will be blighted and blunted.

The California campaign was daubed with charges of smears on both sides. In the end, Nixon congratulated Brown, wished him well, and said he never had attacked Brown personally—regardless of what the press had said about that.

He wound up with a bitter blast at the press, telling what he said was his last news conference:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer."

Others Also Fall

Other well-known political figures around the nation went down to defeat along with Nixon. And a few familiar names reappeared on the political scene.

Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin yielded the Senate seat he had held since 1939 to Democratic Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson.

By JOE LEWIS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —An embittered Richard M. Nixon, his hopes for a political comeback in ruins, congratulated Gov. Edmund G. Brown on Wednesday, bade farewell to public life, and in an angry denunciation of the press, told newsmen:

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer. Because this, gentlemen, is my last press conference."

The 49-year-old Republican former vice president, eyes swollen from lack of sleep and flashing anger, accused the press of distorting his statements.

In one breath, he said he had no complaints. Then he aired a few.

"Thank God for radio and TV," Nixon said through tightly compressed lips, "for keeping the newspapers a little more honest."

Leveling his gaze at assembled reporters, he said: "Never in my 16 years of campaigning have I complained about coverage to a publisher or an editor. I believe a reporter has a right to cover the news as he sees it. But I'll say to a reporter sometimes: 'I wish you had given my opponent the same going over you gave me.' "

Later he told newsmen: "For 16 years, ever since the Hiss case, you've had a lot of fun. You've had an opportunity to attack me. I've given as good as I've taken—and I've had fun matching wits with you."

The defeat was the most shattering of Nixon's career. He never before had been beaten in six California elections, starting when he ran for Congress in 1946. He was re-elected in 1948, won a seat in the U.S. Senate in 1950, was nominated for vice president, at age 39, in 1952 and won election on the Republican ticket with Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was re-elected vice president in 1956 and lost to John F. Kennedy by 110,000 votes, in the 1960 presidential election.

And now it was over—the man who "talked back to (Soviet Premier) Khrushchev" and "was stoned by Communists in South America," to quote some of his campaign phrases had lost to a governor who was hardly known outside California before winning the office in 1958.

His face grimly drawn, his voice husky, Nixon appeared dead serious and exerting intense efforts to keep his rancor from getting out of hand.

In congratulating Gov. Brown, Nixon said: "He has the greatest honor and responsibility of any governor in the United States. I wish him well.

"I'm proud I defended my opponent's patriotism. But you (meaning the press) didn't report that.

"I believe Gov. Brown has a heart even though he believes I do not.

"I believe he's a good American even though he believes I'm not.

"I want it to be known that I never during the course of the campaign raised a personal reservation against my opponent. I never accused him of a lack of heart, a lack of patriotism.

"You gentlemen didn't report that . . . that I defended him.

"For once, gentlemen, I would appreciate that you write what I said. And I mean that you get it in the lead. In the lead."

Brown, who watched Nixon on television, said: "Nixon is going to regret all his life that he made that speech."

Khrushchev Amiable On Anniversary

the Soviet rocket bases in Cuba—bases top Soviet diplomats and Castro himself insisted at one time never existed.

Admits To 40 Rockets

In previous letters to President Kennedy, Khrushchev refused even to use the word rockets, referring to them as weapons which Kennedy regarded as offensive.

But Khrushchev said Wednesday: "We had 40 rockets there. What are 40 rockets? Even 140 wouldn't be enough."

He pledged that they have been dismantled and said they "are probably already on their way," presumably to this country.

The Soviet leader said "I was never in favor of a summit meeting" even though he had suggested top-level talks at the height of the Cuban crisis in a letter to British philosopher Bertrand Russell when Kennedy imposed an arms quarantine on Cuba.

Khrushchev said he decided to withdraw his rockets from Cuba after getting President Kennedy's guarantees on Cuban security. The Soviet leader indicated he had some difficulties in bringing Castro around to his way of maneuvering.

Believes President

"The Cubans said: 'We don't believe President Kennedy.' But we said: 'We believe—there is no other way—otherwise it would be war.' "

"I believe the President will keep his word—I want to believe," the premier added.

This was the first official Kremlin indication of the purpose of First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan's mission to Havana in the role of troubleshooter — and persuader.

Covering the whole range of foreign policy, Khrushchev told reporters in his offhand chat: "A hard policy is not always best. Flexibility is necessary."

Turning to Berlin, a hot spot long before Cuba emerged as a powder keg in the cold war, the Soviet premier said: "Berlin is now assuming ever greater acuteness. Berlin is not Cuba and Berlin, too, can create great difficulties for us. It must be solved."

"We don't want Berlin. We don't need it. We do need peace and a peace treaty," he added.

Nursed Husband

Mrs. Roosevelt nursed her husband back to health when he was stricken with polio before he became the 32nd president of the United States.

A play and subsequent motion picture about this phase of their lives, "Sunrise At Campabbello," recently brought new fame to Mrs. Roosevelt.

A Tireless Worker

Mrs. Roosevelt, long a champion of often unpopular humanitarian causes, was not always beloved.

She started as the most controversial First Lady in American history as she broke precedent after precedent.

After the death of Roosevelt, she left the White House, but continued her work as a delegate to the United Nations.

There, her hard work, and shy charm, won for her many friends —including those who disagreed with her.

As the First Lady, Mrs. Roosevelt held news conferences, joined a union (the American Newspaper Guild), drove her own car and refused the protection of Secret Service men.

Up to the end, she maintained a busy schedule, writing, traveling, espousing causes she felt would help the needy, the poor, the unfortunate arond the world.

As she grew in stature, much of the criticism of earlier years died down.

The lady with the lanky gait, became one of the best known—and most influential women — in the world.

Her plain face was known throughout the world. So was her humanitarian work.

Mrs. Roosevelt was elevated to the national spotlight by her marriage to Franklin Delano Roosevelt. She bore him six children—some of whom became as controversial as their mother.

Even after leaving the White House, she remained in the heat of public affairs through her own efforts and abilities.

She was a globetrotter, a lecturer, a newspaper columnist, a magazine writer, book author, chairman of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and U.S. delegate to the U.N. General Assembly.

Perhaps Anna Eleanor Roosevelt typified, more than any other woman, the realization of the dream of the female crusaders of the 19th century who threw off restrictions of the Victorian age.

The late architect Frank Lloyd Wright once said of her: "Eleanor Roosevelt redeems the hope America placed in women when the nation enfranchised her."

of Indiana. He was knocked out by a good-looking, 34-year-old Democrat who used to box in college, Birch E. Bayh Jr. Bayh formerly was speaker of the Indiana House.

For their part, the Republicans put Rep. Peter H. Dominick into the battle for a Colorado Senate seat and came up with a winner over a Democratic New Frontiersman, Sen. John A. Carroll.

In the House, Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, a doctor and onetime missionary, was toppled from his seat by a 38-year-old Minneapolis lawyer, Democrat Donald M. Fraser.

Biggest Upset

But it was in the governor races that the biggest upsets were pulled.

It was just about a standoff in the number of governorships one party took from the other, but on the basis of size and political power of the states involved, the Democrats came out on the short end of the trading.

In exchange for Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Oklahoma, Colorado and Wyoming, the Democrats received New Hampshire, Vermont, Hawaii, Iowa, New Mexico and maybe, by an eyelash, Massachusetts.

Whereas Oklahoma will have a Republican governor for the first time in history, Vermont will have the first Democrat in the statehouse in 109 years and New Hampshire the first in 40.

Oklahoma went Republican in the 1960 presidential election. Now it will have Republican wheat farmer Henry Bellmon for governor.

The new Vermont governor is going to be lawyer Philip H. Hoff, 37, pretty much a newcomer to big-time politics and even a comparative newcomer to the state. In next door New Hampshire, Democrat John W. King apparently cashed in on Republican dissension. King is a lawyer, too, and the son of an immigrant Irish cobbler.

In Ohio, the political star of Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle descended and that of another Taft was on the rise. Robert Taft Jr., son of the late senator who was famed as "Mr. Republican," picked off a seat as congressman-at-large. DiSalle lost the governorship to Republican State Auditor James A. Rhodes.

Two former Cabinet members faced the voters Tuesday.

Abraham A. Ribicoff, Kennedy's former Welfare secretary, gained a Senate seat for the Democrats in Connecticut. Fred A. Seaton, secretary of the Interior in the Eisenhower administration, couldn't pull the grade to the Nebraska statehouse.

Russia Says

His chief Cuban crisis negotiator of the United Nations, Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, has also been stalling on final agreement for removal of IL28 jet bombers from Cuba. But under pressure from the U.S. spokesmen, Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and special representative John J. McCloy, he has not so far said the bombers would not be withdrawn. U.S. officials seem confident that in the end they will be.

Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan was still in Havana, presumably talking with Castro about verification plans as well as trying to smooth over the humiliation Castro suffered in having Khrushchev negotiate with Kennedy about weapons based on Cuba without consulting Castro. The major U.S.-Soviet negotiations were in New York.

Maryland Voters, By Impressive Margins, Reject Redistricting And Pay Hike For Legislators

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland voters have rejected a pay raise for state legislators and also turned down a congressional redistricting plan passed by the lawmakers at the 1962 General Assembly.

The pay raise proposal, submitted to a statewide referenda as a constitutional amendment in Tuesday's election, would have increased the annual pay of legislators from $1,800 to $3,000.

But the voters turned thumbs down on the salary hike, in convincing fashion. Unofficial returns from 1,350 of the state's 1,458 polling places showed 197,263 votes against the plan and 99,601 for it.

The vote against the redistricting was almost as impressive, 195,735 to 110,041. The Tawes administration's proposal to create a new congressional district from Prince Georges and Howard counties was petitioned onto the ballot by the Maryland League of Women Voters.

Maryland became entitled to an eighth seat in the House of Representatives on the basis of population gains reflected in the 1960 census.

The vote means the legislature must tackle the ticklish problem again. As a result of the referenda, the new congressman was elected this year on an at-large basis by all voters in the state. Democrat Carlton R. Sickles of Prince Georges County defeated Republican Newton I. Steers of Montgomery County.

Seven of the nine constitutional amendments on the ballot were approved by comfortable margin.

Among the questions endorsed was an amendment increasing the number of signatures required to put a referendum on the ballot. The increase from 10,000 signatures to 3 per cent of the number of votes cast for governor in the precedent election, is intended to discourage abuse of the petition procedure.

Also approved was an amendment to increase the maximum basic weekly unemployment benefit from $35 to $38, and to tighten eligibility requirements.

The voters also approved amendments changing the land condemnation procedures in Baltimore City and Montgomery County, reforming Baltimore City's lower court system, regulating the savings and loan industry, and giving authority to impose prison sentences for failure to support illegitimate children.

Alaska's Senator Is Re-Elected

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Democratic Sen. Ernest Gruening was re-elected to a second term from Alaska Tuesday in the last undecided Senate race in the nation. He narrowly defeated Republican Ted Stevens, Anchorage attorney and former chief counsel for the Interior Department.

Kennedy Family Establishes Historical Precedent In United States Government

BOSTON REUNION — In Boston to cast his vote, President John F. Kennedy visited his 97-year-old grandmother, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald (center), at her home in the city's Dorchester section. Also at the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, the Chief Executive's uncle and aunt.

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is a precedent in American history: three brothers in the highest echelons of the federal government at the same time.

A tourist walking along Pennsylvania Avenue next year conceivably could get a glimpse, in the space of a mile, of President Kennedy at the White House, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy at the Justice Department; Sen.-elect Edward M. Kennedy at the Capitol.

Unquestionably, the magic of the Kennedy name in Massachusetts accounts in part for Edward's steamroller victory over George Cabot Lodge, the Republican candidate.

But it is not the whole story. The other parts are personality, grinding work, organization, and what appears to be a native political acumen and instinct.

To get to Washington, Edward left few if any stones unturned in his fights in the Democratic convention, in the primary and through the finals.

On the night of the primary, for example, it was after 2 a.m. before he went to bed. Four hours later he was standing at the gate of a Boston shipyard, greeting the workers. He never stopped campaigning, took no "breathers."

He had the benefit of some of the professionals who helped engineer his brother's victory in the presidential race of 1960. Stephen Smith, his brother-in-law, husband of the former Jean Kennedy, was the key figure in his organization.

The woman's vote was a factor in his favor. Edward, 30, is tall, dark and handsome. He roused the squealers, shriekers, jumpers, and touchers to an even greater degree than John F. Kennedy did two years ago.

Finally, according to Massachusetts observers, Edward was a better campaigner in his first try for elective office than his brother was when he first ran for Congress in 1946.

His election raises some intriguing political questions.

As a senator, will Edward vote against legislation sent up by the White House?

Lodge attempted to pin a "rubber stamp" label on Edward in the campaign. Kennedy said he foresaw no conflicts between his duty as a senator and his devotion to his brother.

Both the President and Edward likely will be running for re-election in 1964, since Edward is filling the last two years of an unexpired term. The voters in Massachusetts, obviously, did not think three Kennedys in Washington would be too many.

But will the cry of "dynasty" be raised by an issue for the electorate as a whole in the next national elections?

One thing is certain: Nobody on the floor of the Senate will be watched more closely, by his colleagues and especially the Argus-eyed Washington press corps, than the third man from the Kennedy clan.

Adenauer Answers Critics

BONN, Germany (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Tuesday personally fought back in an uproarious session of Parliament at critics of his handling of the Der Spiegel affair.

Flushed with anger and pounding his fist, the 86-year-old chancellor defended the government's action in the case that came close to wrecking his coalition Cabinet.

An outbreak of shouting and whistling by deputies during the debate brought Adenauer into action. The aged chancellor denounced accusations his government used illegal methods in arresting the publisher and several editors of the newsmagazine for an article on West Germany's defenses.

"This is a case of suspected treason," Adenauer shouted to the noisy chamber. "It has to do with a man possessing great journalistic power. Because of this he is all the more obligated to observe limits."

He was referring to Rudolf Augstein, publisher of Der Spiegel, who has often been critical of the government's defense program.

Adenauer's Christian Democratic supporters cheered and the opposition Social Democrats cried out protests.

"We have an abyss of treason in the land," asserted Adenauer.

An outburst of "pfui!" came from the opposition after the chancellor claimed that the weekly, with a circulation of 500,000, "systematically pursues treason in order to make money."

The government's action against the popular magazine has stirred an uproar throughout the nation with some critics charging an infringement on freedom of the press.

Atlas Missile Soars 4,000 Miles In Test

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—A highly advanced Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile soared more than 4,000 miles across the Atlantic Ocean Wednesday—the 150th shot for the nation's most famous family of ICBMs.

The 82-foot missile, an "F" model designed for storage in underground launching silos, blasted from a surface launching pad at 2:44 p.m. EST.

The silvery rocket sent its instrument-loaded nose cone into a target area near Ascension Island, off the west coast of Africa. Scientists used especially sensitive measuring devices to get an idea of the exact accuracy.

The shot was the 150th for the Atlas family, including military and space shots. This was at least the 100th success.

The Atlas carried with it a camera package designed to photograph the separation of its booster engines at the edge of space. The Air Force hoped to use the information from the camera to try to iron out problems which have cropped up in the past.

Early in the testing program, the Atlas "F" rockets ran into problems which caused its sustainer engines to shut down too soon. Recent rockets carrying cameras have worked perfectly.

Tuesday's Election Added New Faces To National Political Scene

By The Associated Press

Some new faces are on the national political scene.

A few have familiar names, like the son of the late "Mr. Republican," Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio; and the brother of Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the former GOP national chairman.

But most were political unknowns outside their immediate community or state.

The new governor of Vermont will be sandy-haired Philip H. Hoff, 37, the first Democrat to hold that office in 109 years. He scored a stunning upset over incumbent F. Ray Keyser Jr., the country's youngest governor at 35.

Hoff, a native of Greenfield, Mass., came to Vermont a few years ago to set up a law practice. The Williams College and Cornell Law School graduate was elected to the legislature from Burlington two years ago in his first try at a major state office.

New Hampshire will get its first Democratic governor in 40 years with the election of underdog John W. King of Manchester, son of an immigrant Irish shoemaker.

King, a rather short, heavy set, bespectacled attorney who was was graduated from Harvard and Columbia Law School, scored his upset victory over Republican John Pillsbury.

Another successful election underdog was John A. Love, 45, also a lawyer, who never held public office before. He defeated Colorado's Democratic Gov. Stephen L. R. McNichols seeking a third term.

Like Love of Colorado, another Republican making his first bid for public office come true was Congressman-elect Rogers C. B. Morton, brother of the senator from Kentucky who won re-election.

Rogers Morton, 47, Maaryland beef cattle farmer and industrialist, defeated Rep. Thomas F. Johnson who was indicted by a federal grand jury three weeks ago.

Another name that belongs in the upset category is Henry Bellmon, who became the first Republican ever to win the governorship of Oklahoma. The 41-year-old ex-Marine smashed into a vote lead over millionaire W. P. Atkinson, a Democrat, from almost the first precinct to report.

Bellmon, a 6-foot-2 wheat farmer from near Billings, was elected to the Oklahoma House of Representatives in 1946 but was defeated for re-election two years later. In 1960 he was named GOP state chairman, a post from which he resigned to run for governor.

Robert Taft Jr., son of the famous Ohio senator and grandson of President William Howard Taft, took his first step into national politics after serving four terms in the Ohio Legislature, the last as majority floor leader.

He beat out Democrat Richard D. Kennedy of Ohio's only Congress-at-large post.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., has called Taft, 45, dark-horse possibility for the 1964 GOP vice presidential nomination. Taft has come out against aid to nations who consistently oppose U.S. positions, and favors a reduction of some trade barriers.

Taft, a Navy veteran was graduated from Yale and Harvard law schools. He is father of four, resides with his wife in suburban Cincinnati.

In Indiana, Birch E. Bayh Jr., 34, lawyer, turned back the bid of Republican Homer E. Capehart who sought to become the first four-term U.S. senator in Hoosier history.

Bayh served eight years in the Indiana House before winning the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Bayh, who owns a 340-acre farm, was graduated from the Purdue School of Agriculture. He was a boxer and debater in his college days.

During the first six months, 63,910,622 board feet entered the port. This nearly equals the record for lumber imports for an entire year set in 1959.

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP)— Linda Ilse Gutekunst, 23, has been chosen Berkeley County Centennial Queen. She will compete with nominees from other counties for the title of West Virginia Centennial Queen next month at Charleston.

Six Area Police Jurisdictions Linked By Modern Communications System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another step in this area's fight against crime is scheduled to be taken next month when six area police jurisdictions will be linked for the first time in a modern communication system.

Plans call for teletype machines to start operation in six police headquarters in and near Washington in mid-December, providing quick police information to each other.

The metro communications system connecting the District of Columbia, Prince Georges and Montgomery counties, Md., Arlington and Fairfax counties, Va., and Alexandria, Va., will provide this information at the rate of 100 words a minute.

Police departments serving the 2.2 million population in the Washington region would be welded for the first time into a single crime-fighting unit by the network, police officials said.

Robert V. Murray, District of Columbia police chief who has been instrumental in establishing the new system, said the teletype link is one of the most progressive steps in police communications under-taken here.

Warren G. Harding was the first United States president to visit Canada during his term of office.

Trend Toward Switch-Voting And Ticket-Splitting Mounts

By J.M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

If the 1958 election jumble makes any impact on American political history at all it will be marked as a time when the tendency toward switch-voting, ticket-splitting and local self-determination in general took a remarkable upswing.

Whether it also means a paramounting of parochial desires, a lack of interest in national issues per se, or merely a lack of means of expressing such interest, remains to be seen.

This same wild pattern has been detectable in off-year elections before now. However, taken against the background of the closeness of the popular vote in the presidential election two years ago, there does seem to be a tendency in many states to separate state and national issues, and to plump for a representation in Congress more evenly divided from each state. More Democrats are getting a show in upper New England, more Republicans in the South.

Some states took drastic steps Tuesday toward more or less drastic division of both state and national responsibility among the parties, many others gave it a nod.

Among these two groups were Vermont, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, Texas, Utah, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Colorado, Idaho, Florida, New York (where a Democrat outran the whole kit and caboodle of a host of returned Republicans for state office), Ohio, Kentucky, Wyoming, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Michigan.

The segreation fight's pressure on the one-party system was clearly apparent in some tough fights put up by Southern Republicans, some of them in spots where traditionally there is no fight at all.

The voters also flouted the tradition of major off-year losses for the predominant party in Congress.

President Kennedy's personally invested influence worked for some Democrats and not for others.

The voters in many places did not hesitate to overthrow officeholders whom they had previously supported.

The fight of urban voters to take their affairs out of the hands of rural nonsympathizers became almost a national movement, resulting primarily from Supreme Court encouragement.

More Negroes than ever were elected to Congress.

The voters are now doing in all matters what they have been doing, wittingly or unwittingly for years, by knocking out party lines in Congress. The vote does not even show a switch from Democratic and Republican labels to liberal and conservative labels.

It merely asserts a new free-swinging tendency among the people and a consciousness of their right to do as they damned well please within the geographical limits of one contest whatever they may do in another.

The original cost of the White House was defrayed from the sale of land in Virginia and Maryland.

Fined For Selling On Election Day

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 47-year-old maid was fined $100 and costs Wednesday for selling liquor on election day without a license.

A patrolman testified that when he purchased a pint of whisky from Mrs. Maggie White, she showed him a basement stocked with 48 pints of wine, 24 pints of sherry, 41 whisky miniatures and 13 other bottles of gin and whiskey.

However Mrs. White had a simple explanation for the ample store of liquor. She told the court she drank a lot.

Egypt's Nasser Alienates Most Of His Arab Allies

Little Neighbors Group Together In Common Hatred

LONDON (UPI)—Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser has managed to alienate almost all of his Arab allies, yet he is the strongest leader of them all and the rallying point for pan-Arabism.

Right now, it looks as if Nasser is working in absolutely another direction.

His "United Arab Republic" union with Syria is ruptured. He has walked out of the Arab league. Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia are talking about a union of their own—excluding Nasser's Egypt.

They are grouped together in a common hatred for Nasser and Nasserism. Still, even combined, they are no match for Egypt. The addition of Iraq, however, could tip the balance.

Iraq's participation in the projected new union would be necessary for it to become an effective anti-Nasser bloc, according to Arab experts here.

Dislikes Hussein Too

But, although Iraqi strongman General Abdel Karim Kassem is no bosom friend of Nasser, he bears more dislike for Jordan's King Hussein, whose cousin, the late King Feisal, was assassinated when the army rose to overthrow the Iraqi monarchy, in 1958.

Hussein's earlier contentions to the Iraqi throne, and his once-publicized threats that he would march on and "liberate" Baghdad, serve as a further obstacle for Kassem to join a pact to which Hussein would be a partner.

However, one of Kassem's most cherished desires is for Iraq and Syria to unite. The two countries have a common border and, together, they could emerge as a formidable Middle East force.

To realize this aim, Kassem may be persuaded to accept a union with the three anti-Nasser governments, in the view of some Arab experts.

Jordan and Saudi Arabia have already concluded agreements covering economic and military unity. Barring objections from ultra-nationalist Syrian army officers—who still look on Hussein as an "imperialist stooge"—Damascus reportedly would only be too willing to join such a pact.

Attempt To Isolate

The immediate aim of the emerging new Arab bloc is to cut off Nasser from the Asian part of the Middle East, with the distant goal of isolating the United Arab Republic from the rest of the Arab world.

The first step could be achieved as soon as the union takes final shape. Cairo's relations with Baghdad are at their worst; they do not even exchange ambassadors.

Only with Kuwait does Nasser maintain relations. But they are relations of interest and principle, rather than love. Still it is not that easy to isolate the UAR from the Arab world.

The UAR has strong relations with Morocco and Algeria. The three countries are members of the Casablanca charter and they take it seriously and devotedly. Libyan King Idriss, lavishing in his new oil wealth, would not wish to raise Nasser's ire, with his sprawling country right next door to the UAR. The Sudan would also prefer to maintain good relations with the UAR, with their common interests in Nile waters, irrigation schemes and trade.

India To Recall Troops With UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) Diplomatic circles speculated Wednesday that India will withdraw its troops from the Congo and Gaza early in 1963 if its border dispute with Communist China is not settled by then.

Twice in the last two days the Indian delegation has denied it intends to pull out its contingents serving with the United Nations in the Congo and the Middle East.

Diplomats concede that the Indian government will make no sudden or dramatic move to recall its troops. Latest figures available here show that the Indian contingent in the Congo totals 5,747 and that in Gaza 1,168, in each case the largest troop contribution of any country.

Informed sources expected that India will give acting secretary General Thant ample opportunity to make the necessary adjustment and, if possible, to build up the U.N. force from other nations.

A short wave radio message can be sent around the world on less power than it takes to operate an average-size flashlight.

Irish To Search Cuba-Bound Planes

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The Irish government said Wednesday it had ordered that all Cuba-bound aircraft passing through Shannon Airport be searched for arms and munitions because of the 1944 International Civil Aviation convention.

The convention forbids international flights to carry war equipment over foreign territory. Cuban and Czech airlines which have used Shannon on flights between Prague and Havana have suspended the flights.

Stock Transfer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Victor Muscat has made a move to settle his row with the management of American Hardware Corp. by purchasing more stock in the company.

In a letter to President David Muirhead of American Hardware, Muscat suggested that his Defiance Industries might exchange shares of National Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas for additional American Hardware stock.

Egypt's Nasser Alienates Most Of His Arab Allies

Little Neighbors Group Together In Common Hatred

LONDON (UPI)—Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser has managed to alienate almost all of his Arab allies, yet he is the strongest leader of them all and the rallying point for pan-Arabism.

Right now, it looks as if Nasser is working in absolutely another direction.

His "United Arab Republic" union with Syria is ruptured. He has walked out of the Arab league. Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia are talking about a union of their own—excluding Nasser's Egypt.

They are grouped together in a common hatred for Nasser and Nasserism. Still, even combined, they are no match for Egypt. The addition of Iraq, however, could tip the balance.

Iraq's participation in the projected new union would be necessary for it to become an effective anti-Nasser bloc, according to Arab experts here.

Dislikes Hussein Too

But, although Iraqi strongman General Abdel Karim Kassem is no bosom friend of Nasser, he bears more dislike for Jordan's King Hussein, whose cousin, the late King Feisal, was assassinated when the army rose to overthrow the Iraqi monarchy, in 1958.

Hussein's earlier contentions to the Iraqi throne, and his once-publicized threats that he would march on and "liberate" Baghdad, serve as a further obstacle for Kassem to join a pact to which Hussein would be a partner.

However, one of Kassem's most cherished desires is for Iraq and Syria to unite. The two countries have a common border and, together, they could emerge as a formidable Middle East force.

To realize this aim, Kassem may be persuaded to accept a union with the three anti-Nasser governments, in the view of some Arab experts.

Jordan and Saudi Arabia have already concluded agreements covering economic and military unity. Barring objections from ultra-nationalist Syrian army officers—who still look on Hussein as an "imperialist stooge"—Damascus reportedly would only be too willing to join such a pact.

Attempt To Isolate

The immediate aim of the emerging new Arab bloc is to cut off Nasser from the Asian part of the Middle East, with the distant goal of isolating the United Arab Republic from the rest of the Arab world.

The first step could be achieved as soon as the union takes final shape. Cairo's relations with Baghdad are at their worst; they do not even exchange ambassadors.

Only with Kuwait does Nasser maintain relations. But they are relations of interest and principle, rather than love. Still it is not that easy to isolate the UAR from the Arab world.

The UAR has strong relations with Morocco and Algeria. The three countries are members of the Casablanca charter and they take it seriously and devotedly. Libyan King Idriss, lavishing in his new oil wealth, would not wish to raise Nasser's ire, with his sprawling country right next door to the UAR. The Sudan would also prefer to maintain good relations with the UAR, with their common interests in Nile waters, irrigation schemes and trade.

India To Recall Troops With UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) Diplomatic circles speculated Wednesday that India will withdraw its troops from the Congo and Gaza early in 1963 if its border dispute with Communist China is not settled by then.

Twice in the last two days the Indian delegation has denied it intends to pull out its contingents serving with the United Nations in the Congo and the Middle East.

Diplomats concede that the Indian government will make no sudden or dramatic move to recall its troops. Latest figures available here show that the Indian contingent in the Congo totals 5,747 and that in Gaza 1,168, in each case the largest troop contribution of any country.

Informed sources expected that India will give acting secretary General Thant ample opportunity to make the necessary adjustment and, if possible, to build up the U.N. force from other nations.

A short wave radio message can be sent around the world on less power than it takes to operate an average-size flashlight.

Irish To Search Cuba-Bound Planes

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The Irish government said Wednesday it had ordered that all Cuba-bound aircraft passing through Shannon Airport be searched for arms and munitions because of the 1944 International Civil Aviation convention.

The convention forbids international flights to carry war equipment over foreign territory. Cuban and Czech airlines which have used Shannon on flights between Prague and Havana have suspended the flights.

Stock Transfer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Victor Muscat has made a move to settle his row with the management of American Hardware Corp. by purchasing more stock in the company.

In a letter to President David Muirhead of American Hardware, Muscat suggested that his Defiance Industries might exchange shares of National Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas for additional American Hardware stock.

"Our employees really appreciate their Credit Union. Over the years it has been a real benefit to the many, many persons who have participated in it. Local employees find it easier to save on a regular basis, and when they do need financial help, the Credit Union can provide a low-cost loan without the red tape required by some outside sources. I am very impressed by the way it handles its affairs. The local Credit Union is businesslike, self - supporting, and it provides a valuable service to our employees."

"The Local Credit Union . . . a valuable service to Our Employees."

In Maryland there are 197 credit unions with more than 162,000 members. Most of these credit unions are in places of employment. Employers have found through the years that credit unions improve workers' morale by relieving them of pressing financial problems. Credit union loans banish worry of bill collectors and garnishment actions. Credit union savings give employees a convenient way to save regularly with safety and good earnings. Employees do recognize the interest of the employer who co-operates in establishing a credit union.

Musical Most Likely To Be Success Flops

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK — It happens at least once every season. And no matter how long you've been around, you never really get used to it.

I refer to a new work by experienced, successful, respected writers that turns out to be not merely a miss — to which all are entitled now and then — but a real disaster.

That is the case with the libretto for "Mr. President," the new musical at the St. James Theater with an Irving Berlin score, which was written by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, the theater's most experienced and successful collaborators.

I should hasten to point out that the entire show is not quite a disaster, thanks to Berlin's score and the wonderful leading "Fair Lady" and other greats, might seem pallid stuff to the casual observer, but the experts know that the story is the heart of the successful musical these days.

Actually, it seems at times that "Mr. President" has no book at all. It deals with a fictional American president in his last few months of a second term and the ensuing retirement period. He has a wife, grown son and daughter.

There isn't an amusing or biting dialogue sequence in the whole show. Someone must have impersonated Lindsay and Crouse.

Which leaves us with a pleasant enough Berlin score, if not an arresting one. Of the 19 numbers he has written, I would say that about half will be in the public ken shortly. Songs such as "Let's Go Back to the Waltz," "In Our Hideaway," "The Secret Service," "Is He the Only Man in the World?," "They Love Me," "Pigtails and Freckles," "Don't Be Afraid of Romance," "Empty Pockets Filled With Love," "This Is A Great Country" and "The Washington Twist" the only "twist song" I've heard that is worth listening to.

Choreographer Peter Gennaro, incidentally, does a lot with "The Washington Twist" number, probably out of frustration because this isn't much of a dancing show otherwise.

Miss Fabray plays wife to the president, portrayed in personable but subdued fashion by Robert Ryan of the movies, and she gives the whole thing the sort of lift it should have throughout whenever she gets half a chance. She is, and always has been, one of the really good ones. It is nice to have her back after more than a decade, even in "Mr. President."

The average life of an automobile tire of today is approximately five times longer than it was 30 years ago.

The bidding:

1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠ Declarer's technique in today's hand suffered from a lack of the delicate touch. The bidding requires little comment except, perhaps, for North's call over partner's one no trump rebid. Altho he has only 10 points in high cards, the good six card diamond suit provides ample justification for an aggressive move. In fact, our vote would be for a jump directly to three no trump. There are many minimum holdings that partner might have which would virtually assure him of the ability to run nine tricks.

West opened his fourth best spade and declarer was able to win the trick with his own ten. There appeared to be nothing more to the hand than to develop North's diamond suit, so South led the five of diamonds at trick two. West followed with the deuce and the queen was played from dummy. Had East taken this trick, the contest would have been concluded then and there, for South when he subsequently regained the lead could establish the diamond suit by conceding a trick to East's jack. Declarer thus takes four diamonds, three hearts and three spades to score an overtrick.

East, however, refused to win the first diamond trick permitting dummy's queen to hold. South returned to his hand with a high spade to lead another diamond, but when East showed up with the ace declarer was out of business. He could not lead diamonds again from his own hand and North's only entry, the ace of hearts, would have to be used to knock out East's second diamond stopper. With a dead dummy on his hands, South succumbed to a two trick defeat.

Declarer disorganized his campaign at trick two when he played the high diamond from dummy. In order to preserve communication with the North hand, he must first concede a diamond trick cheaply to the opposition by permitting the six to ride. East will make his jack, however South still has a diamond left with which to establish the suit on the next round, and the carefully preserved ace of hearts provides eventual access to the dummy.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 26 and for the past year I've been dating a man 31 who works for the same company. Rex told me he was divorced before being transferred here. He spoke seriously of marriage.

I observed, however, that many weekends he was "occupied" and couldn't even telephone. When, after a company meeting, Rex avoided speaking to me in the presence of the executives, I became more suspicious than hurt.

I asked a close friend in personnel to check the records. When she told me the records showed Rex is still married the pieces fit together.

I confronted him with the fact at once and he became furious. He shouted, "Your investigation was an invasion of privacy. I never bothered to change the record. I considered marrying you but you've ruined the relationship for all time. Goodbye."

I believe him, Ann, and I'm broken-hearted. Was I justified in checking the records? Please tell me.

MARIANNE

DEAR MARIANNE: Dry your tears, Buttercup. This man sounds as flakey as mother's apple-pie crust. The lost weekends plus the drop-dead treatment in front of the executives adds up to a married man—not a divorced one.

If you had asked your friend to check on Rex's salary, I'd agree it was an invasion of privacy, but a man's marital status should be a matter of public record and not "private information"—unless, of course, he's trying to keep it private for obvious reasons.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About a year ago I had to admit my husband had lost all interest in me. I looked in the mirror and decided it was all my fault. I had put on a lot of weight and looked terrible. So I launched an intensive campaign to "re-interest" him. I dieted strenuously, lost almost 40 pounds, and had my hair restyled. I bought smart, new clothes and even got my teeth fixed. When old friends met me on the street they couldn't get over the change: My husband—well, he has yet to say one word.

I have a lovely home, nice children and a lot to be thankful for. My husband says he loves me but claims he's not the demonstrative type. I think I could fight another woman easier than I can fight his indifference. I'm 27 and he is 28, so he's not over the hill if that's what you're thinking. Help me, please.

INVISIBLE

DEAR INVISIBLE: I hate to resort to a cliche, but actions do speak louder than words. The measure of a man's devotion is not what he says but how he behaves.

Of course it's disappointing to work hard to please a guy and then have him just sit there like a clam with a broken hinge, but if that's his nature you can't change him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know this letter will never make the column but I had to write it anyway. This is for the benefit of kids who think their lives are ruined because a sister or brother got into trouble and spoiled the family name.

My older sister had a baby out of wedlock. The stories kept the town gossips plenty busy. My parents were heartbroken. I decided it would be my job to bring honor and respectability to our home.

I held my head up even though some of my friends told me they couldn't associate with me anymore. Parents' orders. I worked twice as hard in school as I ever had before and I became active in student government. My grades were tops and I was elected to office. I know now that my sister's mistake made a better person out of me.

TERRY LEE

DEAR T. L.: You've learned an important lesson: When life hands you a lemon, make lemonade.

Confidential to ALONE AND PENNILESS: Congratulations. You win the prize (a cut-glass fly-swatter). Yours was the one millionth phony letter with the same plot. Get lost.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Caribou Observed

GANDER, Nfld. (AP) — Nine adult caribou have been released on uninhabited Brunette Island, off Newfoundland's south coast, as part of a unique caribou transplanting program conducted by the wildlife branch of the Provincial Resources Department.

The caribou were captured in the interior of Newfoundland with the help of a drug-injecting dart. The department hopes they will thrive, providing scientific information about caribou breeding potential, migrating instincts, behavior, growth and survival.

W. Va. Election At A Glance

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—West Virginia election at-a-glance:

CONGRESS

Republican Arch A. Moore defeated veteran Cleveland M. Bailey in the key 1st District race. Democratic incumbents re-elected in the other four districts.

AMENDMENTS

All five proposed changes in the Constitution defeated overwhelmingly—liquor by the drink, successive terms for governors and sheriffs, House of Delegates apportionment and legislative agenda and eligibility.

SUPREME COURT

Democrat Fred H. Caplan defeated Republican Max DeBerry for six-year unexpired term.

LEGISLATURE

Republicans pick up two Senate seats in the 1st and 4th Districts to cut the Democratic margin to 23-9 and registered a net gain of seven seats in the House of Delegates.

CHARTER VOTES

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Take care of your teeth . . . they're as precious as jewels!

Neglect Your Teeth And Spoil Your Charm

Don't shudder when you hear that very sensible advice: "Brush your teeth after every meal." Obey it! Or what others see when you smile would be better kept hidden.

If you are susceptible to tooth decay, brush your teeth after between-meal snacks, too. Or at least rinse your mouth out with clear water.

Ask your dentist to show you how to give your teeth the best possible brushing. In general, brush down on the upper teeth, up on the lower teeth. Brush both the inner and outer surfaces. The grinding surfaces, too.

Tooth shades are determined by your natural complexion, so they vary with individuals. Think of your teeth as warm white, if they aren't pure white, and select your lipsticks accordingly. If teeth are a warm white, for example, a purple lipstick won't improve your beauty!

While a dark but healthy tooth cannot be bleached it can be lightened by cleaning. Tartar on teeth has a discoloring effect, for it picks up stains. This can be removed by your dentist or dental hygienist, who can also rid you of the unattractive stain which results from smoking.

So don't laugh, either, at that second familiar phrase, "See your dentist twice a year." In fact, you might see him more often, if your smile is to dazzle all who behold it.

If dental irregularities are the reason you seldom smile, you should know this: while adolescence is the best time for orthodontia (the science of correcting these irregularities), great improvement can be made at any age. And at any age, your diet should include fruits and vegetables high in vitamin C, and milk rich in calcium.

WANT TO GAIN WEIGHT? Lose it? Remain the same? Whatever your weight problem, YOUR BEAUTY DIET will show you the answer. Get your copy by sending just 10c and a stamped, return envelope to "Secrets of Charm," % this newspaper.

Rebel Resistance Handbill Directed At Jim Meredith

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)— A handbill labeled "rebel resistance" and urging ostracism of Negro James H. Meredith was circulated Wednesday on the University of Mississippi campus.

The handbill outlined a "strategy for the students at Oxford" and said Meredith "should be avoided for the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) leper that he is."

"Let no student speak to him and let his attempt to 'make friends' fall on cold, unfriendly faces," the handbill said.

It further urged students to "banish from their midst any white student" who accepts Meredith socially.

The leaflet purported to be a reprint of a personal letter from an unnamed "professor of English literature" to Elmore D. Graves, editor of the Gulf Coust Gazette.

"This is a war that can be won and it is a war over which the armed forces are powerless."

County Balance Is $1,438,697

County Treasurer James W. Bishop has submitted a report to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners which showed the county had a cash balance of $1,438,697.89 as of September 30.

Mr. Bishop's report indicated a June 30 cash balance of $2,418,998.91, quarterly receipts between July 1 and September 30 of $3,058,554.15 and disbursements of $4,038,858.17.

In addition to the cash balance the county also had $1,989,964.89 in certificates of deposit and U.S. Treasury bills on which the county collects interest. The report also listed $50,867.49 in outstanding taxes owed to Tax Collector William B. Orndorff.

Car Prices Rise

LONDON (UPI) — The factory price of British Ford passenger cars and commercial vehicles was increased by about 2 per cent Wednesday. Ford said increased labor and material costs caused the increases which went on all but the Anglia, Ford's largest selling British model.

Eddie Cantor Initiates Polio TV 'Special'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Eddie Cantor, 70 years old and ailing with heart disease, has initiated the most ambitious project of his life—a television show to raise $15 million in a single night.

The beloved banjo-eyed comedian, his speech slow and measured, said he hopes to kill off polio once and for all.

A longtime battler in the campaign against infantile paralysis, Eddie joined the fight at the behest of President Franklin D. Roosevelt back in 1937. Indeed, it was Cantor who coined the phrase "March of Dimes" and who helped it become one of the most successful charities.

Now the aging performer is determined that Dr. Jonas Salk will have a $15 million research center in La Jolla, Calif., where the famed developer of the Salk vaccine can continue his war on polio.

To do so, Eddie has received permission from all of televisions arts and craft unions to utilize any footage he desires from past video highlights. These he will put together under the title of "Something to Remember."

Has High Hopes

Eddie envisions a two-hour "special" with film clips of all-time television show-stoppers exemplified by the Mary Martin-Ethel Merman duets on a video spectacular 12 years ago.

Other memorable performances to be reshown include Bing Crosby and Perry Como, Judy Garland, Danny Kaye, Phil Silver and Dinah Shore, Polly Bergen's performance in "The Helen Morgan Story," Jack Benny's famed appearance with the Marquis Chimps, and Edie Adams' first one-girl show.

Each clip will run seven to 10 minutes.

"I don't believe I will appear on the show," Eddie said. "People forget that for the past 40 years I've devoted more work to charity than I have to show business.

"I have raised a billion dollars in that time, and that is what I'd like to have people remember me by."

Overcomes Loss

It was feared that the death of Ida Cantor last August would adversely affect her husband's health, but Eddie fought back from the grief and while he still is not robust, the old timer is putting all his energy into "Something to Remember."

With his friend Harry Maizlich he is prevailing on the three major networks, ABC, CBS and NBC to grant him the two hours in prime time (simultaneously) sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Well and good, but how does he propose the $15 million be sent in?

"I hope to secure permission from the Post Office department to have all the letter carriers on their rounds stop by all the houses on their routes the next day and ask the people to contribute.

"I'm sure all of America is anxious to contribute to this worthwhile project — an instiution to help Dr. Salk defeat polio entirely."

Close To Discovery

Cantor confided that a source close to the medical scientist said he is on the track of another vaccine to cure, "one of our greatest killer diseases.

"Im not free to say what it is," Cantor added.

Perhaps the most ambitious element of "Something to Remember" is Eddie's idea to open the show with President John F. Kennedy and Dr. Salk discussing the work Salk is planning in his new foundation.

He also plans to have the presidents of the 10 largest United States corporations appear to donate $100,000 each, thus simplifying the raising of the first million dollars.

Cantor grinned wryly and added: "I can only raise money in wholesale fashion. I'm not well enough to go around with a hat in my hand. There isn't that much time."

Employment Drops

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal civilian employment dropped in September, largely for seasonal reasons, the Joint Congressional Economy Committee reported Wednesday. The net decrease was 27,023 jobs below the August figure.

Civilian employment in September totaled 2,485,176. Inside the United States civilian employment decreased 28,975 and outside the country it increased 1,952.

Eddie Cantor Initiates Polio TV 'Special'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Eddie Cantor, 70 years old and ailing with heart disease, has initiated the most ambitious project of his life—a television show to raise $15 million in a single night.

The beloved banjo-eyed comedian, his speech slow and measured, said he hopes to kill off polio once and for all.

A longtime battler in the campaign against infantile paralysis, Eddie joined the fight at the behest of President Franklin D. Roosevelt back in 1937. Indeed, it was Cantor who coined the phrase "March of Dimes" and who helped it become one of the most successful charities.

Now the aging performer is determined that Dr. Jonas Salk will have a $15 million research center in La Jolla, Calif., where the famed developer of the Salk vaccine can continue his war on polio.

To do so, Eddie has received permission from all of televisions arts and craft unions to utilize any footage he desires from past video highlights. These he will put together under the title of "Something to Remember."

Has High Hopes

Eddie envisions a two-hour "special" with film clips of all-time television show-stoppers exemplified by the Mary Martin-Ethel Merman duets on a video spectacular 12 years ago.

Other memorable performances to be reshown include Bing Crosby and Perry Como, Judy Garland, Danny Kaye, Phil Silver and Dinah Shore, Polly Bergen's performance in "The Helen Morgan Story," Jack Benny's famed appearance with the Marquis Chimps, and Edie Adams' first one-girl show.

Each clip will run seven to 10 minutes.

"I don't believe I will appear on the show," Eddie said. "People forget that for the past 40 years I've devoted more work to charity than I have to show business.

"I have raised a billion dollars in that time, and that is what I'd like to have people remember me by."

Overcomes Loss

It was feared that the death of Ida Cantor last August would adversely affect her husband's health, but Eddie fought back from the grief and while he still is not robust, the old timer is putting all his energy into "Something to Remember."

With his friend Harry Maizlich he is prevailing on the three major networks, ABC, CBS and NBC to grant him the two hours in prime time (simultaneously) sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Well and good, but how does he propose the $15 million be sent in?

"I hope to secure permission from the Post Office department to have all the letter carriers on their rounds stop by all the houses on their routes the next day and ask the people to contribute.

"I'm sure all of America is anxious to contribute to this worthwhile project — an instiution to help Dr. Salk defeat polio entirely."

Close To Discovery

Cantor confided that a source close to the medical scientist said he is on the track of another vaccine to cure, "one of our greatest killer diseases.

"Im not free to say what it is," Cantor added.

Perhaps the most ambitious element of "Something to Remember" is Eddie's idea to open the show with President John F. Kennedy and Dr. Salk discussing the work Salk is planning in his new foundation.

He also plans to have the presidents of the 10 largest United States corporations appear to donate $100,000 each, thus simplifying the raising of the first million dollars.

Cantor grinned wryly and added: "I can only raise money in wholesale fashion. I'm not well enough to go around with a hat in my hand. There isn't that much time."

Employment Drops

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal civilian employment dropped in September, largely for seasonal reasons, the Joint Congressional Economy Committee reported Wednesday. The net decrease was 27,023 jobs below the August figure.

Civilian employment in September totaled 2,485,176. Inside the United States civilian employment decreased 28,975 and outside the country it increased 1,952.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—I wouldn't say out loud that Jack Warner was influenced by the Theatre Owners of America announcing that Suzanne Pleshette was America's most exciting new star. But Jack is starring Suzanne, Ty Hardin and Dorothy Provine in "Wall of Noise", in his first movement toward getting some new young talent on the motion picture screen.

You'll be hearing more about Peter Mann, exciting film newcomer, who has been chosen by George Stevens for the very important role of John the Apostle in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Mann, who clicked in his film debut in Frank Capra's "Pocketfull of Miracles," was put under contract by Universal, and George borrowed him from that studio.

In telling me about it, George said, "I firmly predict Peter will have a success equal to that of any top screen star."

Mann is athletically handsome, a native of New York City, and a graduate cum laude of Harvard. He has joined the Stevens company on location in Utah, and his assignment will keep him there until almost Christmas.

Who do you think Sir Winston Churchill, probably the world's greatest statesman, thinks would have ideally portrayed him as a young man? Errol Flynn!

This really throws me—Errol, the wild Irishman. But Brian Forbes, British film writer, says that Errol had the color, dash and enthusiasm that Sir Winston possessed when he was a young journalist just starting to make his mark in the world.

Incidentally, Churchill picked Forbes to write the screen version of his life for Paramount after he had seen "League of Gentlemen," Forbes' British movie.

Greer Garson writes me from her New Mexico ranch that she has accepted U Thant's invitation to appear before the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Greer's date in this austere company is Dec. 10 at which time, like Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Michael Redgrave the past two years, she will read the Declaration of Human Rights.

Writes Greer, "I feel greatly honored to have this opportunity. The U.N. is the hope of this wonderful, worried old world."

Deaths In Fire Probed

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI)—Ohio County Coroner Joseph A. O'Kane, Wednesday asked area law enforcement agencies to investigate further the deaths of a Wheeling mother and her three children, who apparently died in a fire Sept. 29.

O'Kane said Wednesday evidence will be turned over to the proper law enforcement officers for action in the deaths of Mrs. June Beckett, 31, her two sons, Joseph, 6, Duane, 3½, and her daughter Michelle, three weeks old.

The coroner made the statement following testimony gathered from witnesses by an Ohio County coroner's jury impaneled to determine whether the victims died as a result of a fire that swept the family home or if violence had been involved.

The jury ruled it did not feel qualified to render a verdict on injuries which caused the deaths of three of the four victims. The jury stated the deaths of Mrs. Beckett, Joseph and Michelle "were not caused as a direct result of the fire." The jury stated further that the fourth victim, Duane, died as a result of the blaze.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 181 Union forces moving south in 1862 took advantage of all opportunities to commandeer mules, for they had learned the Southern mule was superior to the horse as a work animal.

By cross-breeding of French and Spanish donkey jacks with thoroughbred horses at Mount Vernon, George Washington initiated a hardy stock adaptable to climates and other conditions in which horses and oxen broke down or were less energetic. Consequently, the mule was the common draft animal of tobacco, cotton and sugar plantations, canals, mines, lumber camps, railroad construction crews, treadmills. They were far more plentiful in the South than in the North, where the breed had been relatively neglected. Horses, too, were in short supply in the North after the Army's huge demands in 1861 and 1862.

So for several good reasons, Union forces rounded up mules for supply trains, artillery, ambulances. From the Civil War on the "Army mule" was proverbial.

Naturally, the mule went West with the Army, where managing a pack of mules was more than ever an education in patience, guile and tact. Mule-packing, that is, stowing a load on a mule so the mule couldn't dislodge it as a matter of general principle, demanded experience and exactitude if the regiment or company was to keep its extra rations and ammunition from being scattered over a trail.

Singer Leaves Bach For Folk Music

By PATRICK YOUNG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judy Collins does not regret her decision to substitute British folk music for the classics of Bach, Brahms and Beethoven.

The 23-year-old Electra recording artist planned originally on a career as a pianist and made her concert debut at 13 with the Denver Businessmen's Orchestra, playing Mozart.

But at 16, she dropped the piano and picked up the guitar.

"I was being pushed. I was tired. So, I quit," Miss Collins said. "Now I keep finding new things in every song I do. But I realize my background has helped my career and I plan to resume my piano studies soon."

Judy became a professional folk singer when the popularity of folk music spurred by groups like the Kingston Trio, swept it out of the archives and coffee houses and into American homes.

During an appearance in the nation's capital, she predicted an unlimited future for folk music.

Sees Promising Future

"I don't think it will decrease in popularity," she said. "No matter how much you water it down, it's impossible to give folk music the inanity of popular music.

"This music is going to become nostalgic. People will remember songs like 'John Henry,' 'Pastures of Plenty,' and 'Lemon Tree.' "

"You can find a musical and social challenge in folk music," she added. "There are people in the business who are really fine musicians. You don't have to be an unschooled, backcountry Virginian to sing it."

Judy, herself, favors the music of Great Britain, particularly the ballads, which she sings with mournful tenderness. She selects her music carefully to fit the audience's mood.

Her rise to popularity followed a year of performances in small Colorado night clubs. Her first professional appearance was at a college beer hall in Boulder, Colo., where her husband attended the university. She earned $100 a week.

Becomes A Regular

Then followed appearances in Denver, Central City and Aspen, before she hit the big time with a six-week engagement at Chicago's Gate of Horn. Since then, she became a regular at the "Gate" and appeared at New York's Bitter End, the Exodus in Denver and The Shadows here.

This spring she went international with a Canadian tour that took her to Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

Judy spends about two-thirds of her time with her husband, Peter Taylor, and their three-year-old son, Clark.

Home for the Taylors is Storrs, Conn., where Peter—a teaching fellow at the University of Connecticut—is working on his Ph. d. and writing a text book on dictionaries.

50 Million U.S. Homes Have Television Sets

NEW YORK (UPI) — There are now television sets in 50 million American homes, according to the latest survey by the Television Bureau of Advertising. This means that more than 91 per cent of the homes have sets. Total sets in use was estimated at 59 million.

Barbara Billingsley, who plays the mother of the two boys in the "Leave It to Beaver" series for ABC has two sons in real life, aged 18 and 26, just a few years older than the video offspring.

One of the dramatic series in preparation at the Revue studios in Hollywood is "Peace Corps," being made with cooperation of the federal organization of the same name. Daniel Mann, a top video and movie director, is preparing the package, which will be for next season.

In case you've been wondering how Jack Paar is faring with his new NBC hour, the national Neilson ratings in October showed him with 37.1 per cent of the television audience from 10 to 11 p.m. Fridays, well ahead of the opposition on the other two networks.

Arthur Godfrey will do a second one-hour special for the CBS network, to be shown at 8:30 p.m. next Feb. 1. It will be about New York, and the title, "Sounds of the City," is an accurate description of the content.

Danny Kaye, who has been confining his television work to one special a season, will go all out next season. He has signed with CBS to appear in a one-hour weekly comedy-variety series for 40 weeks.

Shrimp are found in all coastal states in the United States.

Leather Industries Research Discloses Interesting Story On Wearing Of Gloves

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gloves are believed to have been originated by the cave man who crawled around on his hands and knees quite a lot in the icy caves of yore and needed something to keep his hands warm. He also had similar coverings for his feet —and knees.

Gloves improved considerably over the years and by the time Shakespeare came along they were lacy and sometimes bejeweled. Queen Elizabeth I gave perfumed gloves to her favorites and one pair was trimmed in gold embroidery and fringed with gold plate.

The glove became a symbol of faith and affection as well as authority and if someone hurled down the gauntlet you were in trouble.

It was a man's glove world until the 16th century when women grew tired of cold hands and sewed some up for themselves. But they still had more significance to men and if a man fell into disgrace the authorities stripped off his ornaments and military belt, chopped off his spurs with a hatchet and yanked off the gloves

The Leather Industries of America which deals with belts, shoes — and gloves—for most of the major manufacturers is somewhat of an expert on the subject so we asked William Rapp of the department of information about glove wardrobes for men.

"A minimum wardrobe would consist of one pair of driving gloves of grained leather, lined either in wool or in fur, and a pair of dress gloves in capeskin," he said. "I would suggest that the color of the dress gloves be dark brown since this goes with most men's clothing. In a minimum wardrobe the driving gloves may double for casual wear, although I would suggest a pair of pigskin gloves for casual costumes.

"A maximum wardrobe would include the driving gloves, the casual gloves and the dark brown dress gloves as described above, plus a second pair of capeskin dress gloves in black and apair in grey. Also, a pair of grey mocha (suede) gloves for semi-formal occasion and a pair of white suede leather for formal occasions.

"I emphasize the driving gloves in all cases because a research study at the University of Cincinatti recently found that leather gloves on the wheel of a car provide three times as much grip as bare skin—certainly a safety factor under today's traffic conditions."

A little research (by the Leather Industries group) provided these other facts on gloves:

Capeskin is the skin of the South African hair-sheep (dis-sheep (distinguished from wool-bearing sheep) and is named after Cape Town. It has a tight close grain, enhancing its durability and attractiveness.

Pigskin does Not come from the domesticated hog. Pigskin leather is made from the skins of wild animals found in Central and South America. There are two types, Carpincho which is obtained from the water rodent of Argentina and Uruguay, and Peccary which comes from a Mexican wild boar.

Suede is not a leather but a fuzzy finish while Mocha is made from the skins of the hair-type sheep of Asia and Africa. It is finished on the grain side and has a supple, soft surface with a luxurious close nap—suede.

And if you want varieity there is Cabretta, Calfskin, Dogskin, Goatskin, Grain-deer, horsehide and kidskin and the following with suede-like finishes. buckskin, chamois, degrain or chrome suede, doeskin and reindeer.

Admiral Files Suits

CHICAGO—Admiral Corp. said it and a Canadian subsidiary have filed patent infringement suits against 10 American and Canadian companies. William S. Baltz, vice president and general counsel, said the firm is seeking a permanent injunction and "substantial monetary indemnity" from the companies.

If a man were to breath pure oxygen all of the time, he would die.

Cheese Has Romantic Past

By WILLIAM T. PLUNKETT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cheese is a food "with a romantic past."

Limburger, included? Well, the experts who wrote the romantic line did not leave that Belgian-born "appetizer" out of the report.

With the possible exception of butter, nutrition specialists find cheese has been in use for a longer time than any other food manufactured today.

Today's use of this age-old product goes all the way from a quick-luncher's cheeseburger to a gourmet's dessert of camembert.

The romantic story, the expert said, has come down as the legend of Kanana, a roving merchant who traveled across Asia centuries ago.

The story tellers relate Kanana put milk into a pouch made of the dried stomach of a sheep when he set out on a long day's journey across the desert. At nightfall, he stopped for a drink of milk, only to find a thin, watery liquid poured out of the pouch.

Curious, he opened the canteen and discovered there a mass of white curd with a delicate flavor.

Pianist Van Cliburn May Alter Career Drastically

By ROBERTA C. SCHWARTZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Famed pianist Van Cliburn plans to alter his career drastically and turn to another form of musical expression. But the 28-year-old virtuoso says he'll remain a pianist for at least the next 52 years.

"I would like to be a conductor and tour when I'm 80," Cliburn said recently.

He made his directing debut last year when he both conducted and played Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto. His interest in conducting has grown since then.

After a performance, the personable young pianist enjoys autographing albums for fans, giving tips to young music students and meeting some of their teachers. He often asks the youngsters questions about their studies and what music they enjoy playing most.

Winner of the first Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow in 1958, Cliburn candidly admits he prefers opera to the piano and calls it his "favorite form of music." "When I was a small child I always wanted to be a Metropolitan Opera star," he recalls. "The two roles I consider most fabulous are Don Giovanni and Boris Godounov."

In those days Cliburn found opera singers "more glamorous than any movie star." But he said his own experience is limited to singing the bass part in his home town church choir.

He is equally candid about his method of selecting his repertoire.

"I don't play anything I don't like," Cliburn says, "if I like something I will try to play it and I know I will go further that way."

The Texas born pianist, who stands six-foot-four, says he feels most at home in large concert halls constructed in the "grand manner."

"The United States is blessed with a lot of beautiful halls . . . good halls. They were made in years when you could use a lot of wood."

This, he said, makes them acoustically sound. His favorites are New York's Carnegie Hall and Constitution Hall in Washington, D. C.

Leather Industries Research Discloses Interesting Story On Wearing Of Gloves

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gloves are believed to have been originated by the cave man who crawled around on his hands and knees quite a lot in the icy caves of yore and needed something to keep his hands warm. He also had similar coverings for his feet —and knees.

Gloves improved considerably over the years and by the time Shakespeare came along they were lacy and sometimes bejeweled. Queen Elizabeth I gave perfumed gloves to her favorites and one pair was trimmed in gold embroidery and fringed with gold plate.

The glove became a symbol of faith and affection as well as authority and if someone hurled down the gauntlet you were in trouble.

It was a man's glove world until the 16th century when women grew tired of cold hands and sewed some up for themselves. But they still had more significance to men and if a man fell into disgrace the authorities stripped off his ornaments and military belt, chopped off his spurs with a hatchet and yanked off the gloves

The Leather Industries of America which deals with belts, shoes — and gloves—for most of the major manufacturers is somewhat of an expert on the subject so we asked William Rapp of the department of information about glove wardrobes for men.

"A minimum wardrobe would consist of one pair of driving gloves of grained leather, lined either in wool or in fur, and a pair of dress gloves in capeskin," he said. "I would suggest that the color of the dress gloves be dark brown since this goes with most men's clothing. In a minimum wardrobe the driving gloves may double for casual wear, although I would suggest a pair of pigskin gloves for casual costumes.

"A maximum wardrobe would include the driving gloves, the casual gloves and the dark brown dress gloves as described above, plus a second pair of capeskin dress gloves in black and apair in grey. Also, a pair of grey mocha (suede) gloves for semi-formal occasion and a pair of white suede leather for formal occasions.

"I emphasize the driving gloves in all cases because a research study at the University of Cincinatti recently found that leather gloves on the wheel of a car provide three times as much grip as bare skin—certainly a safety factor under today's traffic conditions."

A little research (by the Leather Industries group) provided these other facts on gloves:

Capeskin is the skin of the South African hair-sheep (dissheep (distinguished from wool-bearing sheep) and is named after Cape Town. It has a tight close grain, enhancing its durability and attractiveness.

Pigskin does Not come from the domesticated hog. Pigskin leather is made from the skins of wild animals found in Central and South America. There are two types, Carpincho which is obtained from the water rodent of Argentina and Uruguay, and Peccary which comes from a Mexican wild boar.

Suede is not a leather but a fuzzy finish while Mocha is made from the skins of the hair-type sheep of Asia and Africa. It is finished on the grain side and has a supple, soft surface with a luxurious close nap—suede.

And if you want varieity there is Cabretta, Calfskin, Dogskin, Goatskin, Grain-deer, horsehide and kidskin and the following with suede-like finishes, buckskin, chamois, degrain or chrome suede, doeskin and reindeer.

Admiral Files Suits

CHICAGO—Admiral Corp. said it and a Canadian subsidiary have filed patent infringement suits against 10 American and Canadian companies. William S. Baltz, vice president and general counsel, said the firm is seeking a permanent injunction and "substantial monetary indemnity" from the companies.

Cheese Has Romantic Past

By WILLIAM T. PLUNKETT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cheese is a food "with a romantic past."

Limburger, included? Well, the experts who wrote the romantic line did not leave that Belgian-born "appetizer" out of the report.

With the possible exception of butter, nutrition specialists find cheese has been in use for a longer time than any other food manufactured today.

Today's use of this age-old product goes all the way from a quick-luncher's cheeseburger to a gourmet's dessert of camembert.

The romantic story, the expert said, has come down as the legend of Kanana, a roving merchant who traveled across Asia centuries ago.

The story tellers relate Kanana put milk into a pouch made of the dried stomach of a sheep when he set out on a long day's journey across the desert. At nightfall, he stopped for a drink of milk, only to find a thin, watery liquid poured out of the pouch.

Curious, he opened the canteen and discovered there a mass of white curd with a delicate flavor.

Counselors Push Plans For Career Day

Guidance counselors from Allegany County public schools met with Jack A. Petry, county supervisor of high schools, to complete plans for the "Career Day" to be held for juniors and seniors at Allegany High School starting at 1:15 p. m., next Monday, November 12.

"Career Day" will highlight the second official day of American Education Week.

Juniors and seniors of the eight public high schools of the county were asked to make their choices among 40 possible careers. Among other things the guidance counselors found that 216 were interested in becoming secretaries.

Other careers which interested comparatively large numbers of students included teaching, 183; beauticians, 181; nurses, 141; engineers, 115, state and local policemen, 66, and medical doctors, 40.

Guidance counselors from four different schools have assumed responsibility for getting consultants on 10 careers each. Allegany High School will get consultants for the positions as accountant, air line hostess, artist, beauticians, biologist, bookkeeper, business administrator, carpenter, chemist and office clerk.

Careers on which Fort Hill will obtain counselors are sales clerk, contractor, interior decorator, dentist, doctor of medicine, truck driver, electrician, electronics, engineer and forestry.

Valley High School will get counselors for careers as housewives, journalism, lawyer, machine operator, mathematician, mechanic, medical secretary, minister, model and musician.

Counselors will be obtained by Beall High School for nurse, pharmacist, policeman, state and local; salesman, secretary, social worker, teacher, telephone operator, waitress and draftsman.

Wimer, both Fort Hill; Ronald Sheally, Oldtown; Mrs. Catherine M. McGiboney, Bruce; Raymond R. Pomeroy, Mt. Savage, and James D. Preaskorn, Valley. Mrs. Margaret S. Will Korea Ever Be Reunified?

Let's take our mind off Cuba for a minute or two to remember Korea. Russia triggered the Korean War, confident that she could make all Korea her satellite.

With the United States supplying huge armaments and complements of men, and a dozen other nations aiding with men and arms, Allied forces fought the war to a stalemate. But Korea is no more united than Germany is. Red China, of course, supplied most of the troops for the Communists.

Now the Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea has reported again. It says that North Korea pretends to be for reunification, but its reunification proposals never refer to free elections or any other "means for assuring a genuinely free choice for the people of Korea."

In fact, North Korea refuses to negotiate, even on its own terms, until "all foreign troops" are withdrawn. The report doesn't say this, but if foreign troops were withdrawn, North Korea would no more bother to negotiate than it did in 1950 when exactly that situation prevailed.

Russia has been urging the UN to vote for removing foreign troops from Korea. Of course.

Leaks And Censorship

Arthur Sylvester, who handles news for the Pentagon, ought to know better. He is a former newspaperman, having worked on the Newark (New Jersey) "Evening News". Whether this is sufficient experience for him to "manage" the news of the nation is doubtful. However, he does apparently believe in "managed news" which, in understandable English, is faking the news.

The problem is not quite as simple as stated. The Pentagon has for many years leaked like a sieve. Both military and civilian officials, desirous of space in the great metropolitan press or in the weekly magazines, leak stories which indirectly bring them favorable publicity. It has too long been a belief that these large metropolitan newspapers can make or break a man. This has become a form of blackmail to which public officials ought not to be subjected. The role of Herbert Matthews of the "New York Times" and other reporters with regard to Cuba could justly be investigated without violating the First Amendment to the Constitution.

On the other hand, when Arthur Sylvester talks about "managed news," he shows such ignorance of the history of the press in the United States and the struggle of the press to remain free — that is free from government supervision and censorship — as to be unsuitable for the position he holds.

In nearly half a century of association with the press, I have never been lied to by a public official, although I have, on occasion, been refused information or given confidences which I could not use, often to discover that the confidence was in the public domain. Also, I have never been to a press conference, a briefing, or anything of that kind. These are futile activities. News should not be gathered by a wolf pack; it is an individual task, accomplished only by hard work and ingenuity.

A news official, such as Arthur Sylvester is, no matter what his title, ought to be a man of the widest scope and understanding of the purposes of the American press, which is to serve the reader, that is, the American people. A newspaper that forgets who its customers are, soon loses its business. The customers are not public officials but those who buy one copy of the newspaper each day. These customers are entitled to news and comment, honestly prepared and honestly written. There are bound to be differences of opinion and experience by those who comment on the news. Nobody, in our country, is so wise or so experienced that only his view should prevail.

Managed news is fakery. It is slanting the news. It is treating the American people as though they were children. It has always been tried by officials. It has always been resisted by conscientious newsmen. President Roosevelt was a master at creating a news atmosphere behind which he hid his doings, but his press secretary, Steve Early, an experienced newsman, often protected his chief from his over-cleverness.

A public official is entitled to protect himself against prejudiced and untruthful reporting. But he is not justified in lying. He can reject an inquiry as being harmful to the country and the reporter may so report. For instance, clamping down on magazines which published photographs and blueprints is not the whole story. Who gave them the photographs and blueprints? Why not first clamp down on unwarranted publicity-seekers?

In two wars, the press co-operated with public officials. For instance, not one word was printed about the Manhattan Project, although much was known about it. It was not the press that made it possible for the Russians to steal the atom bomb and the proximity fuse and other American military secrets. It was careless and subversive military officials and civilian employes of the government. It was not the press that failed to tell all the sides of the Cuban situation; it was State Department officials who "managed the news."

The press does protect the American people against censorship and slanted reporting. That protection is in independent reporting and by competition among newspapermen. There is a stern method of handling public officials who want to "manage the news"; that is, to boycott them, their press conferences and their briefings. It would not take long for their superiors to discover what happens in a free country to a public official and a government department which regards news as a weapon. We have no "Pravda" in this country.

Red Chinese Attack On Tito Adds To Communist World Dissension

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—In view of increasing dissension reported inside the Communist world, it is important to study a recent blast delivered by the Chinese Reds against Marshal Tito of Yugoslava as a result of an interview Tito gave me on his Adriatic summer island, Brioni, last August.

The Chinese Reds apparently waited some time to get a full copy of this interview and have been boiling over it ever since. Finally they launched a 5,000-word blast against Tito—and indirectly me—in an editorial in the People's Daily of Peking. The editorial was then broadcast over the Peking radio and was picked up by U. S. monitoring services from whom I obtained a copy.

What it says about Tito is worse than what Congressman Otto Passman of Louisiana, or H. Carl Anderson of Minnesota, or various presidents have said about me.

"Tito gave a long interview to American correspondent, Drew Pearson," says the Chinese editorial. "U. S. monopoly capital attaches much importance to this interview and published it in 250 U. S. newspapers. (Actually around 600 papers.)

"In his interview with Pearson, this renegade Tito has taken another step 'forward.' He openly advertised the need to effect the 'economic integration' and 'political integration' of the world, and asked his master, U. S. imperialism, to use 'economic and democratic methods' to cope with certain infiltration or aggression in a broad sense by Communism."

Note—This should be interesting to Rep. Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.), who as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee went out of his way to kill the long-standing trade treaty between the United States and Yugoslavia giving it most-favored nation treatment. President Kennedy had urged Mills not to do this, on the ground that Yugoslavia was leaning our way but Mills ignored the President's advice. As a result, Yugoslavia now is seeking closer trade ties with Moscow.

"Revisionists"—"Renegades"

The worst word you can call anyone in the Communist world is a "revisionist." This means that you have revised the creed of Karl Marx. Khrushchev has been called a revisionist by Chinese leaders because he has urged a doctrine of coexistence instead of the inevitability of war between capitalism and Communism.

Here is the vitriolic poison the Red Chinese poured into their press and onto their airwaves against "revisionist" Tito.

"The interview with Pearson glaringly shows up the features of the modern revisionists of Yugoslavia as renegades. By its words and deeds the Tito group proves to the world how degraded modern revisionists have become and how much more degraded they will become in the future."

Then after calling the roll of Trotsky and other "old renegades of the International Workers' Movement," the Chinese People's World continues:

"The Tito group propagated its modern revisionist views centering on the question of war and peace. In the interview with Pearson, Tito not only did not expose the real enemy of war and peace, but on the contrary defended U. S. imperialism.

"Tito held that the danger of war exists at present merely because 'everybody' is 'armed to the teeth' and because military circles have influenced the U. S. and Soviet governments."

Army Influence

Actually what Tito told me was that the Red Army had an important influence on Khrushchev just as military men, he said, have an influence on governments in most countries.

"Tito tries to make people believe that only 'wise men' are needed to bring about world peace," continued the Red Chinese diatribe. "According to him, 'wise men' would not entertain the thought of war. In Tito's eyes, U. S. imperialist leaders, such as Kennedy are 'wise men.'"

What Tito actually told me was that Kennedy and Khrushchev should meet frequently, not just when a crisis developed. He contended that when two sensible men met frequently they could adjust all problems between the world's two most powerful nations.

But according to the Red Chinese editorial: "It is precisely what these unscientific absurdities that renegades attempt in vain to negate completely the Marxist-Leninist scientific analysis of imperialism, to deny that imperialism is the source of war in modern times and that U. S. imperialism is the enemy of world peace.

"They try by such means to lull the vigilance of the people, to shield such acts of aggression of U. S. imperialism, and to give an even freer hand to prepare for the unleashing of a new world war."

These are only some of the highlights of the 5,000-word blast at the head of an important Communist country — a blast which indicates the upheaval now taking place inside the Communist world.

Time To Tell Truth About Missiles In Cuba

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Now that the election campaign is over, the American people are entitled to know the truth about the missile build-up in Cuba — how closely they came to being the victims of a nuclear attack and another "Pearl Harbor." Is it possible that the United States didn't have reliable intelligence and had to wait for aerial photography, which can often be frustrated by weather conditions?

All the facts have not as yet been disclosed, but the facts that are available put the Administratin in a position of having taken grave chances with the security of the United States. A case of sheer negligence, if not incompetence, can be made out, and that's why, in fairness to the Administration, any facts available that can convincingly rebut such inferences should be revealed.

The American people are partly responsible for the dilemma. They countenance changes in key personnel at the top in national defense and security when there is a political change of Administration. Continuity in certain posts is imperative in an era of crisis, especially in a nuclear age.

A factual analysis of what happened could show that the United States government really had the facts, but that President Kennedy and his group of advisers did not evaluate them correctly. It is doubtful whether any military man in the group failed to size up accurately what was happening. The lesson — unwittingly revealed before NBC's TV panel, "Meet The Press," last Sunday—was expressed by T. C. Sorensen, one of the small group that sits in with the President in many a confidential discussion of public policy. Mr. Sorensen said:

"I think the experience of the last two or three weeks has taught us a great deal about operations inside the government — individuals, their way of thinking, institutions and departments, their way of operation."

This is a costly way of teaching government to an inexperienced administration.

The New York "Times" last Saturday published two full pages of detail about the missile build-up in Cuba as gathered by nine reporters and researchers. Even this narrative, which is unofficial, is surprising in what it discloses. It says in part:

"The Soviet military build-up in Cuba started in the second half of July. At that time American intelligence sources reported suspicious movements of Soviet ships apparently laden with war materiel destined for Cuba.

"All through August, according to intelligence reports, the build-up continued. More than 30 ships unloaded 2,000 Soviet technicians and instructors and such war materiel as surface-to-air missiles, patrol boats with missiles and MIG-21 fighters."

It was on September 4 when President Kennedy said publicly that, as far as was known, the Soviet arms in Cuba were "defensive." The "Times" story continues:

"Within the Administration the possibility that some of the build-up was offensive was not being overlooked. The intelligence community — the Central Intelligence Agency, military intelligence and others — specifically raised the question whether there might be surface-to-surface missiles in Cuba with nuclear warheads. . . .

"As a result of the persistent reports and intelligence concern, President Kennedy approved an order — apparently at the beginning of September — that the entire island of Cuba be photographed."

Did the government of the United States really have to wait for aerial photographs before ordering a blockade and taking defensive measures against possible nuclear attack from a base only 90 miles away?

The only conclusion that can be drawn is that the Administration took a chance and preferred to wait for the aerial photographs. Bad weather did interfere, and not until the night of October 15 was the photographic confirmation in hand. It was given to the President the first thing the following morning. Senator Kenneth Keating of New York, Republican, said in the Senate on October 10 that he had confirmed reports about the intermediate-range missile bases under construction in Cuba. These are plainly offensive in character.

But during the seven days from Tuesday, October 16, through Monday, October 22, the United States government did not take any action against Cuban bases, as any military man would have advised. The President refrained also from making any protest to the Soviet government. In those seven days, the Soviets could have attacked many American cities from Cuba.

Thanks to Khrushchev, the episode has thus far turned out all right, but do not the hazards encountered teach a lesson?

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigated the flight of a U-2 plane over Russia in May 1960, and blamed President Eisenhower for telling the truth about it and particularly for using the planes at that time. Maybe, as a consequence, the theory has been accepted that the truth must not be revealed to the American people.

What really happened between mid-July and October 22, and who was to blame for the risk taken? Why were U-2 flights over Cuba suspended for a long time? Why was the naval blockade held up for a month while the Russians were unloading their missiles and planes? Congress alone can bring out the truth.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CHANGING TIME — Nearly a quarter of a century ago, Henry A. Wallace, then secretary of Agriculture, wrote a book titled "60 Million Jobs." It was roundly denounced as being visionary, unrealistic, and the product of an impractical idealist.

Rep. Tom Curtis, a Missouri Republican, has just published a book of his own. The title: "87 Million Jobs." Curtis, in his tome, believes that with a dynamic program to attack unemployment the goal set forth in his title can be achieved.

When Curtis' book came out, there was nary an utterance from anyone about being visionary, unrealistic or impractically idealistic. In fact, Curtis' book didn't make much of a ripple at all in the publishing world.

Currently, total employment stands at 67 million, with about another four million unemployed, and, under proper economic conditions, still another three of rour million in the employable pool.

BREATHE EASIER — Washington has just completed observance of "Cleaner Air Week," but city officials insist it had nothing to do with the fact that Congress has just quit for the year.

As a part of the observance, there were reports on air pollution problems throughout the country. Again, the city fathers insist these reports were not connected with the country-wide campaigning now that is winding up in preparation for the Nov. 6 elections.

Falling Leaves

By John Crosby

PARIS

It's fall in Paris and the leaves are turning yellow-gold on the Champs-Elysees, a subtle counterpoint to the honey color of the newly-washed Crillon in the newly-washed Place de la Concorde. The Rond-Point is still ablaze with flowers lifting their yellow and scarlet faces to the blue sky reflected in the silver fountains.

In weather like this one must walk to work, and I launch myself down the Rue de Tournon, turning my back on the Luxembourg Palace, still black with grime because they haven't cleaned it yet, but decked with flags because the French Senate meets there. (Though what the French Senate does there I'm not at all clear about, and I don't think the French are, either.)

A French grandmother dressed in black from head to toe is passing my hotel, dragged by a little boy who is waggling his finger at grand'mere and saying she must walk a little faster. These Frenchmen, I think, begin to dominate their women at an early age. He must be all of six.

At the corner, there's a little fruit stand where the vendeur arranges his fall flowers and brown leaves on the sidewalk so as to make a sort of bouquet to set off the lovely winding gray walls of the Rue des Quatre Vents. It would be a shame to buy any, because it would spoil the symmetry of his arrangement. At his stand, a girl is inspecting a green pear, gravely, as if it were an emerald, at her side a perambulator in which a baby sleeps, encased in vegetables, clutching in his little fist a bunch of radishes that turn their red and white bottoms gaily to the sky.

Across the narrow street — you can almost reach across with your arm — a girl in a blue smock sits on a stepladder wiping yesterday's prices off the plate glass window of the charcuterie and writing down today's prices. She writes in white chalk with a beautiful flourish, her dashing 1's and superbly-formed s's, a work of art like the arrangement of brown leaves across the street, contributing her miniscule morsel to the beauty of Paris. (Haussmann provided only the frame for Paris, the setting. Paris is 8 million Frenchmen, each contributing a little something — a spray of violets on a balcony, the arrangements of fruits in a wicker basket, sometimes just a flashing smile.)

At the foot of the stepladder, an aged balayeur is sweeping the gutter carefully with a broom made of sticks. Then he opens the main and fresh water from the Seine gushes into the gutter, sweeping the fall leaves down the drain. The man who owns the charcuterie comes out of his little shop and they shake hands, the balayeur and the charcutier, and discuss, first, the weather, then the crisis. (They do this every morning. Fortunately, there's always weather. And always a crisis.)

I go down the street, which has now turned itself from the Rue de Tournon into the Rue de Seine, though it's the same street. And an old fellow is feeding the pigeons. A taxi pulls up and the taxi driver pokes his head out and says: "That red one is new." (They observe everything, the taxi drivers.) The old fellow and the taxi driver regard the reddish pigeon, a little smaller than the others. "Look how he struts," says the taxi driver. "He must be from the Basque country."

The little sidewalk cafe, le Saint Claude, is empty except for a huge beared man, had on head, wrapped in scarves, who is writing a letter. He must have just got off a good one because suddenly he chuckles, picks up his letter, reads his own words appreciatively, shaking his beard, his eyes sparkling with laughter. There's nothing quite so heartwarming as an author appreciating his own work. At the curb are two gendarmes writing out tickets for the cars that have overstayed their welcome and they too are appreciating their work.

I turn right at the Deux Magots and strike off down Rue Bonaparte to the Seine where I walk past the bookstalls where they will sell you books describing the varieties of love, past the French Academy where the Immortals are struggling with the letter C, past a boy and a girl leaning against the stone embankment kissing as if there were no tomorrow. (And who knows? Maybe there won't be.) A barge marches gravely down the Seine, its planking gleaming in the sunshine. (This is the only place where they polish the barges like cup defenders.)

I walk across the Pont Alexandre III whose lovely baroque curves soothe and gladden my heart, thence right again and down the Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt, who used to break the heart of the Republicans every election day, and finally a brisk left turn on the Champs Elysees, which this day is decked with Finnish flags because we are welcoming President Kekkonnen. I pause at the newsstand to watch a Frenchman buy a French paper with blazing headline: "Demoiselles Par Telephone" — an expose of the American call-girl industry. (Ooo, you naughty Americans!)

Finally I turn down the Rue de Berri. A young Frenchman is striding up the street as if he owns the world, smiling at every girl, with a lilt in his step and joy in his heart, because he's young, because he's French, because he's in Paris, because he's alive.

Wonder Drugs Change Approach To Pneumonia

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Pneumonia was one of the great killers prior to the discovery of the sulfonamides and penicillin. One in three patients died and the survivors had an experience they never forgot. The disease was almost like a death sentence when it attacked the very young and old.

The wonder drugs changed our approach to the condition. We no longer refer to it as lobar or bronchial pneumonia but as infectious pneumonia. This is done because the lung condition is caused by a variety of micro-organisms, mainly bacteria and viruses.

It is important to know the exact offender because the proper antibiotic must be pitted against the causative agent. The drug that works best against a pneumococcal pneumonia may be of no value when staphylococci or other bacteria are responsible. Unless laboratory tests are done to uncover the culprit, the illness may be prolonged and recovery endangered. These tests are standard procedures, inexpensive, and easy to do.

The situation is different with viral pneumonia, which does not respond to antibiotic therapy. Most victims are not seriously ill and spontaneous recovery can be expected. The wonder drugs may be needed should complications occur or secondary invaders take over.

Most bacterial pneumonias begin with cough and the victim usually brings up purulent sputum, often blood-tinged. The pulse is rapid and the temperature may be high. The response is favorable and prompt recovery is the rule, provided sputum tests are positive for germs that are susceptible for antibiotics.

In viral pneumonia, the cough is dry and irritating; the sufferer complains of headache, muscular aching, and weakness. The temperature goes up more slowly and usually remains elevated five to seven days. Sputum cultures are negative and recovery comes gradually regardless of whether drugs are used. There is no specific remedy.

SINUS DRAINAGE

L. H. writes: Is there such a thing as a dry sinus? My doctor says I have sinus infection but there isn't much drainage.

REPLY

The lining of a healthy sinus should be moist and the opening large enough to allow air to enter and leave. The moisture stems from a thin layer of mucus and the slight secretion of this clear liquid is not noticeable. A thicker drainage is abnormal.

QUICKIE WEIGHT LOSS

J. R. writes: Please explain a crash diet.

REPLY

This term refers to a starvation or lopsided diet aimed at reducing a few pounds in a short time. The main objection to this type of diet is that it is a temporary stopgap and does nothing to encourage good eating habits that mean permanent slimness.

PERFORATED ULCER

F. I. writes: How long can a person have an ulcer of the duodenum before it ruptures?

REPLY

There is no set time in that some ulcers of long standing never do so. Others make their debut by perforating or bleeding. In general, the chances are less when the lesion is treated promptly.

MEDICAL CARE

M.T.B. writes: At what periods of life does the average man have the greatest need for the services of a physician?

REPLY

Before 10 and after 50. However, if more persons were under a physician's care before 50, they might need less medical attention in later decades.

TOMORROW: Painful feet.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A newlywed Dayton reporter proudly remembered his mother-in-law's birthday and wired her, "Congratulations, mother mine. And may you have 100 more birthdays." Her frigid demeanor —and his wife's, too—when he got home baffled him until he got a look at the telegram.

Western Union had left the two zeros off the 100.

A prosperous Iowa farmer pointed out that his Maine host had more rocks to contend with in his small patch than he encountered in a farm fifty times as large. "Where do they come from?" he pondered. A bit nettled, the Maine man explained, "They say the great glacier brought 'em." "And where," nodded the Iowan, "is that glacier now?" The Maine man snapped, "It's gone back for more rocks."

QUOTABLE QUOTES:

LESSING: "A man who does not lose his reason over certain things has none to lose."

SANTAYANA: "There is no cure for birth and death save to enjoy the interval."

LAURENCE STERNE'S IMMORTAL SQUELCH OF A CHRONIC PEST: "I regard you with an indifference closely bordering on aversion."

With the United States supplying huge armaments and complements of men, and a dozen other nations aiding with men and arms, Allied forces fought the war to a stalemate. But Korea is no more united than Germany is. Red China, of course, supplied most of the troops for the Communists.

Now the Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea has reported again. It says that North Korea pretends to be for reunification, but its reunification proposals never refer to free elections or any other "means for assuring a genuinely free choice for the people of Korea."

In fact, North Korea refuses to negotiate, even on its own terms, until "all foreign troops" are withdrawn. The report doesn't say this, but if foreign troops were withdrawn, North Korea would no more bother to negotiate than it did in 1950 when exactly that situation prevailed.

Russia has been urging the UN to vote for removing foreign troops from Korea. Of course.

Red Chinese Attack On Tito Adds To Communist World Dissension

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—In view of increasing dissension reported inside the Communist world, it is important to study a recent blast delivered by the Chinese Reds against Marshal Tito of Yugoslava as a result of an interview Tito gave me on his Adriatic summer island, Brioni, last August.

The Chinese Reds apparently waited some time to get a full copy of this interview and have been boiling over it ever since. Finally they launched a 5,000-word blast against Tito—and indirectly me—in an editorial in the People's Daily of Peking. The editorial was then broadcast over the Peking radio and was picked up by U. S. monitoring services from whom I obtained a copy.

What it says about Tito is worse than what Congressman Otto Passman of Louisiana, or H. Carl Anderson of Minnesota, or various presidents have said about me.

"Tito gave a long interview to American correspondent, Drew Pearson," says the Chinese editorial. "U. S. monopoly capital attaches much importance to this interview and published it in 250 U. S. newspapers. (Actually around 600 papers.)

"In his interview with Pearson, this renegade Tito has taken another step 'forward.' He openly advertised the need to effect the 'economic integration' and 'political integration' of the world, and asked his master, U. S. imperialism, to use 'economic and democratic methods' to cope with certain infiltration or aggression in a broad sense by Communism."

Note—This should be interesting to Rep. Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.), who as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee went out of his way to kill the long-standing trade treaty between the United States and Yugoslavia giving it most-favored nation treatment. President Kennedy had urged Mills not to do this, on the ground that Yugoslavia was leaning our way but Mills ignored the President's advice. As a result, Yugoslavia now is seeking closer trade ties with Moscow.

"Revisionists"—"Renegades"

The worst word you can call anyone in the Communist world is a "revisionist." This means that you have revised the creed of Karl Marx. Khrushchev has been called a revisionist by Chinese leaders because he has urged a doctrine of coexistence instead of the inevitability of war between capitalism and Communism.

Here is the vitriolic poison the Red Chinese poured into their press and onto their airwaves against "revisionist" Tito.

"The interview with Pearson glaringly shows up the features of the modern revisionists of Yugoslavia as renegades. By its words and deeds the Tito group proves to the world how degraded modern revisionists have become and how much more degraded they will become in the future."

Then after calling the roll of Trotsky and other "old renegades of the International Workers' Movement," the Chinese People's World continues:

"The Tito group propagated its modern revisionist views centering on the question of war and peace. In the interview with Pearson, Tito not only did not expose the real enemy of war and peace, but on the contrary defended U. S. imperialism.

"Tito held that the danger of war exists at present merely because 'everybody' is 'armed to the teeth' and because military circles have influenced the U. S. and Soviet governments."

Army Influence

Actually what Tito told me was that the Red Army had an important influence on Khrushchev just as military men, he said, have an influence on governments in most countries.

"Tito tries to make people believe that only 'wise men' are needed to bring about world peace," continued the Red Chinese diatribe. "According to him, 'wise men' would not entertain the thought of war. In Tito's eyes, U. S. imperialist leaders, such as Kennedy are 'wise men.'"

What Tito actually told me was that Kennedy and Khrushchev should meet frequently, not just when a crisis developed. He contended that when two sensible men met frequently they could adjust all problems between the world's two most powerful nations.

But according to the Red Chinese editorial: "It is precisely what these unscientific absurdities that renegades attempt in vain to negate completely the Marxist-Leninist scientific analysis of imperialism, to deny that imperialism is the source of war in modern times and that U. S. imperialism is the enemy of world peace.

"They try by such means to lull the vigilance of the people, to shield such acts of aggression of U. S. imperialism, and to give an even freer hand to prepare for the unleashing of a new world war."

These are only some of the highlights of the 5,000-word blast at the head of an important Communist country — a blast which indicates the upheaval now taking place inside the Communist world.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Leaks And Censorship

Arthur Sylvester, who handles news for the Pentagon, ought to know better. He is a former newspaperman, having worked on the Newark (New Jersey) "Evening News". Whether this is sufficient experience for him to "manage" the news of the nation is doubtful. However, he does apparently believe in "managed news" which, in understandable English, is faking the news.

The problem is not quite as simple as stated. The Pentagon has for many years leaked like a sieve. Both military and civilian officials, desirous of space in the great metropolitan press or in the weekly magazines, leak stories which indirectly bring them favorable publicity. It has too long been a belief that these large metropolitan newspapers can make or break a man. This has become a form of blackmail to which public officials ought not to be subjected. The role of Herbert Matthews of the "New York Times" and other reporters with regard to Cuba could justly be investigated without violating the First Amendment to the Constitution.

On the other hand, when Arthur Sylvester talks about "managed news," he shows such ignorance of the history of the press in the United States and the struggle of the press to remain free — that is free from government supervision and censorship — as to be unsuitable for the position he holds.

In nearly half a century of association with the press, I have never been lied to by a public official, although I have, on occasion, been refused information or given confidences which I could not use, often to discover that the confidence was in the public domain. Also, I have never been to a press conference, a briefing, or anything of that kind. These are futile activities. News should not be gathered by a wolf pack; it is an individual task, accomplished only by hard work and ingenuity.

A news official, such as Arthur Sylvester is, no matter what his title, ought to be a man of the widest scope and understanding of the purposes of the American press, which is to serve the reader, that is, the American people. A newspaper that forgets who its customers are, soon loses its business. The customers are not public officials but those who buy one copy of the newspaper each day. These customers are entitled to news and comment, honestly prepared and honestly written. There are bound to be differences of opinion and experience by those who comment on the news. Nobody, in our country, is so wise or so experienced that only his view should prevail.

Managed news is fakery. It is slanting the news. It is treating the American people as though they were children. It has always been tried by officials. It has always been resisted by conscientious newsmen. President Roosevelt was a master at creating a news atmosphere behind which he hid his doings, but his press secretary, Steve Early, an experienced newsman, often protected his chief from his over-cleverness.

A public official is entitled to protect himself against prejudiced and untruthful reporting. But he is not justified in lying. He can reject an inquiry as being harmful to the country and the reporter may so report. For instance, clamping down on magazines which published photographs and blueprints is not the whole story. Who gave them the photographs and blueprints? Why not first clamp down on unwarranted publicity-seekers?

In two wars, the press co-operated with public officials. For instance, not one word was printed about the Manhattan Project, although much was known about it. It was not the press that made it possible for the Russians to steal the atom bomb and the proximity fuse and other American military secrets. It was careless and subversive military officials and civilian employes of the government. It was not the press that failed to tell all the sides of the Cuban situation; it was State Department officials who "managed the news."

The press does protect the American people against censorship and slanted reporting. That protection is in independent reporting and by competition among newspapermen. There is a stern method of handling public officials who want to "manage the news"; that is, to boycott them, their press conferences and their briefings. It would not take long for their superiors to discover what happens in a free country to a public official and a government department which regards news as a weapon. We have no "Pravda" in this country.

Time To Tell Truth About Missiles In Cuba

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Now that the election campaign is over, the American people are entitled to know the truth about the missile build-up in Cuba — how closely they came to being the victims of a nuclear attack and another "Pearl Harbor." Is it possible that the United States didn't have reliable intelligence and had to wait for aerial photography, which can often be frustrated by weather conditions?

All the facts have not as yet been disclosed, but the facts that are available put the Administratin in a position of having taken grave chances with the security of the United States. A case of sheer negligence, if not incompetence, can be made out, and that's why, in fairness to the Administration, any facts available that can convincingly rebut such inferences should be revealed.

The American people are partly responsible for the dilemma. They countenance changes in key personnel at the top in national defense and security when there is a political change of Administration. Continuity in certain posts is imperative in an era of crisis, especially in a nuclear age.

A factual analysis of what happened could show that the United States government really had the facts, but that President Kennedy and his group of advisers did not evaluate them correctly. It is doubtful whether any military man in the group failed to size up accurately what was happening. The lesson — unwittingly revealed before NBC's TV panel, "Meet The Press," last Sunday—was expressed by T. C. Sorensen, one of the small group that sits in with the President in many a confidential discussion of public policy. Mr. Sorensen said:

"I think the experience of the last two or three weeks has taught us a great deal about operations inside the government — individuals, their way of thinking, institutions and departments, their way of operation."

This is a costly way of teaching government to an inexperienced administration.

The New York "Times" last Saturday published two full pages of detail about the missile build-up in Cuba as gathered by nine reporters and researchers. Even this narrative, which is unofficial, is surprising in what it discloses. It says in part:

"The Soviet military build-up in Cuba started in the second half of July. At that time American intelligence sources reported suspicious movements of Soviet ships apparently laden with war materiel destined for Cuba.

"All through August, according to intelligence reports, the build-up continued. More than 30 ships unloaded 2,000 Soviet technicians and instructors and such war materiel as surface-to-air missiles, patrol boats with missiles and MIG-21 fighters."

It was on September 4 when President Kennedy said publicly that, as far as was known, the Soviet arms in Cuba were "defensive." The "Times" story continues:

"Within the Administration the possibility that some of the build-up was offensive was not being overlooked. The intelligence community — the Central Intelligence Agency, military intelligence and others — specifically raised the question whether there might be surface-to-surface missiles in Cuba with nuclear warheads. . . .

"As a result of the persistent reports and intelligence concern, President Kennedy approved an order — apparently at the beginning of September — that the entire island of Cuba be photographed."

Did the government of the United States really have to wait for aerial photographs before ordering a blockade and taking defensive measures against possible nuclear attack from a base only 90 miles away?

The only conclusion that can be drawn is that the Administration took a chance and preferred to wait for the aerial photographs. Bad weather did interfere, and not until the night of October 15 was the photographic confirmation in hand. It was given to the President the first thing the following morning. Senator Kenneth Keating of New York, Republican, said in the Senate on October 10 that he had confirmed reports about the intermediate-range missile bases under construction in Cuba. These are plainly offensive in character.

But during the seven days from Tuesday, October 16, through Monday, October 22, the United States government did not take any action against Cuban bases, as any military man would have advised. The President refrained also from making any protest to the Soviet government. In those seven days, the Soviets could have attacked many American cities from Cuba.

Thanks to Khrushchev, the episode has thus far turned out all right, but do not the hazards encountered teach a lesson?

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigated the flight of a U-2 plane over Russia in May 1960, and blamed President Eisenhower for telling the truth about it and particularly for using the planes at that time. Maybe, as a consequence, the theory has been accepted that the truth must not be revealed to the American people.

What really happened between mid-July and October 22, and who was to blame for the risk taken? Why were U-2 flights over Cuba suspended for a long time? Why was the naval blockade held up for a month while the Russians were unloading their missiles and planes? Congress alone can bring out the truth.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CHANGING TIME — Nearly a quarter of a century ago, Henry A. Wallace, then secretary of Agriculture, wrote a book titled "60 Million Jobs." It was roundly denounced as being visionary, unrealistic, and the product of an impractical idealist.

Rep. Tom Curtis, a Missouri Republican, has just published a book of his own. The title: "87 Million Jobs." Curtis, in his tome, believes that with a dynamic program to attack unemployment the goal set forth in his title can be achieved.

When Curtis' book came out, there was nary an utterance from anyone about being visionary, unrealistic or impractically idealistic. In fact, Curtis' book didn't make much of a ripple at all in the publishing world.

Currently, total employment stands at 67 million, with about another four million unemployed, and, under proper economic conditions, still another three of rour million in the employable pool.

BREATHE EASIER — Washington has just completed observance of "Cleaner Air Week," but city officials insist it had nothing to do with the fact that Congress has just quit for the year.

As a part of the observance, there were reports on air pollution problems throughout the country. Again, the city fathers insist these reports were not connected with the country-wide campaigning now that is winding up in preparation for the Nov. 6 elections.

Falling Leaves

By John Crosby

PARIS

It's fall in Paris and the leaves are turning yellow-gold on the Champs-Elysees, a subtle counterpoint to the honey color of the newly-washed Crillon in the newly-washed Place de la Concorde. The Rond-Point is still ablaze with flowers lifting their yellow and scarlet faces to the blue sky reflected in the silver fountains.

In weather like this one must walk to work, and I launch myself down the Rue de Tournon, turning my back on the Luxembourg Palace, still black with grime because they haven't cleaned it yet, but decked with flags because the French Senate meets there. (Though what the French Senate does there I'm not at all clear about, and I don't think the French are, either.)

A French grandmother dressed in black from head to toe is passing my hotel, dragged by a little boy who is waggling his finger at grand'mere and saying she must walk a little faster. These Frenchmen, I think, begin to dominate their women at an early age. He must be all of six.

At the corner, there's a little fruit stand where the vendeur arranges his fall flowers and brown leaves on the sidewalk so as to make a sort of bouquet to set off the lovely winding gray walls of the Rue des Quatre Vents. It would be a shame to buy any, because it would spoil the symmetry of his arrangement. At his stand, a girl is inspecting a green pear, gravely, as if it were an emerald, at her side a perambulator in which a baby sleeps, encased in vegetables, clutching in his little fist a bunch of radishes that turn their red and white bottoms gaily to the sky.

Across the narrow street — you can almost reach across with your arm — a girl in a blue smock sits on a stepladder wiping yesterday's prices off the plate glass window of the charcuterie and writing down today's prices. She writes in white chalk with a beautiful flourish, her dashing 1's and superbly-formed s's, a work of art like the arrangement of brown leaves across the street, contributing her miniscule morsel to the beauty of Paris. (Haussmann provided only the frame for Paris, the setting. Paris is 8 million Frenchmen, each contributing a little something — a spray of violets on a balcony, the arrangements of fruits in a wicker basket, sometimes just a flashing smile.)

At the foot of the stepladder, an aged balayeur is sweeping the gutter carefully with a broom made of sticks. Then he opens the main and fresh water from the Seine gushes into the gutter, sweeping the fall leaves down the drain. The man who owns the charcuterie comes out of his little shop and they shake hands, the balayeur and the charcutier, and discuss, first, the weather, then the crisis. (They do this every morning. Fortunately, there's always weather. And always a crisis.)

I go down the street, which has now turned itself from the Rue de Tournon into the Rue de Seine, though it's the same street. And an old fellow is feeding the pigeons. A taxi pulls up and the taxi driver pokes his head out and says: "That red one is new." (They observe everything, the taxi drivers.) The old fellow and the taxi driver regard the reddish pigeon, a little smaller than the others. "Look how he struts," says the taxi driver. "He must be from the Basque country."

The little sidewalk cafe, le Saint Claude, is empty except for a huge beared man, had on head, wrapped in scarves, who is writing a letter. He must have just got off a good one because suddenly he chuckles, picks up his letter, reads his own words appreciatively, shaking his beard, his eyes sparkling with laughter. There's nothing quite so heartwarming as an author appreciating his own work. At the curb are two gendarmes writing out tickets for the cars that have overstayed their welcome and they too are appreciating their work.

I turn right at the Deux Magots and strike off down Rue Bonaparte to the Seine where I walk past the bookstalls where they will sell you books describing the varieties of love, past the French Academy where the Immortals are struggling with the letter C, past a boy and a girl leaning against the stone embankment kissing as if there were no tomorrow. (And who knows? Maybe there won't be.) A barge marches gravely down the Seine, its planking gleaming in the sunshine. (This is the only place where they polish the barges like cup defenders.)

I walk across the Pont Alexandre III whose lovely baroque curves soothe and gladden my heart, thence right again and down the Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt, who used to break the heart of the Republicans every election day, and finally a brisk left turn on the Champs Elysees, which this day is decked with Finnish flags because we are welcoming President Kekkonnen. I pause at the newsstand to watch a Frenchman buy a French paper with blazing headline: "Demoiselles Par Telephone" — an expose of the American call-girl industry. (Ooo, you naughty Americans!)

Finally I turn down the Rue de Berri. A young Frenchman is striding up the street as if he owns the world, smiling at every girl, with a lilt in his step and joy in his heart, because he's young, because he's French, because he's in Paris, because he's alive.

Wonder Drugs Change Approach To Pneumonia

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Pneumonia was one of the great killers prior to the discovery of the sulfonamides and penicillin. One in three patients died and the survivors had an experience they never forgot. The disease was almost like a death sentence when it attacked the very young and old.

The wonder drugs changed our approach to the condition. We no longer refer to it as lobar or bronchial pneumonia but as infectious pneumonia. This is done because the lung condition is caused by a variety of micro-organisms, mainly bacteria and viruses.

It is important to know the exact offender because the proper antibiotic must be pitted against the causative agent. The drug that works best against a pneumococcal pneumonia may be of no value when staphylococci or other bacteria are responsible. Unless laboratory tests are done to uncover the culprit, the illness may be prolonged and recovery endangered. These tests are standard procedures, inexpensive, and easy to do.

The situation is different with viral pneumonia, which does not respond to antibiotic therapy. Most victims are not seriously ill and spontaneous recovery can be expected. The wonder drugs may be needed should complications occur or secondary invaders take over.

Most bacterial pneumonias begin with cough and the victim usually brings up purulent sputum, often blood-tinged. The pulse is rapid and the temperature may be high. The response is favorable and prompt recovery is the rule, provided sputum tests are positive for germs that are susceptible for antibiotics.

In viral pneumonia, the cough is dry and irritating; the sufferer complains of headache, muscular aching, and weakness. The temperature goes up more slowly and usually remains elevated five to seven days. Sputum cultures are negative and recovery comes gradually regardless of whether drugs are used. There is no specific remedy.

SINUS DRAINAGE

L. H. writes: Is there such a thing as a dry sinus? My doctor says I have sinus infection but there isn't much drainage.

REPLY

The lining of a healthy sinus should be moist and the opening large enough to allow air to enter and leave. The moisture stems from a thin layer of mucus and the slight secretion of this clear liquid is not noticeable. A thicker drainage is abnormal.

QUICKIE WEIGHT LOSS

J. R. writes: Please explain a crash diet.

REPLY

This term refers to a starvation or lopsided diet aimed at reducing a few pounds in a short time. The main objection to this type of diet is that it is a temporary stopgap and does nothing to encourage good eating habits that mean permanent slimness.

PERFORATED ULCER

F. I. writes: How long can a person have an ulcer of the duodenum before it ruptures?

REPLY

There is no set time in that some ulcers of long standing never do so. Others make their debut by perforating or bleeding. In general, the chances are less when the lesion is treated promptly.

MEDICAL CARE

M.T.B. writes: At what periods of life does the average man have the greatest need for the services of a physician?

REPLY

Before 10 and after 50. However, if more persons were under a physician's care before 50, they might need less medical attention in later decades.

TOMORROW: Painful feet.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A newlywed Dayton reporter proudly remembered his mother-in-law's birthday and wired her, "Congratulations, mother mine. And may you have 100 more birthdays." Her frigid demeanor —and his wife's, too—when he got home baffled him until he got a look at the telegram.

Western Union had left the two zeros off the 100.

A prosperous Iowa farmer pointed out that his Maine host had more rocks to contend with in his small patch than he encountered in a farm fifty times as large. "Where do they come from?" he pondered. A bit netled, the Maine man explained, "They say the great glacier brought 'em." "And where," nodded the Iowan, "is that glacier now?" The Maine man snapped, "It's gone back for more rocks."

QUOTABLE QUOTES:

LESSING: "A man who does not lose his reason over certain things has none to lose."

SANTAYANA: "There is no cure for birth and death save to enjoy the interval."

Alpine Peaks Breath-Taking In Bavaria

By RALPH VILLERS

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (UPI) — This small Bavarian town is one of those rare resorts where it is best to arrive in the dark of night when you cannot see anything except the lighted entrance to your hotel.

That makes the morning all the more breath-taking when you roll from your bed, look out the window and are struck by the sight, all about you, of The Alps. It is nothing short of overwhelming to catch sight of the rugged gray rock and snow trim of the towering mountains all at once, rather than have them gradually grow in view during a daylight approach to the valley in which Garmisch - Partenkirchen nestles.

Bavaria's loftiest alpine peaks hover around the 2,300-foot-high valley, and within sight is the tallest mountain in Germany, the famed Zugspitze, rising 9,720 feet.

Garmisch, the popular name for this resort of two villages that grew together to become one town, lives by and for its alpine visitors is its industry (500,000 persons stayed in Garmisch at least one night last year, another 2 million passed through), and it knows its business well.

Now, after the lull of the late fall, is readying for the second big rush season of its year. The first is in the summer months when the refreshingly moderate days and mountain paths and trails lure the normal holiday crowd. The second, of course, is the high winter season, which attracts the snow birds to its countless ski trails, skating and other winter sports.

But for the person neither addicted to the seemingly endless ski trails down the broad mountain slopes, nor to level or steep (you can have your choice) mountain and forest paths, Garmisch still is a reward in itself.

Garmisch is a town out of a storybook. Its little streets are lined with chalets, their broad eves hangingout over windows with colorful shutters and balconies rimmed with intricately worked dark wood railings.

Along the streets walk men in native costume, halter-held lederhosen or leather or corduroy kniehosten (knee-length breeches with long stockings), loden jackets and their heads topped with dark green alpine hats set off by towering brushes. Best of all, they are dressed that way for themselves, not for the tourists.

Garmisch still calls itself the "Olympic Village," dating from its selection as the site of the 1936 Winter Olympics. The stadia with their ice rinks, ski jumps and bobsled runs still are used by sports enthusiasts.

Cable cars and ski lifts reach into the mountains all around Garmisch. The most spectacular run, however, is the 11 miles by cog railway to the 8,697-foot level on the Zugspitze. First the tracks trace through the pastures of the valley, past little storage barns looking for all the world like the face of a cuckoo clock, then past the blue-green lake waters of the Eibsee, up into the dark green of the forests, and finally, at the timber line, into a two-and-three-quarter mile tunnel cut through the mountain.

A cable car spans the last 1,000 feet-plus over the sharp rock to the near 10,000-foot summit of the Zugspitze, where, on a clear day, the Alps of four countries—Germany, Austria, Italy and Switzerland—stretch in an unending panorama.

Cable cars leave some non-alpine folks cold—with perspiration. But for the mountain addict in a hurry, the newest and steepest in all of Germany is opening this fall. In its two-and-three-quarter mile length starting at the Eibsee, it will lift the rider 6,500 feet in elevation to the pinnacle of the Zugspitze in a few seconds over eight minutes.

Deaths

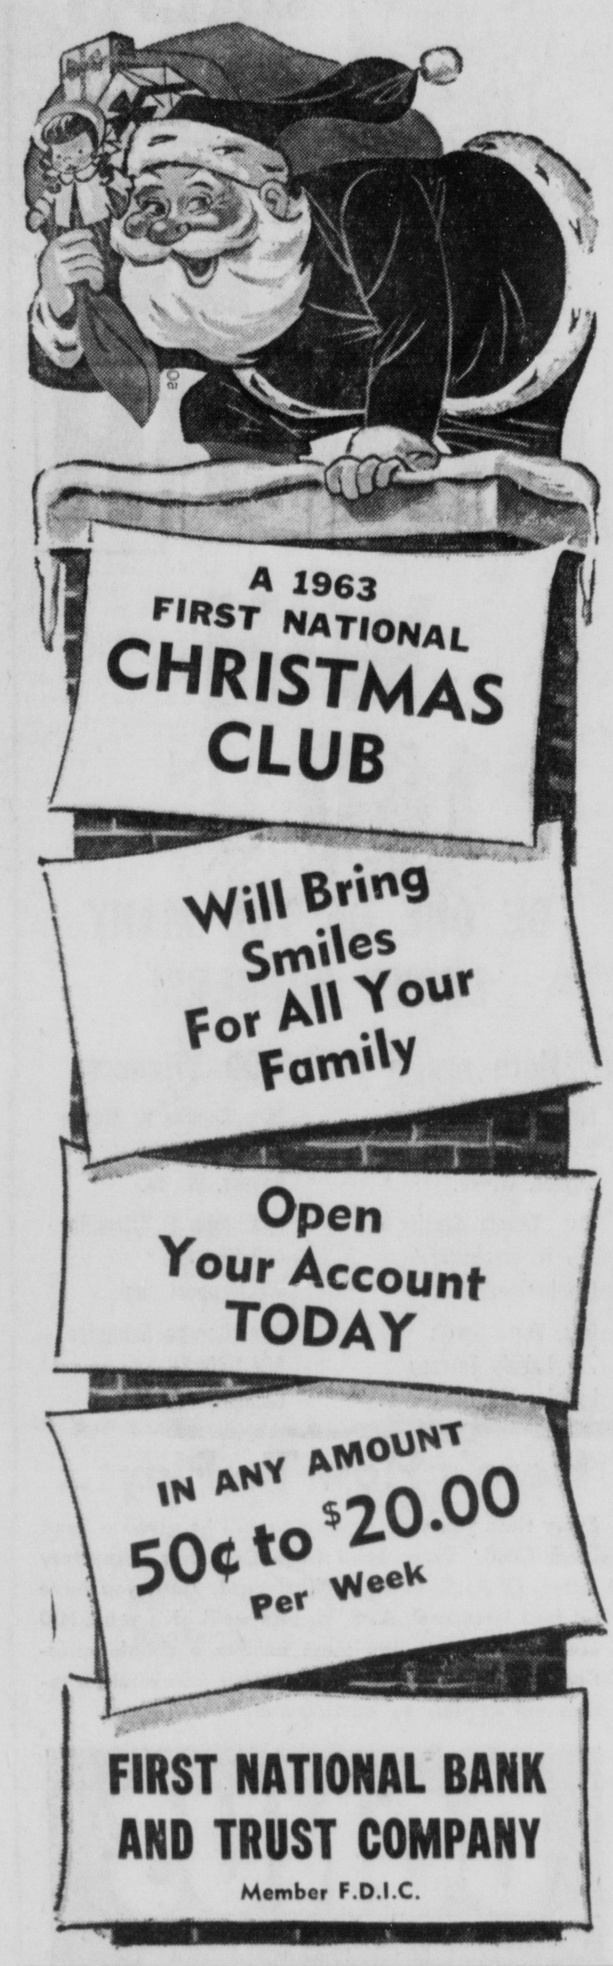
York, Pa., Mrs. Nora Turner, Robinsville, N. C., Mrs. Lucille Thomas, and Mrs. Mary Catherine Barr, both of Moorefield; two sons, William H. Harman, LaVale and Homer G. Harman, with USAF in Africa; 17 grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Nora Lewis, Parsons, three brothers, Walter May, Gettysburg, Gilbert May, Lahmansville and Homer May, Fairfield, Pa.

The body is at the Arnold Funeral Home where friends will be received from 2 until 4 p.m. It will be taken to Petersburg Methodist Church Saturday at 1 p.m. for a service at 2 p.m. by Rev. John Bird. Interment will be in Lahmansville Cemetery.

North Carolina claims to maintain more highway mileage than does any other state in the Union.



Area Sewer

ity you want to give to a separate authority" and made the point that costs of projects can vary and figures quoted are not exact.

He agreed, when asked by Mr. Douglas, that as an engineer he would prefer to handle the sewage problem by interceptors rather than by a number of plants, but said it all boils down to economics.

Mayor Arthur P. Hoffa was greeted with cheers when he said the chief question is "Are we interested?" and that "If we are, go ahead and take care of the financing later."

Assures Cooperation

County Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, who was elected to the new Board of Allegany County Commissioners, thanked the commission and assured the unit that the "present and new commissioners will work with you."

State Senator - elect George R. Hughes Jr. asked Mr. Douglas what the county's share of the costs would be.

"Nothing," said Mr. Douglas, explaining that those who use the service would pay for it.

Commission member C. E. Stutzman said with the cooperation of all people of the county "we can find a way to do it."

"Let's decide if it is a good plan," and if it is get the city and county to work on it," he suggested.

Thomas W. Shives, of the State Health Department, said that unit would prefer a single plant if it were economically feasible, but he said cost is of major importance and the people should have more detailed information.

Frostburg Backs

The people of Allegany County, said F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local 1024, should look at the overall picture. He said the future of the county is bright for industrial development but "if we are not ready for it the plants will go elsewhere."

Mayor Joseph James of Frostburg said officials of that city are unanimous in supporting such a move. He said it would be "a great step."

Hearty approval was also given by a spokesman for residents of the Ellerslie area.

Senator-elect Hughes promised that the Allegany County Delegation will work toward an area-wide sewage plan, and he commended the commission for its report.

Mayor Chaney, father of the commission, commended the unit for the report and urged it to "continue the good work."

Agreement Reached

Officials of the commission and the Health Department met yesterday in Mayor Chaney's office to discuss the program and agreement was reached on four points.

Attending were Thomas W. Shives, public health engineer for the State Health Department; Gaylord Brooks, senior sanitarian of the County Health Department; Mr. Douglas, J. Laughton Huffman, secretary of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, and Mr. Chaney.

As a result of the meeting, Mr. Shives aggreed, according to a memorandum, with the following:

The use of the Cumberland sewage treatment plant would be advantageous.

The overall use of centralized land and county collecting systems would be advantageous, and he would agree to this providing it is economically feasible.

That the work to obtain the above would be done with greatest dispatch.

He has no recommendation on the authority as long as it is operated efficiently toward their accomplishment.

Water-Sewage Report

Separate Plants Costly

We further find that Whitman, Requardt and Associates in their report to the LaVale Sanitary Commission recommend carrying sewage to Cumberland. Also, in analyzing the Robert T. Regester, Inc., Whitman, Requardt and Assoc., and Matz, Childs and Assoc. reports, and using the figures contained therein, we have come up with some interesting data covering the cost of running these intercepting sewers in lieu of a large number of additional treatment plants. We find that running these sewers from Cumberland up through The Narrows to catch the Jennings Run, Braddock Run, and Wills Creek areas shows the cost of these sewers would be much less than the cost of treatment plants that would have to be installed in LaVale, Mount Savage, and Frostburg.

It of course could be shown that in some instances small mechanical plants or lagoons could be installed in certain areas at a lower cost; however, we feel that we have to be concerned with settling these problems to the best advantage for all concerned.

We further find that our area has been losing population during the past two decades, and we feel that it is of the utmost importance to properly handle both our water and sewage problems so as not to detract from our natural advantages. In the Potomac Valley between Cumberland and Westernport we have available one of the best locations in the East for expansion of industry if we properly handle our water-sewage problems in that area, and we should look forward to accomplishing this fact by the time the Bloomington Dam is completed when we should have a very desirable flow in the Potomac River. The proper handling and expansion of our possibilities in this valley would, of course, react to the benefit of every citizen in Allegany County.

We also feel that by handling our pressing sewage problems by using the two existing plants in the County and with intercepting sewers running from said plants, we will have the further advantage to all residents of making it possible for numerous small communities to tie into these interceptors. We also feel there will be a very decided saving in operational and administrative costs by handling in this method. We further think that all responsible engineering firms would recommend that our sewage problems be handled generally in line with the above recommendations.

The members of this Commission wish to express their appreciation to the Allegany County Commissioners and to the Mayor and City Council for the opportunity of expressing our views on the above matter, and advise that we stand in readiness at any time to enter into further discussions regarding same.

We are all interested in a bigger and better Allegany County.

Respectfully yours,

ural resources, as important as these things may be to the people.

"But an accusation by one candidate against another, however baseless, however irrelevant, contains all these elements and is therefore news.

"There is an old saying, you know, that it takes a long time for the truth to catch up with a lie. In a political campaign, the truth sometimes never catches up with a lie."

Tawes won his second term over Small by 88,000 out of 768,000. His first term victory was by 206,000.

With returns complete, the unofficial vote Tuesday was:

Daniel B. Brewster polled the most votes for the winning Democratic statewide team in winning the U.S. Senate seat. Louis L. Goldstein enjoyed the biggest majority of 174,542 in breezing to his second term as comptroller.

Thomas B. Finan didn't run far behind in his first statewide elective bid for attorney general.

Brewster romped past Edward T. Miller and will be the first Democrat to sit in the Senate from Maryland since 1952.

Goldstein overwhelmed David Champion and Finan ran away from Martin Ferris.

Eric Fleming of the CBS Television Network's "Rawhide" was a Hollywood stagehand before he turned to acting.

ity you want to give to a separate authority" and made the point that costs of projects can vary and figures quoted are not exact.

He agreed, when asked by Mr. Douglas, that as an engineer he would prefer to handle the sewage problem by interceptors rather than by a number of plants, but said it all boils down to economics.

Mayor Arthur P. Hoffa was greeted with cheers when he said the chief question is "Are we interested?" and that "If we are, go ahead and take care of the financing later."

Assures Cooperation

County Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, who was elected to the new Board of Allegany County Commissioners, thanked the commission and assured the unit that the "present and new commissioners will work with you."

State Senator - elect George R. Hughes Jr. asked Mr. Douglas what the county's share of the costs would be.

"Nothing," said Mr. Douglas, explaining that those who use the service would pay for it.

Commission member C. E. Stutzman said with the cooperation of all people of the county "we can find a way to do it."

"Let's decide if it is a good plan," and if it is get the city and county to work on it," he suggested.

Thomas W. Shives, of the State Health Department, said that unit would prefer a single plant if it were economically feasible, but he said cost is of major importance and the people should have more detailed information.

Frostburg Backs

The people of Allegany County, said F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local 1024, should look at the overall picture. He said the future of the county is bright for industrial development but "if we are not ready for it the plants will go elsewhere."

Mayor Joseph James of Frostburg said officials of that city are unanimous in supporting such a move. He said it would be "a great step."

Hearty approval was also given by a spokesman for residents of the Ellerslie area.

Senator-elect Hughes promised that the Allegany County Delegation will work toward an area-wide sewage plan, and he commended the commission for its report.

Mayor Chaney, father of the commission, commended the unit for the report and urged it to "continue the good work."

Agreement Reached

Officials of the commission and the Health Department met yesterday in Mayor Chaney's office to discuss the program and agreement was reached on four points.

Attending were Thomas W. Shives, public health engineer for the State Health Department; Gaylord Brooks, senior sanitarian of the County Health Department; Mr. Douglas, J. Laughton Huffman, secretary of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission, and Mr. Chaney.

As a result of the meeting, Mr. Shives aggreed, according to a memorandum, with the following:

The use of the Cumberland sewage treatment plant would be advantageous.

The overall use of centralized land and county collecting systems would be advantageous, and he would agree to this providing it is economically feasible.

That the work to obtain the above would be done with greatest dispatch.

He has no recommendation on the authority as long as it is operated efficiently toward their accomplishment.

Separate Plants Costly

We further find that Whitman, Requardt and Associates in their report to the LaVale Sanitary Commission recommend carrying sewage to Cumberland. Also, in analyzing the Robert T. Regester, Inc., Whitman, Requardt and Assoc., and Matz, Childs and Assoc. reports, and using the figures contained therein, we have come up with some interesting data covering the cost of running these intercepting sewers in lieu of a large number of additional treatment plants. We find that running these sewers from Cumberland up through The Narrows to catch the Jennings Run, Braddock Run, and Wills Creek areas shows the cost of these sewers would be much less than the cost of treatment plants that would have to be installed in LaVale, Mount Savage, and Frostburg.

It of course could be shown that in some instances small mechanical plants or lagoons could be installed in certain areas at a lower cost; however, we feel that we have to be concerned with settling these problems to the best advantage for all concerned.

We further find that our area has been losing population during the past two decades, and we feel that it is of the utmost importance to properly handle both our water and sewage problems so as not to detract from our natural advantages. In the Potomac Valley between Cumberland and Westernport we have available one of the best locations in the East for expansion of industry if we properly handle our water-sewage problems in that area, and we should look forward to accomplishing this fact by the time the Bloomington Dam is completed when we should have a very desirable flow in the Potomac River. The proper handling and expansion of our possibilities in this valley would, of course, react to the benefit of every citizen in Allegany County.

We also feel that by handling our pressing sewage problems by using the two existing plants in the County and with intercepting sewers running from said plants, we will have the further advantage to all residents of making it possible for numerous small communities to tie into these interceptors. We also feel there will be a very decided saving in operational and administrative costs by handling in this method. We further think that all responsible engineering firms would recommend that our sewage problems be handled generally in line with the above recommendations.

The members of this Commission wish to express their appreciation to the Allegany County Commissioners and to the Mayor and City Council for the opportunity of expressing our views on the above matter, and advise that we stand in readiness at any time to enter into further discussions regarding same.

We are all interested in a bigger and better Allegany County.

Respectfully yours,

"There is an old saying, you know, that it takes a long time for the truth to catch up with a lie. In a political campaign, the truth sometimes never catches up with a lie."

Tawes won his second term over Small by 88,000 out of 768,000. His first term victory was by 206,000.

With returns complete, the unofficial vote Tuesday was:

New Look In Pork Roasts

Fashions in food as well as clothing styles come and go. And now that ever-changing world of style has encompassed pork. Resulting from years of study and research in the fields of production, processing and merchandising, today's pork is now both leaner and meatier.

Packers and retailers have cooperated by using a closer trim of external fat, with the result that modern pork has fewer calories, less fat and more protein. In short, this meat is indeed more nutritious now than ever before!

Weight-watchers will appreciate pork's "new look" for the lower calorie content, plus increased nutritive value of the meat, are tailor-made for a weight-control pattern. Also, thiamine-rich pork is digested slowly and when served as the basis of a meal, will delay between-meal hunger pangs which are sometimes satisfied by calorie-rich snacks.

For a family dinner or for special buffet affair for guests why not serve a handsome pork loin roast? Perhaps you have marveled at a friend's ease in preparing company dinners. Have you considered that perhaps cooking is easy for her because she's learned some simple tricks;

For instance, preparing a pork loin roast can be one of the simplest of dishes to prepare and serve if you know the modern method for doing it. First of all, when you purchase the pork loin roast ask your dealer to loosen, but not remove the backbone from the ribs. This makes serving much easier for when the roast is cooked you simply remove this bone. The result—your carver can cut down between the rib bones without any interference.

Following the modern roasting method of cooking at a low to mederate temperature your range does all the work for you. In addition, the meat is jucier, more tender and certainly more attractive to serve than when cooked at a high temperature.

Here's how it is done. Choose a shallow roasting pan. Then place the roast in it with the fat side up. For most roasts you need a rack in the pan to hold the meat up off the bottom. But with this roast the ribs do the job for you.

Do not add water to the pan. Do not cover. To completely eliminate any guesswork as to when the roast is done, use a roast meat thermometer. Insert it into the thickest section of the roast, but not in fat or on bone. It will register the internal temperature of the meat indicating when the roast pork has reached the well-done stage, 185 degrees F.

You can estimate cooking time by allowing 35 to 40 minutes per pound for a center cut loin; 45 to 50 minutes per pound for end cut pork loin roasts cooked in a 350 degree F. oven.

New Look In Pork Roasts

Fashions in food as well as clothing styles come and go. And now that ever-changing world of style has encompassed pork. Resulting from years of study and research in the fields of production, processing and merchandising, today's pork is now both leaner and meatier.

Packers and retailers have cooperated by using a closer trim of external fat, with the result that modern pork has fewer calories, less fat and more protein. In short, this meat is indeed more nutritious now than ever before!

Weight-watchers will appreciate pork's "new look" for the lower calorie content, plus increased nutritive value of the meat, are tailor-made for a weight-control pattern. Also, thiamine-rich pork is digested slowly and when served as the basis of a meal, will delay between-meal hunger pangs which are sometimes satisfied by calorie-rich snacks.

For a family dinner or for special buffet affair for guests why not serve a handsome pork loin roast? Perhaps you have marveled at a friend's ease in preparing company dinners. Have you considered that perhaps cooking is easy for her because she's learned some simple tricks;

For instance, preparing a pork loin roast can be one of the simplest of dishes to prepare and serve if you know the modern method for doing it. First of all, when you purchase the pork loin roast ask your dealer to loosen, but not remove the backbone from the ribs. This makes serving much easier for when the roast is cooked you simply remove this bone. The result—your carver can cut down between the rib bones without any interference.

Following the modern roasting method of cooking at a low to mederate temperature your range does all the work for you. In addition, the meat is jucier, more tender and certainly more attractive to serve than when cooked at a high temperature.

Here's how it is done. Choose a shallow roasting pan. Then place the roast in it with the fat side up. For most roasts you need a rack in the pan to hold the meat up off the bottom. But with this roast the ribs do the job for you.

Do not add water to the pan. Do not cover. To completely eliminate any guesswork as to when the roast is done, use a roast meat thermometer. Insert it into the thickest section of the roast, but not in fat or on bone. It will register the internal temperature of the meat indicating when the roast pork has reached the well-done stage, 185 degrees F.

You can estimate cooking time by allowing 35 to 40 minutes per pound for a center cut loin; 45 to 50 minutes per pound for end cut pork loin roasts cooked in a 350 degree F. oven.

Fry Chicken Southern Style In Beer Batter

If you're saying to yourself, "What's new about southern fried chicken?", then we'll have to let you in on a secret. What's new is the brew. Chicken has never been treated with such tender care as it is in this recipe for frying the flavored fowl in a beer or ale batter.

As chicken is such an inexpensive food, you doubtless include it quite often on your weekly menus. Finding different ways to serve it and make it seem always new can present a bit of culinary problem. Fried chicken is a favorite hot or cold, indoors or out; it's the batter that matters. Using the light, subtle tang of golden beer or ale, combined with eggs, flour, oil, salt and Tabasco makes a batter that is not only light in texture but has terrific clinging quality. Try it — you'll crow!

For supper with a real southern accent make some fresh hot corn bread using your favorite recipe or a mix, substituting beer for the required amount of milk. Add a salad bowl chock full of crisp raw vegetables and sparkling glasses of light, bright beer and ale, and you've hatched a super supper!

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN

2 eggs, slightly beaten
⅔ cup beer or ale
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons oil or melted shortening
1 broiler-fryer chicken, quartered
1 quart oil or melted shortening for frying

Combine eggs, beer, Tabasco; slowly beat in flour, salt and oil until batter is smooth. Dip chicken into batter; drain. Drop into heated oil at 375 degrees F., fry 15 to 20 minutes.

Yield: 3 servings.

Barbecue Meat Loaf

1 egg
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon Minced Onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Barbecue Sauce
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons Barbecue Sauce

Mix together egg, milk, minced onion, salt, Mustard Barbecue Sauce and bread crumbs. Add beef and mix, handling as little as possible. Place in a 7 x 5 x 2-inch greased loaf pan. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven 45 minutes. Baste with 2 tablespoons Mustard Barbecue Sauce and cook another 5 minutes. Pour off juices and use for gravy. 4 servings.

Backyard Clambake

12 dozen steamer clams
12 ears of corn, in the husks
Lemon wedges
12 baking potatoes
12 live lobsters (1 pound each)
Melted butter or other fat

Wash clam shells thoroughly. Wash potatoes and cut off ends. Remove corn silk from ears of corn and replace husks.

Use a large metal container, similar to a thirty-gallon galvanized garbage can, with a tight fitting lid. Have 5 baskets with folding handles made to fit inside the container. The bottom of the baskets should be made of half-inch galvanized wire mesh. Place 3, 6-inch high supports in the bottom of the container.

Put water in the bottom of the container to a depth of about 5 inches. Place potatoes in a basket and place on supports in the container. Finish filling container by placing corn in the next basket, lobsters in the next two baskets, and clams in the top basket. Cover container and place over a hot fire. Steam for 1 hour. Remove baskets. Crack lobster claws. Serve with lemon wedges and melted butter. Serves 12.

Five Cranberry Dips For Use With Chicken

Foods that can be prepared in the cool of the morning are tops on kitchen schedules this month. Heading the lists are these favorites, Chicken and Cranberry Sauce.

Chill tender pieces of over baked chicken to "dunk" in colorful cranberry dips. Paper ruffles taped around crispy chicken legs make this finger food a family favorite.

Here's a cool way to perfect nibbling. Dip chicken legs or other cut-up parts in evaporated milk. Crush cheese crackers into fine crumbs and roll the chicken parts to coat. Place on a foil-lined pan to bake in a moderate oven for an hour or until tender. Bake in early morning and chill until serving time.

For the dips . . . . . these, too, can be whipped together early in the morning. Honeyberry Dip is just right for hot or cold baked chicken.

Honeyberry Dip

1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
¼ to ½ cup honey
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Beat sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. Stir in honey and lemon juice. Chill to serve as dip for chilled oven baked chicken.

Cranberry Olive Dip is a cheery combination of flavors. Easy to make, too.

Cranberry Olive Dip

1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
¼ cup finely chopped celery
½ teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Beat cranberry sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. In small saucepan combine cranberry sauce with olives, celery, onion and lemon juice. Heat to boiling to use as dip for chilled oven fried chicken. This dip may be served hot or cold.

Cranberry Curry Dip is great with chicken.

Cranberry Curry Dip

1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Beat sauce with rotary beater til saucy. Add remaining ingredients. Let stand for flavors to blend. Use as a dip for chilled fried chicken.

Here's another bright saucy dip for chicken.

Cranberry Apricot Dip

½ cup canned apricots, drained
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 lb. can Whole Cranberry Sauce

Like mustard? Then try a Cranberry Mustard Dip.

Cranberry Mustard Dip

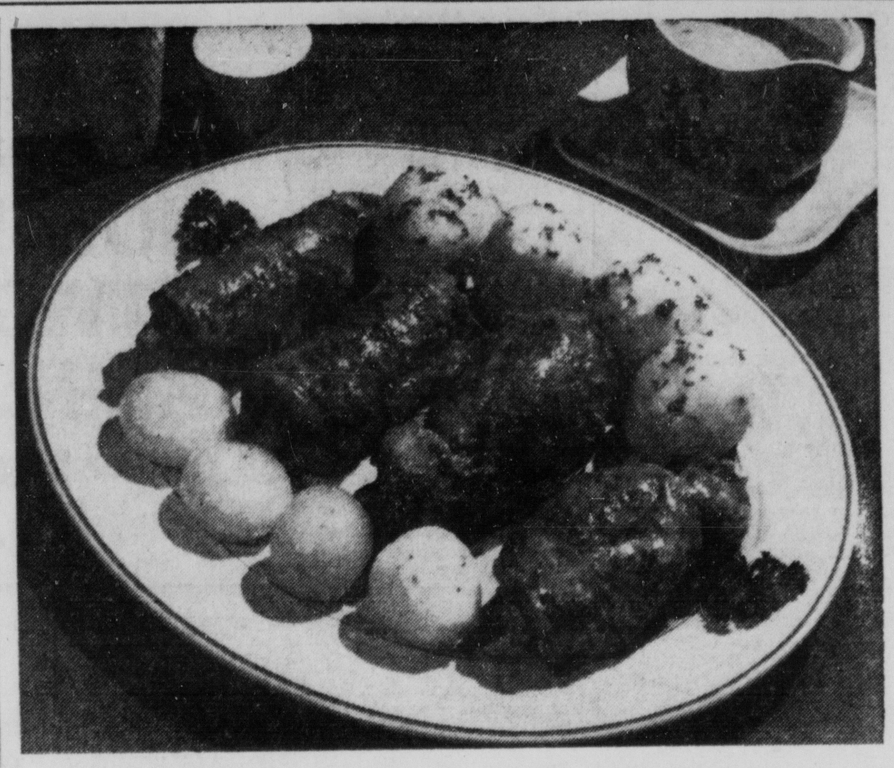
1 cup Jellied Cranberry Sauce
1 cup prepared mustard
1 teaspoon instant onion flakes

Beat cranberry sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. Combine with mustard and instant onion. Mix well. Chill to serve with fried chicken.

Rousing Fruit Punch

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup water
1 quart chilled apple juice
1 can frozen orange concentrate
¼ cup lemon juice
Orange slices
Maraschino cherries, green and red

Combine sugar and water, bring to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Chill. Combine apple juice, orange concentrate, lemon juice and sugar syrup. Beat well to blend. Pour into punch bowl over ice cubes. Garnish with thin orange slices and maraschino cherries. Serve in punch cups. Makes 6 servings.



A Special Beef Skillet Dinner

One of the chief charms of cooking is the opportunity for exploring fascinating new possibilities with foods. With a little imagination and with a little experimenting you can produce an entirely new dish to present to your family at the dinner table.

Take round steak, for instance. Golden brown, tender pieces of round steak are a favorite serving with many folks. Here's an idea for a slight variation in serving that is sure to add new interest to your mealtime. It is a Beef Skillet Dinner. The round steak is cut into serving-size pieces, then wrapped around carrot sticks. They're cooked with whole potatoes and onions in a mushroom sauce for a delightful one-dish dinner.

Our Beef Skillet Dinner is an ideal choice for providing the family with a generous portion of their daily protein needs. For 4 servings of this dish purchase 1½ pounds of round steak cut ½ inch thick. Next, cut the steak into pieces about 3x5 inches. Then combine ¼ cup flour with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Dredge the steak with this seasoned flour.

Next, place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with wooden picks. Brown in rolls slowly on all sides in ¼ cup of lard or drippings. Pour off the drippings, then add 4 peeled potatoes and 4 small onions. Add one 10 ounce can of condensed mushroom soup. Cover tightly and simmer in a slow oven, 300° F., or on top of your range. Cooking time will be from 1½ to 2 hours.

Beef Birds

1½ pounds round steak, cut ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup lard or drippings
4 to 5 small carrots, cut in strips
4 peeled potatoes
4 small onions
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup

Cut steak into pieces about 3x5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick. Brown rolls slowly on all sides in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add potatoes and onions to steak and pour mushroom soup over all. Cover tightly and cook slowly in a slow oven (300° F.) or on top of range 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. 4 servings.

Food Guide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food stores across the nation will offer good selections of abundant foods for weekend shoppers.

Leading the list of meat buys is pork-loin roasts especially-along with broiler-fryer chickens and various cuts of beef. When your main dish plans include fish, look for plenty of canned Maine sardines, canned tuna, fish sticks and fish portions.

There are good supplies of fall fruits for salads, desserts, and just plain munching. Among the selections are apples, grapefruit, grapes, oranges, pears, and early shipments of fresh cranberries.

Produce counters will offer bountiful supplies of cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, greens, lettuce, onions, potatoes, spinach, squash, and sweet potatoes.

Dairy products remain in good supply.

Five Cranberry Dips For Use With Chicken

Foods that can be prepared in the cool of the morning are tops on kitchen schedules this month. Heading the lists are these favorites, Chicken and Cranberry Sauce.

Chill tender pieces of over baked chicken to "dunk" in colorful cranberry dips. Paper ruffles taped around crispy chicken legs make this finger food a family favorite.

Here's a cool way to perfect nibbling. Dip chicken legs or other cut-up parts in evaporated milk. Crush cheese crackers into fine crumbs and roll the chicken parts to coat. Place on a foil-lined pan to bake in a moderate oven for an hour or until tender. Bake in early morning and chill until serving time.

For the dips . . . . . these, too, can be whipped together early in the morning. Honeyberry Dip is just right for hot or cold baked chicken.

Honeyberry Dip
1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
¼ to ½ cup honey
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Beat sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. Stir in honey and lemon juice. Chill to serve as dip for chilled oven baked chicken.

Cranberry Olive Dip is a cheery combination of flavors. Easy to make, too.

Cranberry Olive Dip
1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
¼ cup finely chopped celery
½ teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Beat cranberry sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. In small saucepan combine cranberry sauce with olives, celery, onion and lemon juice. Heat to boiling to use as dip for chilled oven fried chicken. This dip may be served hot or cold.

Cranberry Curry Dip is great with chicken.

Cranberry Curry Dip
1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Beat sauce with rotary beater til saucy. Add remaining ingredients. Let stand for flavors to blend. Use as a dip for chilled fried chicken.

Here's another bright saucy dip for chicken.

Cranberry Apricot Dip
½ cup canned apricots, drained
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 lb. can Whole Cranberry Sauce

Like mustard? Then try a Cranberry Mustard Dip.

Cranberry Mustard Dip
1 cup Jellied Cranberry Sauce
1 cup prepared mustard
1 teaspoon instant onion flakes

Beat cranberry sauce with rotary beater until smooth and saucy. Combine with mustard and instant onion. Mix well. Chill to serve with fried chicken.

Rousing Fruit Punch

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup water
1 quart chilled apple juice
1 can frozen orange concentrate
¼ cup lemon juice
Orange slices
Maraschino cherries, green and red

Combine sugar and water, bring to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Chill. Combine apple juice, orange concentrate, lemon juice and sugar syrup. Beat well to blend. Pour into punch bowl over ice cubes. Garnish with thin orange slices and maraschino cherries. Serve in punch cups. Makes 6 servings.

A Special Beef Skillet Dinner

One of the chief charms of cooking is the opportunity for exploring fascinating new possibilities with foods. With a little imagination and with a little experimenting you can produce an entirely new dish to present to your family at the dinner table.

Take round steak, for instance. Golden brown, tender pieces of round steak are a favorite serving with many folks. Here's an idea for a slight variation in serving that is sure to add new interest to your mealtime. It is a Beef Skillet Dinner. The round steak is cut into serving-size pieces, then wrapped around carrot sticks. They're cooked with whole potatoes and onions in a mushroom sauce for a delightful one-dish dinner.

Our Beef Skillet Dinner is an ideal choice for providing the family with a generous portion of their daily protein needs. For 4 servings of this dish purchase 1½ pounds of round steak cut ½ inch thick. Next, cut the steak into pieces about 3x5 inches. Then combine ¼ cup flour with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Dredge the steak with this seasoned flour.

Next, place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with wooden picks. Brown in rolls slowly on all sides in ¼ cup of lard or drippings. Pour off the drippings, then add 4 peeled potatoes and 4 small onions. Add one 10 ounce can of condensed mushroom soup. Cover tightly and simmer in a slow oven, 300° F., or on top of your range. Cooking time will be from 1½ to 2 hours.

Beef Birds
1½ pounds round steak, cut ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup lard or drippings
4 to 5 small carrots, cut in strips
4 peeled pofatoes
4 small onions
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup

Cut steak into pieces about 3x5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Place 3 or 4 carrot sticks on each piece of steak. Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick. Brown rolls slowly on all sides in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add potatoes and onions to steak and pour mushroom soup over all. Cover tightly and cook slowly in a slow oven (300° F.) or on top of range 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. 4 servings.

Food Guide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food stores across the nation will offer good selections of abundant foods for weekend shoppers.

Leading the list of meat buys is pork-loin roasts especially-along with broiler-fryer chickens and various cuts of beef. When your main dish plans include fish, look for plenty of canned Maine sardines, canned tuna, fish sticks and fish portions.

There are good supplies of fall fruits for salads, desserts, and just plain munching. Among the selections are apples, grapefruit, grapes, oranges, pears, and early shipments of fresh cranberries.

Moore Victory Seen Ending Bailey's Career

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., R-W.Va., said Wednesday his successful campaign that put an end to the long political career of Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W.Va., had its start well over a year ago.

Moore, who whipped Bailey by more than 31,000 votes Tuesday—the unofficial total in the 673 precincts in the 1st Congressional District was 97,747 votes for Moore, 66,132 for Bailey—said:

"We had developed a plan some 16 or 17 months ago and we stuck to that particular plan as it dealt with particular counties which were added to our congressional district. As we look at the outcome, we can't help but consider the fact that the formula we used was successful."

The Moore-Bailey battle turned into an elimination contest when the two congressmen were put in the same district as a result of the 961 Redistricting Act.

The other four incumbent Democrats won new House terms with ease. They were Harley O. Staggers in the 2nd District, John M. Slack Jr., in the 3rd, Ken Hechler in the 4th and Mrs. Elizabeth Kee in the fifth.

Staggers, who will become the dean of the state's delegation in Congress when Bailey leaves in January, won his eighth straight term by an 8-to-5 margin over Lewisburg cattle grower Cooper Benedict.

TV Cooperative Meets Tonight At Moorefield

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — Wendell Hester, president of the Valley TV Cooperative, requests all members and shareholders to attend the annual meeting tonight to be held at the Moorefield Firemens Hall beginning at 7:30. Hester said that the annual report would be given and that the annual election of officers and board members would be held.

Mr. Hester reported that the $15,000 facility had been paid for in the two years of operation but that minor repairs were necessary to improve the signal at present. He said that the accounts outstand were more than adequate to cover the costs of the repairs but that the cooperative was not going to go into debt while membership dues and pledges were outstanding from the members. He pointed out that the small amount of only $5 annually was perhaps the cheapest tv service in the nation.

The cooperative now has 234 members.

Charles Kuykendall, who has served as unpaid manager and maintenance supervisors for the cooperative since it was founded, resigned. Kuykendall simply said that he considered he had given his share of free time and equipment during the past three years and that he had to attend to his own business.

Liquor Proposal Defeat May "Dry Up" W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—The leader of West Virginia's pro-liquor forces said Wednesday law enforcement officials "have no choice but to 'dry up' the state" as a result of the defeat of the liquor by the drink amendment.

Paul Skeeter, president of the pro-amendment West Virginians for Moderation, said defeat of the amendment in Tuesday's election by a more than 3-to-2 margin was an "obvious mandate of the people against liquor by the drink."

He said that "local sheriffs and prosecuting attorneys would be derelict in their duty" if they did not dry up clubs and bars that sell liquor illegally.

The liquor amendment, one of five proposed constitutional changes voted down by the people, lost by more than 120,000 votes, 347,245 to 226,880. That tally includes reports from all but nine of West Virginia's 2,695 precincts.

The other amendments killed were proposals to let the governor and sheriffs serve two successive terms, guarantee at least one House of Delegates seat to every county and limit the agenda of budget sessions of the legislature. The governor's succession amendment also would have given the chief executive responsibility for drawing up the annual state budget.

The Rev. L. E. Crowson, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Defeat of the Liquor Amendment, said the liquor proposal's defeat "is a victory whose fruits will, in some part, be lost unless the voters . . . join in bringing about law enforcement on a better level than now exists.

"So far as I know," he said, "The Wheeling Junior Chamber of Commerce was the first body of West Virginians to say that if the people of this state should vote down liquor by the glass, they would join forces to bring about adequate enforcement.

"Thereafter, many other persons and organizations said the same," Crowson said.

Gov. W. W. Barron, who took no part in the amendment fight, said before the election that defeat of the amendment would "not necessarily" be a mandate for a statewide dryup. But he said it could lead to such a move.

Final tallies on the defeated amendments, in addition to the liquor proposal, were: Executive 326,783 to 148,799, Sheriffs succession 354,474 to 129,217, Apportionment 281,282 to 172,173 and Legislative 308,996 to 141,821.

Week's Food Economies

In the food markets, judicious planning and selection will pay rich dividends in savings, variety and good eating, says Virginia McLuckie, food economist, Baltimore Office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

Root vegetables are seasonal vegetable items that will add variety to your meals. White potatoes are listed among the best buys. Turnips belong to the mustard family and are usually white fleshed, although there are some yellow-fleshed varieties. Rutabagas are a cross between the turnip and some form of cabbage. Rutabagas have a denser root than turnips, and they are bigger and their shape more elongated. Look for those that are heavy for their size that are firm and smooth-surfaced. Small to medium-size roots are usually better quality. For many families, eating and cooking without onions would be dull and drab. Yellow onion prices are lower and quality appears to be above average. Keep onions where it is cool, dry and dark to prevent sprouting and decay. Carrots are a year-around vegetable but one that adds much to tasty stews for cool weather appetites. Production of late crop white potatoes is in excess of normal trade needs. The best green leafy vegetable buy is spinach from Maryland farms. Other attractive buys are mushrooms and acorn squash.

With very few exceptions supplies of all canned fruits and vegetables are such that very attractive prices can be offered at this time. There is a heavy pack of each tomatoes and tomato products, corn and snap beans. Many specials are being featured on canned items. Consumers will do well to examine the market offerings of canned vegetables and fruit and consider a purchase at seasonally low prices. Canned goods should be stored in a cool, dark, dry place. Consider also if the special sale will be of items that will fit into your family meal plans, family likes and dislikes and if funds are available for the purchase of stock.

Carlos Ortiz Wins Lopsided Decision In Tokyo Match

TOKYO (UPI) —World lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz of New York made a punching bag out of Japanese featherweight titleholder Kazuo Takayama and took a one-sided 10-round decision in an overweight non-title match Wednesday night before a standing crowd of more than 3,000 at the Korakuen gymnasium.

It was a tuneup fight for the 26-year-old world champion who will stake his title against Japanese lightweight champion Teruo Kosaka on Dec. 31 in Tokyo.

Ortiz battered the Japanese fighter with hard lefts and right hooks to the body, but failed to score a single knockdown.

Referee Haruo Ishiwatarido and Judge Takeo Ugo both scored it 50-43 for Ortiz. Judge Nicholas Pope, a civilian employe of the U.S. Department of Army, had it 50-40 for Ortiz. The UPI's score card was also 50-40 for the world champion.

Coaches-Officials Banquet Scheduled

The annual banquet for football coaches and officials of the Potomac Valley Conference will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, November 12, at the Old Homestead Hotel in Burlington.

All coaches and officials of the area are invited to be present, but have been requested to make their reservations with John R. Shelton at Keyser High School by tomorrow.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

Oklahoma State back Cecil Hankins takes a pass to score winning touchdown over Texas in 1944 season.

THE PLAY that won the Texas game of 1944 and sent Oklahoma State's Cowboys on to the Cotton Bowl two games later developed from a most unlikely situation.

The Longhorns were sitting on top of a cozy 8-0 lead and 11 minutes left in the game at Austin. Texas had punted out on the Oklahoma State 11, had a stiff wind at its back, and the Longhorn line, quite superior that day, had not allowed the Cowboys across midfield.

Despite Bobby Layne's passes for Dana Bible's Texans, the Pokes from Oklahoma had staved off all but one TU drive and had given up a safety.

Came fourth down with the Cowboys deep in the hole. Bob Fenimore, All-America that season and the next, fell back to punt. He detected TU's right end rushing in wide open, faked the kick, stepped outside and whirled upfield to the Texas 36 before he was cornered.

One play later, Fenimore shot a touchdown pass to halfback Cecil Hankins, but the score remained 8-6 Texas, time running short.

TU received and drove to OSU's 46 where a fumble was recovered by Nate Watson of the Pokes. Texas expected a Fenimore pass, but fullback Jim Spavital dived through for 19. But on next play, Fenimore drilled a pass to Hankins again, this one at the goal line for the winning touchdown in the 13-8 game that won a Cotton Bowl bid for the Oklahomans who were to spill Texas Christian in Dallas on New Year's Day.

When Fenimore alertly elected to run on that fourth down punting situation, it ignited a two-touchdown rally that brought victory from the most desperate spot coach Jim Lookabaugh's Cowboys were to find themselves in during their Cotton and Sugar Bowl championship years of 1944 and 1945.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Associate U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White, former University of Colorado and Detroit Lions' football player, is among the former gridiron stars nominated by their alma maters for the 1962 Sports Illustrated silver anniversary All-America award.

Forty nine colleges have chosen candidates for the awards, to be judged on outstanding accomplishments during the last 25 years.

Also, John Bateman of Columbia and head football coach at Rutgers; Victor Fusia of Manhattan and head football coach at the University of Massachusetts; Col. Clark Hinkle of the U.S. Air Force, Vanderbilt, and Hall of Famer, and Bob Carpenter of Duke and president of Philadelphia Phillies.

The final selection of the 25-man roster will be announced Dec. 10.

Black Hawks Tied By Boston Bruins

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Black Hawks, playing without goalie Glenn Hall for the first time since 1951, had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Boston Bruins Wednesday night.

Boston pulled goalie Bob Perrault out of the cage in the final minute while trailing 3-2. Both Stan Mikita and Ab McDonald had clear shots at the yawning net but Mikita's was wide and McDonald kicked his into the boards.

John Bucyk circled in front of Denis DeJordy and dropped a rebound shot past the rookie goalie who went in for Hall in the first period.

Hall, 31, had played 33,060 consecutive minutes in the National Hockey League since the opening game of the 1955-56 season, including 49 playoff matches.

DeJordy was called up from Buffalo, N.Y., after Hall suffered a pinched nerve in his back during Tuesday's workout.

Passing Duel Seen Between Yost And Liske

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia University-Penn State game Saturday could well turn into a duel between two highly ranked quarterbacks in the Mountaineers Jerry Yost and the Lions Pete Liske.

Yost ranks 14th in the nation in total offense while Liske is 13th in passing. Yost also ranks fourth in most touchdown passes with nine. Terry Baker of Oregon State and Tom Myers of Northwestern are tied for first with 12 each and George Mira of Miami has 10.

Coach Gene Corum put the Mountaineers through offensive and defensive drills Wednesday and will name a 40-man traveling squad Thursday.

Corum noted that several players, including linebacker John Skinner, are still hobbling around with injuries. However, he is hopeful all will be ready for the Penn State Contest.

Gotham Bowl Would Like Lambert Winner As Host

Plan Would Create More Interest In Eastern Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Francis T. Hunter, chairman of the Gotham Bowl committee, said Wednesday he would like the Lambert trophy winner, recognized as the top major college football team in the East, to be host team for New York's annual bowl game.

"This would add zest to the race for the Lambert Trophy," Hunter said, "and would excite greater public interest in eastern football. Right now New York City can guarantee a visitor every form of entertainment except championship college football.

"The plan of the Lambert trophy winner acting as host in the Gotham Bowl will guarantee that each year New York will have one championship college football game."

Bob Curran, executive director of the Gotham Bowl, said that the March of Dimes will be the recipient charity for the game for the next three years. A two-year contract also has been signed for use of Yankee Stadium, said Curran.

The 1962 Gotham Bowl is scheduled for Dec. 15. Miami of Florida already has been extended a bid. Curran said the committee is trying to line up one of the East's top teams.

"Right now there are 14 or 15 potential teams. There are only a few bowls open and I don't think we'll have any competition with the Liberty Bowl in Philadelphia.

Pitt AD Denies Talking With Missouri Coach

Squelches Rumors About Michelosen

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Frank Carver, University of Pittsburgh athletic director, Wednesday denied traveling to Columbia, Mo., for talks with Missouri football coach Dan Devine.

"I've never been in Columbia and never want to go there," Carver said angrily when asked about the rumored trip to hire Devine. "I don't know how these rumors start but it's all bunk."

"We aren't world beaters but we have a good season going and I guess everybody is unhappy because everything is all right."

The Panthers, coached by John Michelosen, have a 4-3 record but their unpredictable performances this season have affected gate receipts heavily.

Two years ago, Pitt gave Michelosen what amounted to a lifetime contract. However, rumors circulating here said Michelosen may be "kicked upstairs."

Boston Celtics Nip Cincinnati

Bob Cousy Hero Of 106-105 Win

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Bob Cousy scored a layup and a free throw in the final 13 seconds to direct the Boston Celtics to a tough 106-105 victory over the Cincinnati Royals Wednesday night.

With 32 seconds remaining, Cousy dribbled the full length of the court and slipped through the Royal defense for a basket that broke a 103-103 tie. Cincinnati messed up its out of bounds play and Cousy was fouled after Boston recovered the ball.

Cousy hit one of two free throws to clinch the win with six seconds to go. But the Royals almost pulled it out when Oscar Robertson sped downcourt and went in for a layup with two seconds left. Then Bob Boozer grabbed the Celtics' throw-in and jumped for an attempted basket. The ball was in the air at the buzzer, but the ball hit the rim and bounced away.

Robertson and Wayne Embry dominated the scoring with more than half of the Royal points. Robertson had 42 points and Embry 23. Sam Jones led the Celtics with 23 points.

Snead, Palmer Favored To Capture Canada Cup

Teams From 34 Nations Compete At Buenos Aires

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead, riding a hot streak despite a bad foot, were ruled the favorites Wednesday night against two-man teams from 33 other nations on the eve of the 10th annual International Golf championships.

"Well," analyzed Palmer despite the fact that he was spraying his iron shots, "we didn't comes this far to lose it."

They tee off at 11:00 a.m. Thursday for the first of four daily rounds in company with the Japanese twosome of Pete Nakamura, the individual winner when the tournament was staged in Japan in 1957, and Tadashi Kitta. The team with the low total when the tournament ends Sunday will capture the Canada Cup, with the low man in the field winning the International trophy now held by Snead.

Snead Looks Good

Despite a pinched nerve between the second and third toes of his right foot which hurts like blazes when he walks but doesn't bother him when he is swinging, Snead displayed his readiness when he fired a practice round six under par 64.

Actually only eight teams were given a chance of winning the team championship—the United States, Argentina, Australia, Scotland, Wales, England, Ireland and South Africa.

The long-driving host team of Fidel Deluca and Robert de Vincenzo didn't have too much of an edge due to its knowledge of the Jockey Club golf course because it is a short layout of only 6,746 yards with a par of 34-36—70.

Australia A Threat

Four-time British Open champion Peter Thomson and former British Open champion Kel Nagle, former winners of the team title, gave Australia a solid threat.

Most of the top contenders for the individual title agreed that it would take a score of 270—10 shot under par —to win the International trophy.

Meanwhile, the chief topic of conversation among the players was a speech at the annual dinner for the competing teams at which Kenneth Gordon-Davis of host club praised the United States.

"Never," he said, "has one country given so much to the world and received so little in return."

"There wasn't a single "nyet" in the house.

Pilot Recovers Lost Ground In Scoring Chase

Challenges Logan For College Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim (Preacher) Pilot's chances of successfully defending his college football scoring title appeared forlorn two weeks ago, but the New Mexico State speedster now has recovered enough ground to challenge Jerry Logan for the point championship.

Logan, of West Texas State, has 88 points to 86 for Pilot. But while Logan was held scoreless in his last two games, Pilot racked up 44 points the past two Saturdays to put him in a position of becoming the first double scoring leader since Tom Harmon turned the trick for Michigan in 1939-40.

NCAA service bureau statistics Wednesday showed Vern Burke of Oregon State maintaining a slim lead over John Simmons of Tulsa in pass receptions. Burke has hauled down 50 passes to 46 for runner-up Simmons.

The all-time record for number of catches in a season is 66 set by Hugh Campbell of Washington State in 1960. Campbell currently is fifth in pass receiving with 35 catches.

Darrell Roberts of Utah State and Donnie Frederick of Wake Forest retained their leadership in punt returns and kickoff returns, each averaging 24.2 yards a runback. Roberts has amassed 266 yards on punts and Frederick 435 yards on kickoffs.

Dixie Walker Gets Brave Coaching Job

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Fred "Dixie" Walker, former major league hitting star, Wednesday was named a 1963 coach by the Milwaukee Braves.

Walker, 52, has scouted for the Braves since 1960 and currently is at Bradenton, Fla., working with young Braves' hitters in the Winter Instructional League.

"Walker did an exceptional job as a scout and we would have liked to have kept him there," said John McHale, Braves president.

But we felt an immediate job has to be done working with younger players coming up to the parent club. We think Dixie will do a real job."

Three More International Entries Arrive

Two Soviet Horses Are Still Enroute

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Three foreign horses scheduled to compete in the $25,000 Washington, D.C. International arrived Wednesday at Laurel Race Course.

Of the expected 13-horse field in the Nov. 12 mile and a half turf race, only the Russian horses Zabeg and Livan have not yet put in an appearance. They are due late Thursday afternoon.

Wednesday's arrivals included Opponent from Germany, Porfido of Peru and Pardao of England.

Carry Back, one of three United States horses in the race, was schooled at the Newmarket tape — which is used instead of a starting gate in the International.

"He broke very well," said trainer Jack Price. "In fact, he broke better than the jockey."

Price referred to the leap Carry Back made at the start. Bert Wildridge, the exercise boy, expected the 4-year-old colt to take a step before beginning to run. But Carry Back leaped forward, and almost unseated Wildridge. Carry Back completed his workout by galloping twice around the track.

Maple Leafs Beat Punchless Rangers

NEW YORK (UPI) —Billy Harris scored two goals and assisted on another Wednesday night to lead the Toronto Maple Leafs to an easy 5-1 National Hockey League victory over the punchless New York Rangers.

Don Simmons, subbing for Toronto goalie Johnny Bower, was little more than an interested spectator through most of the game as the aggressive Maple Leafs held a wide territorial advantage in every period.

Simmons made only 19 saves and the crowd of 11,714 at Madison Square Garden booed the Rangers ineffective efforts throughout the second and third periods.

Carlos Ortiz Wins Lopsided Decision In Tokyo Match

TOKYO (UPI) —World lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz of New York made a punching bag out of Japanese featherweight titleholder Kazuo Takayama and took a one-sided 10-round decision in an overweight non-title match Wednesday night before a standing crowd of more than 3,000 at the Korakuen gymnasium.

It was a tuneup fight for the 26-year-old world champion who will stake his title against Japanese lightweight champion Teruo Kosaka on Dec. 31 in Tokyo.

Ortiz battered the Japanese fighter with hard lefts and right hooks to the body, but failed to score a single knockdown.

Referee Haruo Ishiwatarido and Judge Takeo Ugo both scored it 50-43 for Ortiz. Judge Nicholas Pope, a civilian employe of the U.S. Department of Army, had it 50-40 for Ortiz. The UPI's score card was also 50-40 for the world champion.

Coaches-Officials Banquet Scheduled

The annual banquet for football coaches and officials of the Potomac Valley Conference will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, November 12, at the Old Homestead Hotel in Burlington.

All coaches and officials of the area are invited to be present, but have been requested to make their reservations with John R. Shelton at Keyser High School by tomorrow.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

Oklahoma State back Cecil Hankins takes a pass to score winning touchdown over Texas in 1944 season.

THE PLAY that won the Texas game of 1944 and sent Oklahoma State's Cowboys on to the Cotton Bowl two games later developed from a most unlikely situation.

The Longhorns were sitting on top of a cozy 8-0 lead and 11 minutes left in the game at Austin. Texas had punted out on the Oklahoma State 11, had a stiff wind at its back, and the Longhorn line, quite superior that day, had not allowed the Cowboys across midfield.

Despite Bobby Layne's passes for Dana Bible's Texans, the Pokes from Oklahoma had staved off all but one TU drive and had given up a safety.

Came fourth down with the Cowboys deep in the hole. Bob Fenimore, All-America that season and the next, fell back to punt. He detected TU's right end rushing in wide open, faked the kick, stepped outside and whirled upfield to the Texas 36 before he was cornered.

One play later, Fenimore shot a touchdown pass to halfback Cecil Hankins, but the score remained 8-6 Texas, time running short.

TU received and drove to OSU's 46 where a fumble was recovered by Nate Watson of the Pokes. Texas expected a Fenimore pass, but fullback Jim Spavital dived through for 19. But on next play, Fenimore drilled a pass to Hankins again, this one at the goal line for the winning touchdown in the 13-8 game that won a Cotton Bowl bid for the Oklahomans who were to spill Texas Christian in Dallas on New Year's Day.

When Fenimore alertly elected to run on that fourth down punting situation, it ignited a two-touchdown rally that brought victory from the most desperate spot coach Jim Lookabaugh's Cowboys were to find themselves in during their Cotton and Sugar Bowl championship years of 1944 and 1945.

Whizzer White Nominated For Silver Anniversary Grid Award

Supreme Court Justice Among 49 Men Selected

Forty nine colleges have chosen candidates for the awards, to be judged on outstanding accomplishments during the last 25 years.

Other leading former players nominated include Cecil Isbell of Purdue and the Green Bay Packers; John Michelosen of the University of Pittsburgh and head football coach at Pitt; Jordan Olivar of Villanova and head football coach at Yale; Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of the University of Mississippi and first assistant coach at Ole Miss; Clint Frank of Yale, Hall of Famer and advertising executive.

Also, John Bateman of Columbia and head football coach at Rutgers; Victor Fusia of Manhattan and head football coach at the University of Massachusetts; Col. Clark Hinkle of the U.S. Air Force, Vanderbilt, and Hall of Famer, and Bob Carpenter of Duke and president of Philadelphia Phillies.

The final selection of the 25-man roster will be announced Dec. 10.

Black Hawks Tied By Boston Bruins

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Black Hawks, playing without goalie Glenn Hall for the first time since 1951, had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Boston Bruins Wednesday night.

Boston pulled goalie Bob Perrault out of the cage in the final minute while trailing 3-2. Both Stan Mikita and Ab McDonald had clear shots at the yawning net but Mikita's was wide and McDonald kicked his into the boards.

John Bucyk circled in front of Denis DeJordy and dropped a rebound shot past the rookie goalie who went in for Hall in the first period.

Hall, 31, had played 33,060 consecutive minutes in the National Hockey League since the opening game of the 1955-56 season, including 49 playoff matches.

DeJordy was called up from Buffalo, N.Y., after Hall suffered a pinched nerve in his back during Tuesday's workout.

Passing Duel Seen Between Yost And Liske

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia University-Penn State game Saturday could well turn into a duel between two highly ranked quarterbacks in the Mountaineers Jerry Yost and the Lions Pete Liske.

Yost ranks 14th in the nation in total offense while Liske is 13th in passing. Yost also ranks fourth in most touchdown passes with nine. Terry Baker of Oregon State and Tom Myers of Northwestern are tied for first with 12 each and George Mira of Miami has 10.

Coach Gene Corum put the Mountaineers through offensive and defensive drills Wednesday and will name a 40-man traveling squad Thursday.

Corum noted that several players, including linebacker John Skinner, are still hobbling around with injuries. However, he is hopeful all will be ready for the Penn State Contest.

Gotham Bowl Would Like Lambert Winner As Host

Plan Would Create More Interest In Eastern Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Francis T. Hunter, chairman of the Gotham Bowl committee, said Wednesday he would like the Lambert trophy winner, recognized as the top major college football team in the East, to be host team for New York's annual bowl game.

"This would add zest to the race for the Lambert Trophy," Hunter said, "and would excite greater public interest in eastern football. Right now New York City can guarantee a visitor every form of entertainment except championship college football.

"The plan of the Lambert trophy winner acting as host in the Gotham Bowl will guarantee that each year New York will have one championship college football game."

Bob Curran, executive director of the Gotham Bowl, said that the March of Dimes will be the recipient charity for the game for the next three years. A two-year contract also has been signed for use of Yankee Stadium, said Curran.

The 1962 Gotham Bowl is scheduled for Dec. 15. Miami of Florida already has been extended a bid. Curran said the committee is trying to line up one of the East's top teams.

"Right now there are 14 or 15 potential teams. There are only a few bowls open and I don't think we'll have any competition with the Liberty Bowl in Philadelphia.

Pitt AD Denies Talking With Missouri Coach

Squelches Rumors About Michelosen

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Frank Carver, University of Pittsburgh athletic director, Wednesday denied traveling to Columbia, Mo., for talks with Missouri football coach Dan Devine.

"I've never been in Columbia and never want to go there," Carver said angrily when asked about the rumored trip to hire Devine. "I don't know how these rumors start but it's all bunk."

"We aren't world beaters but we have a good season going and I guess everybody is unhappy because everything is all right."

The Panthers, coached by John Michelosen, have a 4-3 record but their unpredictable performances this season have affected gate receipts heavily.

Two years ago, Pitt gave Michelosen what amounted to a lifetime contract. However, rumors circulating here said Michelosen may be "kicked upstairs."

Boston Celtics Nip Cincinnati

Bob Cousy Hero Of 106-105 Win

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Bob Cousy scored a layup and a free throw in the final 13 seconds to direct the Boston Celtics to a tough 106-105 victory over the Cincinnati Royals Wednesday night.

With 32 seconds remaining, Cousy dribbled the full length of the court and slipped through the Royal defense for a basket that broke a 103-103 tie. Cincinnati messed up its out of bounds play and Cousy was fouled after Boston recovered the ball.

Cousy hit one of two free throws to clinch the win with six seconds to go. But the Royals almost pulled it out when Oscar Robertson sped downcourt and went in for a layup with two seconds left. Then Bob Boozer grabbed the Celtics' throw-in and jumped for an attempted basket. The ball was in the air at the buzzer, but the ball hit the rim and bounced away.

Robertson and Wayne Embry dominated the scoring with more than half of the Royal points. Robertson had 42 points and Embry 23. Sam Jones led the Celtics with 23 points.

Snead, Palmer Favored To Capture Canada Cup

Teams From 34 Nations Compete At Buenos Aires

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead, riding a hot streak despite a bad foot, were ruled the favorites Wednesday night against two-man teams from 33 other nations on the eve of the 10th annual International Golf championships.

"Well," analyzed Palmer despite the fact that he was spraying his iron shots, "we didn't comes this far to lose it."

They tee off at 11:00 a.m. Thursday for the first of four daily rounds in company with the Japanese twosome of Pete Nakamura, the individual winner when the tournament was staged in Japan in 1957, and Tadashi Kitta. The team with the low total when the tournament ends Sunday will capture the Canada Cup, with the low man in the field winning the International trophy now held by Snead.

Snead Looks Good

Despite a pinched nerve between the second and third toes of his right foot which hurts like blazes when he walks but doesn't bother him when he is swinging, Snead displayed his readiness when he fired a practice round six under par 64.

Actually only eight teams were given a chance of winning the team championship—the United States, Argentina, Australia, Scotland, Wales, England, Ireland and South Africa.

The long-driving host team of Fidel Deluca and Robert de Vincenzo didn't have too much of an edge due to its knowledge of the Jockey Club golf course because it is a short layout of only 6,746 yards with a par of 34-36—70.

Australia A Threat

Four-time British Open champion Peter Thomson and former British Open champion Kel Nagle, former winners of the team title, gave Australia a solid threat.

Most of the top contenders for the individual title agreed that it would take a score of 270—10 shot under par —to win the International trophy.

Meanwhile, the chief topic of conversation among the players was a speech at the annual dinner for the competing teams at which Kenneth Gordon-Davis of host club praised the United States.

"Never," he said, "has one country given so much to the world and received so little in return."

"There wasn't a single "nyet" in the house.

Challenges Logan For College Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim (Preacher) Pilot's chances of successfully defending his college football scoring title appeared forlorn two weeks ago, but the New Mexico State speedster now has recovered enough ground to challenge Jerry Logan for the point championship.

Logan, of West Texas State, has 88 points to 86 for Pilot. But while Logan was held scoreless in his last two games, Pilot racked up 44 points the past two Saturdays to put him in a position of becoming the first double scoring leader since Tom Harmon turned the trick for Michigan in 1939-40.

Saturday's game will close out Bruce's season.

Elliott's Record Threatened; Meet Scheduled At 3:45

Fort Hill High School will defend the team and individual championships it won a year ago when the fourth annual Allegany County cross-country meet is staged today at 3:45 p.m., over the Fort Cumberland Golf Course.

The Sentinels have won two of the three meets held in past years and have copped individual honors three years in a row.

Last year Fort Hill set the pace with 30 points. Beall was the runner-up with 44 and Allegany was last with 50.

In the first county meet held in 1959, Fort Hill won with 23 points followed by Allegany with 43 and Beall 71.

Beall High was the 1960 champion with 26 tallies to Allegany's 51 and Fort Hill's 53.

Elliott's Time Beat

The best time turned in by a harrier in a county meet was 11 minutes, 20.5 seconds, credited to Tom Elliott, of Fort Hill, the 1961 winner.

Merwin Hast of the Sentinels copped the 1959 two-mile test in 12:03 while Ronald Armolt, Fort Hill freshman, romped home first in 1960. His team was 11 minutes, 43 seconds.

A new record is expected to be established in today's Class A meet as Don Fletcher and Don McKenzie, of Beall, and Tom Elliott of Fort Hill have turned in better times than Elliott's mark of 1961. Fletcher's best time is 10:54, McKenzie's 10:59 and Elliott's 11:13.

Third Title Event

In previous meets this season Beall won the area crown by edging Romney, 47-51, but Romney nosed out Beall, 34-38, to annex the Potomac Valley Conference championship. In the PVC meet Allen Hott of Romney covered the two miles in 10:46.

The Class "B" meet will be held for the second straight year. Allegany High School was the victor in 1961 with 23 points, Fort Hill was second with 45 and Beall third with 61. Richard Mikesell, of Allegany, led the hill and dale runners in 12 minutes, 20.6 seconds.

Pence Is Director

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for Allegany county public schools, who launched cross-country programs on their way three years ago, will direct both meets today.

Torres Claims Friend Patterson 'Let Him Down'

BOSTON (AP) — Jose Torres, an ambitious middleweight from New York said Wednesday Floyd Patterson refused to lend him $100,000 needed to guarantee a title fight with Boston's Paul Pender.

"My friend let me down," Torres was quoted as saying by Boston Traveler columnist Tim Horgan. "I thought he was my friend, but no more."

Torres and Pender were slated to meet here Nov. 15 for the piece of the middleweight title Pender shares with Dick Tiger.

The scrap failed to materialize when Torres' manager Cus D'Amato failed to come up with the $100,000 he had guaranteed to pay Pender a week before the fight.

Packers' Taylor May Beat Jim Brown's Rush Record

Green Bay Back Averaging 117 Yards Per Game

NEW YORK (UPI) —Bulldozing Jim Taylor of the Green Bay Packers appears a cinch to break Jimmy Brown's five-year monopoly on the National Football League rushing championship and at his present pace could break Brown's season record as well.

Taylor gained 124 yards against the Chicago Bears last Sunday to open a 255-yard lead over his closest rushing rival, John Henry Johnson of the Pittsburgh Steelers, according to the latest statistics released Wednesday by the NFL.

The Green Bay fullback's total now is 934 yards, which averages out to about 117 per game. By continuing that pace, Taylor could wind up with a total of 1,638 and break Brown's mark of 1,527 set during a 12-game schedule in 1958. The NFL now plays a 14-game schedule.

Taylor also is the workhorse of the NFL with 152 carries and has the best average among the most active rushers with 6.1 yards per try. When Brown set the record in 1958, he averaged 5.9 yards in 257 carries. Brown has led the NFL ball-carriers for the past five seasons.

Clarke Leads Scoring

The only change in individual leadership this week was in scoring, where Frank Clarke of the Dallas Cowboys added a touchdown to break away from a first-place tie with Bobby Mitchell of the Washington Redskins. Clarke now has 72 points to 66 for Mitchell and 62 for Paul Hornung of the Packers, who has been out of action for three games.

Although there were no changes in the leadership of other departments, there were four new runnersup in the five major individual specialities.

Johnson replaced Don Perkins Dallas as runnerup in rushing; Bart Starr of the Packers took over second place in passing behind Eddie Le Baron of the Cowboys; Sonny Randle of the St. Louis Cardinals moved up to second in pass receiving behind Mitchell; and Danny Villanueva of Los Angeles Rams is runnerup to Sam Baker of Dallas in punting.

LeBaron, Passing Leader

LeBaron, with 74 completions in 119 attempts for a 62.2 percentage and 1,138 yards, is the overall passing leader. However, Starr has the best completion percentage (63.2) and the best percentage in avoiding interception (3.1); and third-place Y.A. Tittle of the New York Giants has gained the most yardage (2,016) and thrown the most touchdown passes (19).

Mitchell and Randle each caught 44 passes, but the Redskins flanker has a lead in yardage gained, 958 to 772, and in touchdown catches, 10 to 4.

Baker's first-place punting average is 46.5 yards for 33 kicks compared to Villanueva's 46.2 for 52.

In the three other departments, Willie Wood of Green Bay continues to lead in pass interceptions with 7; Mitchell remains first in kickoff returns with an average of 37.8 yards for 9 runbacks; and Pat Studstill of the Detroit Lions has run back 19 punts for an average of 18.1 yards.

Crimson Tide Center Voted Top Lineman

Lee Roy Jordan Cited In AP Poll

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lee Roy Jordan, Alabama's star center, was voted lineman of the week Wednesday in The Associated Press weekly poll.

Performing in the tough Southeastern Conference, Jordan made at least 12 unassisted tackles as the third-ranked and unbeaten Crimson Tide whipped Mississippi State 20-0 last Saturday.

Another center, Rich Butkus of Illinois, was high up in the voting by sports writers and broadcasters. The 240-pound sophomore turned in a great performance as the Illini ended a 15-game losing streak by upsetting Purdue 14-10. He made 11 tackles and inspired an aroused Illini defense that repeatedly stopped Purdue in scoring territory.

Ends Rudy Kuechenberg of Indiana and Tom Magoffin of Texas Christian received high praise. Kuechenberg made 8 solo tackles and was in on 6 others as the Hoosiers nearly upset top-ranked Northwestern. Magoffin caught 7 passes for 113 yards, including one for 15 yards and a touchdown.

Tony Liscio, Tulsa's big tackle who was named the lineman of the week in the Missouri Valley Conference, achieved the goal of every lineman. Lining up as an eligible pass receiver, the 235-pound senior caught a 26-yard aerial for a TD that helped insure victory over Cincinnati.

Basketball Pro Loses Election In Rhode Island

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jim Hadnot, 6-foot-10 Oakland Oaks basketball player, was defeated in the Rhode Island Assembly election.

But he may escape a $100 fine levied by Oakland of the American Basketball League because he failed to report for practice last week. Gen. Mgr. Joe Anzivino said he would not decide until Hadnot arrives.

Hadnot was defeated 1,538 to 1,017 in Tuesday's election by a wealthy Republican assemblyman, Frederick Lippit.

Hadnot said he didn't know he had been acquired by Oakland until he read a newspaper story about the $100 fine.

Sport Talk with Troxell by Ted

Political campaigners have wiped off their best smiles and put their shaking hands back into their pockets for another two years, but up in Frostburg there's a gentleman who is waging a campaign of quite a different sort.

Ken Babcock, veteran soccer coach at Frostburg State Teachers College, wants to lead the effort to expand and boost his favorite sport in this area.

At present, five high schools in Allegany County —namely, Beall, Bruce, Valley, Mt. Savage and Flintstone — play soccer on the varsity level, as members of the WMI League which closed out its 36th campaign yesterday.

Babcock would like to see Cumberland's high schools add soccer to their fall sports programs, but realizes some of the opposition to such a move comes from football devotees.

There are those who argue that the addition of soccer in schools which play football will hurt the gridiron programs. Ken believes, and we're inclined to agree, that those who take that view, in reality, "don't have a leg to stand on."

As a case in point, he noted that Frostburg State started football last season and this year he (Babcock) came up with one of his strongest soccer teams in history. At the same time, the Bobcat football team has made a good showing for having only been engaged in varsity competition for two seasons.

Bruce High added football this year, and while some of last season's soccer players defected to the gridiron, coach Leonard Ritchie still had a good turnout of players in soccer and came up with a creditable team.

In fact, Ritchie had a number of underclassmen on this year's squad, and he expects big things of the Bulldogs next year. If football did affect the soccer program at the Westernport school, you can be sure it was only temporary.

Babcock supervised the junior high school soccer tournament sponsored by FSTC Tuesday on the college field, and was well pleased with the overall results. Four schools (all of the WMIL members except Flintstone) participated, with Mt. Savage winning the championship.

It is Babcock's desire that every high school in the county enter the tournament next year, including Allegany and Fort Hill. This, he thinks, will be a big step in the direction of getting the Cumberland schools into varsity competition.

Perhaps the biggest point in favor of such a move is the fact that it will give more boys a chance to engage in interscholastic athletics.

Certainly if Beall and Bruce can support both sports, Allegany and Fort Hill with their much larger enrollments can do so without any problem.

Perhaps by the time the next political campaign rolls around, Ken Babcock's personal campaign will have been won.

Although Wayne Harper has missed the Beall High Mountaineers' last four games because of an ankle injury, the big senior halfback continues to be the team's leading ground-gainer.

Harper, regarded by Beall coach Jerry Calhoun as one of the best high school football players in the area, hurt his ankle in the Fort Hill game on September 28, and has been sidelined ever since. He'll have to sit out tomorrow night's important game with Allegany, but may be ready for the Turkey Day clash with LaSalle at Frostburg.

Through the first four games, Wayne carried the ball 73 times for 601 yards — a per-carry average of 8.2. In 80 carries this season, Ralph Spriggs has gained 549 yards for a 6.8 average.

Calhoun is concerned with his team's recent attack of "fumble-itis" (in the last two games they've fumbled nine times), and is going to shake up his lineup tomorrow in an effort to remedy the situation.

Wayne Miller, a 145-pound junior, will get the call at quarterback in place of Morey Linn. Pat Roberts, a freshman, will probably start at fullback instead of Joe James, who has a minor arm injury and will see only limited action. Defensive halfback Carl Smith will be used in the right halfback slot on offense.

Parilli Arrives After Ten Pro Grid Seasons

Babe's Passing Pacing Patriots

BOSTON (UPI)—It's taken ten seasons to do it but one-time Kentucky All-American Babe Parilli is finally proving he's a top drawer professional quarterback.

The passing of the 32-year-old Parilli is the prime reason the Boston Patriots have climbed to the top of the American Football League's Eastern Division. And if he continues his present torrid pace, he could wind up the season as the league's chief aerial artist.

Strangely, Parilli was a part time player for no less than five teams in three leagues, including the Patriots, before coach Mike Holovak shipped out his only other experienced passer and made Parilli his regular.

"With that kind of confidence shown in me—for the first time since I was in college—I had to do well," is Parilli's personal summary.

Right now, the veteran Boston signal caller is the AFL's third ranked passer with 120 completions in 219 attempts for 1,671 yards and 15 touchdowns. His .547 completion rate puts him behind only Len Dawson of Dallas and Frank Tripucka of Denver in current league statistics.

Parilli and the Patriots tangle for the second time with Tripucka and the Broncos at Denver this weekend after Babe led Boston to a 41-16 rout of the Western Division leaders in their first meeting.

Parilli, a Rochester, Pa., native and Green Bay Wisc. resident was the National Football League's second draft choice in 1951 after leading Kentucky to a Sugar Bowl conquest of Oklahoma.

Holovak doesn't think the Patriots were taking a chance by shipping Songin out.

"I'm not surprised by what Babe has been doing for us. He runs the show and he is a heck of a football player. We don't have a single outstanding pass receiver because he mixes his passes and throws well to all of them," Holovak said.

Fight Opponents May Be Related .

NEW YORK (UPI) — Middleweight Mick Leahy of Cork, Ireland, and Irish Joey Archer of New York discovered Wednesday —while Ruth Kelly was playing the harp at P. J. Moriarty's tavern—they may be relatives, but it won't interfere with their fight Saturday night

Their nationally televised bout at Madison Square Garden is scheduled for 10 rounds.

Stocky, 27-year-old Leahy with the reddish-brown hair—the first Ireland-born fighter to invade the United States in a quarter-century, met rangy, dark-haired, Archer, 24, Wednesday at a boxing lunch in Moriarty's.

Archer told the diners, "my grand parents come from Cork, and—"

Leahy interrupted, "Say — my folks told me we had some relatives named Archer who went to America — way back. Maybe they were your grandparents. Maybe we're related."

When the fighters gazed at one another with a new interest that might be approaching family affection, John F. X. Condon, the Garden's publicity director, stood up and suggested: "Let's wait until after Saturday night—then you boy's can investigate your family trees."

Rec Leagues To Meet Today

Initial Sessions Set At City Hall

Plans for the City Recreation Department's two basketball leagues will be presented at meetings tonight at City Hall. The high school league will meet at 7 p. m., and the men's circuit an hour later.

All representatives of teams desiring to join the leagues this season are urged to have representatives at the initial sessions tonight.

Recreation director C. Eugene Mason said that the number of teams will be limited by the number of courts available for play.

Team fees will be the same as last year — combined entry and forfeit fees of $20 for the high school league, and a $35 entry fee for the men's organization.

Each year the number of teams in both leagues has been increasing, and the past season saw a record list of entries. The high school league had 12 teams, and 17 competed in the men's league.

Coach Tom Nugent said he was very pleased with the drill and called it the most spirited scrimmage of the season.

End Mike Funk returned to action on a full-time basis Wednesday, and Ken Ambrusko also figured to be in the starting lineup of the defensive unit Saturday. Both sophomores have been sidelined with knee injuries for the past several weeks.

Wagman Admits Making Tour To Bribe College Basketballers

Visited Campus At College Park In 1959 Season

NEW YORK (AP) — An admitted briber of college basketball athletes testified Wednesday he and a companion went on a tour of Southern colleges in 1959 and hired players to dump games at prices ranging from $700 to $1,000 a game.

Aaron Wagman, testifying at the trial of Jack Molinas, said he and Joseph Green made the trip and stopped at Raleigh, N.C., the site of North Carolina State; the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and Mississippi State at Starkville Miss.

When Green and he returned from the trip, Wagman said he reported to Molinas, "We got three teams now."

Molinas, former Columbia University and professional basketball player, is charged with bribing a Bowling Green, Ohio, player, with conspiracy in an attempted fix of 25 different games in the 1959-1960 season and with subornation of perjury.

Wagman, who is awaiting sentence for his part in the case, also testified that he made a fruitless trip to College Park, Md., Feb. 27, 1959 in an attempt to bribe a University of South Carolina player to "dump" a game with the University of Maryland.

He testified he approached Michael Callahan with a $1,000 bribe offer, but the player refused.

Before the trial Wednesday, justice Joseph A. Serafite, adjourned until Nov. 15 Wagman's sentencing on his guilty plea to 38 counts of conspiracy and bribery of college players.

The trial continues Thursday.

Marshall Prexy Says No Coaching Changes Planned

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (UPI)—Marshall University President Stewart H. Smith said Wednesday that a report that football coach Charley Snyder is on his way out is "completely unfounded."

Smith said there has been no discussion of, "and no consideration of a coaching change."

Athletic Director Whitey Wilson said a report that Merrill Gainer of Bluefield may replace Snyder is "absolutely untrue, unfounded and uncalled for."

Assistant Athletic Director Ray Cumberledge said there was "absolutely no foundation" to the report and added, "in fact it overwhelms me that anyone would have an idea like that."

Terps Meet Duke In Soccer Match

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland and Duke, both undefeated in conference play, meet in a soccer match here Thursday at 3 p.m. in a game that may decide the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

Maryland is 5-0 for the season and Duke is 6-1, the only loss coming at the hands of a powerful Navy team.

WVU, Maryland Prime Contenders For Liberty Bowl

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)— A.F. (Bud) Dudley, president of the Liberty Bowl, said Tuesday that seven schools are leading contenders for selection for the eastern berth at the Liberty Bowl game Dec. 15.

"It's really too early to narrow the field," Dudley said, adding that "prime contenders" are Penn State, West Virginia, Army, Villanova, Duke, Maryland and Pitt.

Expansion Talks Scheduled By NBA

DETROIT (AP)—The National Basketball Association's board of governors will meet here Thursday with expansion its chief topic of consideration.

Baltimore has long been reported to have the inside track if the NBA decides to expand to 10 clubs.

Another possible item of discussion could be eventual transfer of the Detroit Pistons to Philadelphia. This move has been rumored as a result of poor attenance in Detroit and the transfer of the Warriors from Philadelphia to San Francisco.

Jack Nicklaus Named Golf's Rookie Of Year

NORWALK, Conn. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, winner of the U.S. Open golf championship in his first year on the professional tour, Wednesday was named rookie of the year by Golf Digest magazine.

Nicklaus also achieved prominence by beating Arnold Palmer and Gary Player in Akron's Firestone Country Club world series exhibition and in September he captured the Seattle and Portland opens.

The 22-year-old star already has unofficial earnings of $112,132 in 1962, including the $50,000 first prize he won in the World Series exhibition, which is more than double the earnings of any of the five previous freshman standouts.

Nicklaus left the tour after his Portland victory to resume his studies at Ohio State University but left shortly after because he had missed too much time. He recently played in the Australian championships.

Sport Talk with Troxell by Ted

Political campaigners have wiped off their best smiles and put their shaking hands back into their pockets for another two years, but up in Frostburg there's a gentleman who is waging a campaign of quite a different sort.

Ken Babcock, veteran soccer coach at Frostburg State Teachers College, wants to lead the effort to expand and boost his favorite sport in this area.

At present, five high schools in Allegany County —namely, Beall, Bruce, Valley, Mt. Savage and Flintstone — play soccer on the varsity level, as members of the WMI League which closed out its 36th campaign yesterday.

Babcock would like to see Cumberland's high schools add soccer to their fall sports programs, but realizes some of the opposition to such a move comes from football devotees.

There are those who argue that the addition of soccer in schools which play football will hurt the gridiron programs. Ken believes, and we're inclined to agree, that those who take that view, in reality, "don't have a leg to stand on."

As a case in point, he noted that Frostburg State started football last season and this year he (Babcock) came up with one of his strongest soccer teams in history. At the same time, the Bobcat football team has made a good showing for having only been engaged in varsity competition for two seasons.

Bruce High added football this year, and while some of last season's soccer players defected to the gridiron, coach Leonard Ritchie still had a good turnout of players in soccer and came up with a creditable team.

In fact, Ritchie had a number of underclassmen on this year's squad, and he expects big things of the Bulldogs next year. If football did affect the soccer program at the Westernport school, you can be sure it was only temporary.

Babcock supervised the junior high school soccer tournament sponsored by FSTC Tuesday on the college field, and was well pleased with the overall results. Four schools (all of the WMIL members except Flintstone) participated, with Mt. Savage winning the championship.

It is Babcock's desire that every high school in the county enter the tournament next year, including Allegany and Fort Hill. This, he thinks, will be a big step in the direction of getting the Cumberland schools into varsity competition.

Perhaps the biggest point in favor of such a move is the fact that it will give more boys a chance to engage in interscholastic athletics.

Certainly if Beall and Bruce can support both sports, Allegany and Fort Hill with their much larger enrollments can do so without any problem.

Perhaps by the time the next political campaign rolls around, Ken Babcock's personal campaign will have been won.

Although Wayne Harper has missed the Beall High Mountaineers' last four games because of an ankle injury, the big senior halfback continues to be the team's leading ground-gainer.

Harper, regarded by Beall coach Jerry Calhoun as one of the best high school football players in the area, hurt his ankle in the Fort Hill game on September 28, and has been sidelined ever since. He'll have to sit out tomorrow night's important game with Allegany, but may be ready for the Turkey Day clash with LaSalle at Frostburg.

Through the first four games, Wayne carried the ball 73 times for 601 yards — a per-carry average of 8.2. In 80 carries this season, Ralph Spriggs has gained 549 yards for a 6.8 average.

Calhoun is concerned with his team's recent attack of "fumble-itis" (in the last two games they've fumbled nine times), and is going to shake up his lineup tomorrow in an effort to remedy the situation.

Wayne Miller, a 145-pound junior, will get the call at quarterback in place of Morey Linn. Pat Roberts, a freshman, will probably start at fullback instead of Joe James, who has a minor arm injury and will see only limited action. Defensive halfback Carl Smith will be used in the right halfback slot on offense.

Parilli Arrives After Ten Pro Grid Seasons

Babe's Passing Pacing Patriots

BOSTON (UPI)—It's taken ten seasons to do it but one-time Kentucky All-American Babe Parilli is finally proving he's a top drawer professional quarterback.

The passing of the 32-year-old Parilli is the prime reason the Boston Patriots have climbed to the top of the American Football League's Eastern Division. And if he continues his present torrid pace, he could wind up the season as the league's chief aerial artist.

Strangely, Parilli was a part time player for no less than five teams in three leagues, including the Patriots, before coach Mike Holovak shipped out his only other experienced passer and made Parilli his regular.

"With that kind of confidence shown in me—for the first time since I was in college—I had to do well," is Parilli's personal summary.

Right now, the veteran Boston signal caller is the AFL's third ranked passer with 120 completions in 219 attempts for 1,671 yards and 15 touchdowns. His .547 completion rate puts him behind only Len Dawson of Dallas and Frank Tripucka of Denver in current league statistics.

Parilli and the Patriots tangle for the second time with Tripucka and the Broncos at Denver this weekend after Babe led Boston to a 41-16 rout of the Western Division leaders in their first meeting.

Parilli, a Rochester, Pa., native and Green Bay Wisc. resident was the National Football League's second draft choice in 1951 after leading Kentucky to a Sugar Bowl conquest of Oklahoma.

Holovak doesn't think the Patriots were taking a chance by shipping Songin out.

"I'm not surprised by what Babe has been doing for us. He runs the show and he is a heck of a football player. We don't have a single outstanding pass receiver because he mixes his passes and throws well to all of them," Holovak said.

Fight Opponents May Be Related .

NEW YORK (UPI) — Middleweight Mick Leahy of Cork, Ireland, and Irish Joey Archer of New York discovered Wednesday —while Ruth Kelly was playing the harp at P. J. Moriarty's tavern—they may be relatives, but it won't interfere with their fight Saturday night

Stocky, 27-year-old Leahy with the reddish-brown hair—the first Ireland-born fighter to invade the United States in a quarter-century, met rangy, dark-haired, Archer, 24, Wednesday at a boxing lunch in Moriarty's.

Archer told the diners, "my grand parents come from Cork, and—"

Leahy interrupted, "Say — my folks told me we had some relatives named Archer who went to America — way back. Maybe they were your grandparents. Maybe we're related."

When the fighters gazed at one another with a new interest that might be approaching family affection, John F. X. Condon, the Garden's publicity director, stood up and suggested: "Let's wait until after Saturday night—then you boy's can investigate your family trees."

Rec Leagues To Meet Today

Initial Sessions Set At City Hall

Plans for the City Recreation Department's two basketball leagues will be presented at meetings tonight at City Hall. The high school league will meet at 7 p. m., and the men's circuit an hour later.

All representatives of teams desiring to join the leagues this season are urged to have representatives at the initial sessions tonight.

Recreation director C. Eugene Mason said that the number of teams will be limited by the number of courts available for play.

Team fees will be the same as last year — combined entry and forfeit fees of $20 for the high school league, and a $35 entry fee for the men's organization.

Each year the number of teams in both leagues has been increasing, and the past season saw a record list of entries. The high school league had 12 teams, and 17 competed in the men's league.

Jack Nicklaus Named Golf's Rookie Of Year

NORWALK, Conn. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, winner of the U.S. Open golf championship in his first year on the professional tour, Wednesday was named rookie of the year by Golf Digest magazine.

Nicklaus also achieved prominence by beating Arnold Palmer and Gary Player in Akron's Firestone Country Club world series exhibition and in September he captured the Seattle and Portland opens.

The 22-year-old star already has unofficial earnings of $112,132 in 1962, including the $50,000 first prize he won in the World Series exhibition, which is more than double the earnings of any of the five previous freshman standouts.

Nicklaus left the tour after his Portland victory to resume his studies at Ohio State University but left shortly after because he had missed too much time. He recently played in the Australian championships.

End Mike Funk returned to action on a full-time basis Wednesday, and Ken Ambrusko also figured to be in the starting lineup of the defensive unit Saturday. Both sophomores have been sidelined with knee injuries for the past several weeks.

Post Election Trading Shows Surprising Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's first postelection session Wednesday brought a surprising advance which came after some early profit taking was absorbed. Trading was active.

As the market moved irregularly lower in the morning, Wall Streeters said the election results had no apparent effect on stock prices. On the other hand, the list had gone six straight sessions without a loss, rising sharply on five days. So profit taking was in order.

In addition, the list was in what has been regarded as an area of supply — where many holders wanted to unload stocks. There were, indeed, some sizable offerings at the start but these were absorbed handily. As the market withstood the selling without serious damage, more buying was attracted, brokers said.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 5.27 to 615.75—chewing away considerable resistance in the supply area regarded as existing between 610 and 620 in the average.

While analysts said the election results were meaningless early in the day, there was some further searching for reasons as prices improved. In some quarters the opinion was expressed that Democratic gains in some areas might make for greater government spending in 1963 and this could have encouraged some investors.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.3 to 226.7 with industrials up 3.5, rails up 1.7, and utilities up .7.

An estimated $3.3 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the AP average.

Of 1,292 issues traded, 732 advanced and 316 declined. There were nine new highs for the year and four new lows.

Volume was 4.58 million shares compared with 4.32 million Monday.

Prices also were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was one million shares compared with 1.03 million Monday.

Post Election Trading Shows Surprising Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's first postelection session Wednesday brought a surprising advance which came after some early profit taking was absorbed. Trading was active.

As the market moved irregularly lower in the morning, Wall Streeters said the election results had no apparent effect on stock prices. On the other hand, the list had gone six straight sessions without a loss, rising sharply on five days. So profit taking was in order.

In addition, the list was in what has been regarded as an area of supply — where many holders wanted to unload stocks. There were, indeed, some sizable offerings at the start but these were absorbed handily. As the market withstood the selling without serious damage, more buying was attracted, brokers said.

Gradually gathering steam, the list made an uneven but fairly steep advance. Trading was heavy.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 5.27 to 615.75—chewing away considerable resistance in the supply area regarded as existing between 610 and 620 in the average.

While analysts said the election results were meaningless early in the day, there was some further searching for reasons as prices improved. In some quarters the opinion was expressed that Democratic gains in some areas might make for greater government spending in 1963 and this could have encouraged some investors.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.3 to 226.7 with industrials up 3.5, rails up 1.7, and utilities up .7.

An estimated $3.3 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the AP average.

Of 1,292 issues traded, 732 advanced and 316 declined. There were nine new highs for the year and four new lows.

Volume was 4.58 million shares compared with 4.32 million Monday.

Prices also were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was one million shares compared with 1.03 million Monday.

Brazil Hopes To Acquire Cuba's Tobacco Business

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— A government trade official said Wednesday Brazil has high hopes of replacing Cuba as the major tobacco supplier for the United States.

Trade official Joao Paulo do Rio Branco said such exports could mean an added $40 to $50 million yearly income to Brazil. He said Brazil's chances of getting the Cuban business are excellent.

Brazil also expects to substitute Cuba as a source of supply in the U.S. market for lobsters and pineapples, Do Rio Branco said. He estimated U.S. stocks of Cuban tobacco will be exhausted out in about eight or ten months.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, Marian B. Hite, complainant, vs. Irby R. Hite, defendant, No. 26761 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the complainant, Marian B. Hite, from the defendant, Irby R. Hite.

The Bill recites the marriage on June 17, 1949, in Bowling Green, Allegany County, Maryland; that five children were born to them; that the defendant has committed adultery; that the complainant has not lived or cohabited with him since she learned of his adulterous acts nor in any manner condoned the same; that complainant has been a resident of Maryland for more than one year prior to filing Bill of Complaint, and defendant a non-resident of Maryland, present address unknown.

IT IS THEREUPON ORDERED this 16th day of October, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four consecutive weeks before the 17th day of November, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the absent, non-resident defendant, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by attorney, on or before the 18th day of December, 1962, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Brazil Hopes To Acquire Cuba's Tobacco Business

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— A government trade official said Wednesday Brazil has high hopes of replacing Cuba as the major tobacco supplier for the United States.

Trade official Joao Paulo do Rio Branco said such exports could mean an added $40 to $50 million yearly income to Brazil. He said Brazil's chances of getting the Cuban business are excellent.

Brazil also expects to substitute Cuba as a source of supply in the U.S. market for lobsters and pineapples, Do Rio Branco said. He estimated U.S. stocks of Cuban tobacco will be exhausted out in about eight or ten months.

IT IS THEREUPON ORDERED this 16th day of October, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four consecutive weeks before the 17th day of November, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the absent, non-resident defendant, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by attorney, on or before the 18th day of December, 1962, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Area Sewer Authority Is Urged

Commission Asks Interceptors To Existing Plants

The formation of an Allegany County Sewage Authority, armed with full power and responsibility for handling all sewage problems in Allegany County, was strongly recommended last night by the City-County Water-Sewage Commission.

This suggestion was included in a report of the advisory commission to the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Allegany County Commissioners and presented in a public report meeting held in City Hall Auditorium.

More than 150 persons representing the governing bodies of virtually every community in the county heard William A. Douglas, committee chairman, present the report.

Would Advise

In the report which is being submitted to city and county officials and area legislators, the city-county commission set up at the suggestion of Mayor Earl D. Chaney recommended that the two governing bodies set up a Citizens Advisory Commission to evaluate any sewage or water questions which might require joint action.

One of the major suggestions in the report was that the money which would be spent in building several sewage treatment plants now under consideration should be used instead for interceptor sewers to carry sewage from various sections of the county to existing treatment plants in Westernport and Cumberland.

Mr. Douglas stressed that the commission believes there would be a decided saving in operating and administration costs of the county's sewage were handled by the existing plants.

During the meeting, Mr. Douglas cited engineering estimates which indicated that $677,360 could be saved if interceptor sewers were built to the two big plants, instead of providing separate treatment facilities to serve LaVale, Mt. Savage and Frostburg.

Most Approve

The money saved, he said, would help finance the local share of additional interceptors. Reactions to the proposal varied but were generally favorable.

The report presented to the city and county governing bodies was signed by all but one member of the commission — Horace P. Whitworth, Westernport attorney, who deferred his sanction until he had time to study the engineering reports.

Mr. Douglas said he does not believe the Allegany County Sanitary Commission was given enough scope and is working on a district basis, which the commission believes is wrong.

But Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, said the Sanitary Commission has access to the full faith and credit of the county and can do anything it wants as long as the community agrees.

Has Broad Powers

He said it can acquire, purchase or replace any existing system but could not acquire facilities in a community unless the governing body agrees.

Leonard Glass, of Matz, Childs Associates, said the Sanitary Commission has "all the author-

Text Of Water-Sewage Commission Report

Following is the text of the report of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission to the County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council.

In line with authority from the Allegany County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland setting up the City - County Water-Sewage Commission in August of the present year, we wish to tender our first report, copies of which we are forwarding to our State Senator and Delegates for their information, and we are also asking the newspapers to publish the report for the information of all the citizens of Allegany County.

First, we want to stress the fact that this is not and is not intended to be a criticism of any of the acts of past or present governing officers or commissions of Allegany County.

Secondly, we have withheld our report until after the election just completed as we do not feel this report is a matter of party politics in any way, but that it definitely affects both the normal and economic health and well-being of every citizen of Allegany County, regardless of party affiliation.

When this Commission was first set up we had some trouble in arriving at just what our position was and what we were supposed to accomplish as we have no legal authority that we can find; also we have no funds with which to operate or carry on our work. However, we finally decided that this commission could and should accomplish something for the benefit of our entire community just by acting as an advisory body.

As this is both a water and sewage commission, we want to take the time to heartily commend any and all officials who were responsible for the overall study of water resources for the County as contained in the "Report to the Allegany County Commissioners on Water Supplies from the Savage River Reservoir" by Matz, Childs & Associates dated June 1962.

As regards sewage, however, we find we have to take a dim view of the present setup and the authority at present in the hands of the Allegany County Sanitary Commission. We feel that this commission does not have enough authority or scope to complete its work in the proper manner, and of necessity it is forced to go ahead on a piecemeal basis which we are afraid in the final analysis will be too costly and not to the best interests of the County as a whole.

Would Appoint Two Boards

We further feel that the present setup is due largely to the fact that there is not the proper cooperation between the governing bodies of the City of Cumberland and Allegany County and of the other incorporated towns in our County. In view of the above we have come to two main conclusions, and wish to make the following recommendations:

First, we would recommend that the City and County governments set up a "Citizens' Advisory Commission" composed of seven or nine responsible and representative citizens of both the City and the County to weigh and evaluate any questions requiring joint action by both units of our government. This Commission to make an advisory report on any of these questions to said governing bodies before action is taken on same.

Second, we would strongly recommend the formation immediately of an "Allegany County Sewage Authority" with full powers and responsibility to handle all questions pertaining to sewage in the County, including all incorporated cities and towns therein, so that this service can be handled to the best advantage and at the cheapest possible cost to all citizens of the County. This authority would of necessity immediately have a study made of our overall sewage problems, which could be accomplished very quickly as it would largely mean merely the coordination and expanding of studies already completed.

We find the present Cumberland treatment plant is designed for a population of 65,000 people, and we also find the population analysis as furnished the City of Cumberland by Blair and Stein Associates shows the 1960 population of Cumberland as 33,400 which means this treatment plant is working at very little over 50 per cent of capacity. This also means that this plant is sufficiently large to handle all sewage within the Cumberland drainage area for a period of 15 to 20 years unless we would have a very large increase in population due to the location of new industries in this area. This plant is further designed so that it can be enlarged to handle a population of 80,000 at very little additional cost.

We also find at the present time there are plans in process of being completed to establish sewage treatment plants in LaVale, in Cresaptown, and also the Bowling Green area, which, if installed, would mean that we very shortly would have to install other treatment plants in Frostburg, Mount Savage, and possibly the Lonaconing area. Sewage treatment plants, as we all know, are not desirable additions to any neighborhood. Generally, they do not add to the scenic value nor do they help in purifying of air in their immediate vicinity, and we therefore feel that the construction of these numerous plants is going to meet with considerable objection from out citizens. The construction of these various plants would also mean that the Cumberland plant and possibly the Westernport plant would never operate at capacity which would entail considerable loss due to the money invested in these two plants.

Two Plants For Whole County

In view of the above we would very strongly urge that the money that would be invested in these additional treatment plants be invested instead in intercepting sewers to carry all sewage to the two existing plants in the County.

We find that recommendations were originally made by Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer and designer of the Cumberland plant that all sewage within the Cumberland drainage area be treated at that plant. This would mean that we would have an intercepting sewer running up the Potomac Valley, also another intercepting sewer running up Wills Creek, branching off through LaVale, and running up to Eckhart to take care of the entire Braddock Run drainage area. This same collecting sewer would run up the Wills Creek Valley to Corriganville, with a small branch running up to Ellerslie if desired, and the main line running up Jennings Run through Mount Savage to the City of Frostburg. As regards design for Frostburg, we feel the logical thing would be to run this interceptirg sewer through the old C & P railroad tunnel where we feel it could be carried at an elevation to collect a minimum of 80 per cent of Frostburg's sewage, and the balance which would be at a slightly lower level could be easily handled by a pumping station to life the sewage to this interceptor.

Supply Store Broken Into, Money Taken

The breaking and entering and theft of some change from a cash register at Automotive Supply Inc., 253 North Centre Street, and the attempted breaking and entering of two other local business establishments apparently were the work of the same person, city police said yesterday.

Someone broke the window on the north side of the Automotive Supply store and gained entrance, according to police, who said a small amount of change was taken.

An attempt was made to break into the Knox Street Garage where a large lock was broken on the door facing Knox Street. Another door near Hay Street was jimmied, apparently with a large crowbar, they added.

There also was an attempted entry of Goldsmit-Black Inc., 316 Bow Street. Two side windows and a window on the front door were broken, police said.

A partial description of a man who was reported to have been seen in the vicinity of Goldsmit-Black was given to police.

Redistricting May Mean Fight In Legislature

Bill Defeated In Referendum

By HERB THOMPSON

BALTIMORE (AP) — The six Democrats and two Republicans elected to Congress from Maryland may be casting some nervous glances toward Annapolis when they take their seats next January.

The Maryland Legislature has been ordered by voters to tackle again the problem of creating a new 8th congressional district. And this time the redrawing of lines could affect every district in the state and involve a fight over whether Baltimore City's declining population is entitled to retain three seats.

Maryland earned an eighth seat on the basis of its 1960 population, which reflected substantial growth in the suburban counties around Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

The Democratic administration of Gov. J. Millard Tawes, after conferring with the six Democrats then in Congress, decided to create the new seat by splitting Prince Georges and Howard counties away from the populous Southern Maryland 5th District and giving them a congressman.

5th One Of Largest

A population of more than 720,000 makes the district one of the nation's largest.

With a strong shove by the administration, the bill was passed over protests by the smattering of Republicans and some Democratic legislators from urban areas that it did nothing to relieve inequities which also existed between other congressional districts.

The redistricting bill was petitioned to referendum by the Maryland League of Women Voters and the state's voters turned it down Tuesday by a thumping majority of 195,735 to 110,041 with some polling places still to report.

While a decision was pending on the 1961 act, the new seat was filled on an at-large or statewide basis. It was won by Democrat Carlton R. Sickles of Prince Georges over Republican Newton I. Steers of Montgomery. Both big counties are in the Washington suburban area.

The Present Districts

The seven districts to be considered in a new bill, their approximate 1960 populations, and their congressmen are:

1st District, 242,000 residents of nine Eastern Shore counties — Republican Rogers C. B. Morton won over two-term Democrat Thomas F. Johnson after Johnson was indicted in a savings and loan mail fraud case.

2nd District, 620,000 population in Baltimore, Harford and Carroll counties — Democrat Clarence D. Long won over Republican J. Fife Symington. The seat was vacated by Democrat Daniel B. Brewster, elected to the U.S. Senate.

3rd District, 239,000 in Baltimore City — Democrat Edward A. Garmatz was unopposed for his ninth term.

4th District, 289,000 in Baltimore City — Democrat George H. Fallon elected to his 10th straight term.

5th District, 720,000 in six Southern Maryland counties and eight precincts of South Baltimore — Democrat Richard E. Lankford of Annapolis re-elected to fifth straight term.

6th District, 605,000 in five counties of Western and Central Maryland including populous Montgomery on the fringes of Washington

The Seventh District, 359,000 in Baltimore City — represented by Democrat Samuel N. Friedel since it was created in 1952.

Conflicting Interests

If an equitable redistricting is to be attempted, it will involve either taking away a congressman from Baltimore City or adding to the population the three now represent. An attempt to redraft the city's legislative districts also has been promised by leading legislators.

The three biggest counties — Baltimore, Prince Georges and Montgomery — all can be expected to strive for congressional on their own.

An effort also may be made to add to the Eastern Shore's representation, although geographically it is the state's largest.

A variety of plans and considerable fireworks could develop when the problem is reconsidered in the 90-day session starting next January.

J. H. STITCHER

Service Set Saturday For J. H. Stitcher

Requiem mass for John H. (Ditty) Stitcher, 65, a 35-year veteran of the Cumberland Police Department who died yesterday morning in Sacred Heart Hospital, will be celebrated Saturday at 9 a. m. at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Interment will be in Greenmount Cemetery.

Pallbearers, all members of Cumberland Police Department, will be Lt. Raymond R. Johnston, Sgt. John H. Newhouse, William E. Valentine, Fred O. Daum, Presley C. Jenkins and Ernest M. Powell.

Mr. Stitcher, a popular "cop on the corner," retired December 21, 1961 because of ill health. His most recent illness developed on October 27 while he was attending the Maryland-South Carolina football game at College Park. He had been hospitalized since October 30.

Mr. Stitcher was appointed to the force on April 3, 1927 by J. Alfred Reid, police commissioner. In 1942 he formed the Cumberland Police Boys Club and for more than ten years served as a one-man instructor staff for thousands of boys in Cumberland.

The veteran public servant spent his evening hours and days off helping boys in Cumberland. He once commented: "I love all sports, but my greatest thrill from sports is being a 'teacher', not as a participant".

The year after the PBC was organized (1943), he worked with more than 150 Cumberland youngsters, teaching them the fundamentals of football, baseball, basketball, volley ball, tennis and above all, sportsmanship. These classes were held at Central YMCA, Allegany and Fort Hill high schools, and his work drew favorable comment from public school officials of the area.

Officer Stitcher was born June 28, 1897 in Cumberland, a son of the late John and Caroline (Becker) Stitcher.

He was a veteran of World War I and fought in five major battles with the Second Division.

He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, the Holy Name Society of the church and Aerie 245, FO Eagles.

His first wife, Helene (Rice) Stitcher, died in October of 1940.

Survivors include his widow, Evelyn (Hockman) Stitcher; four daughters, Mrs. William B. Nies, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs. George Silberzahn and Mrs. William Deangler, both of Baltimore, and Miss Margaret Ann Stitcher, at home; five sons, Joseph H. Stitcher, Gardena, Calif.; John H. Stitcher Jr., stationed with the Air Force at Patrick Air Base, Fla.; Charles W., Thomas R. and David A. Stitcher, all at home; a brother, P. Frank Stitcher, Cumberland; two sisters, Miss Dorothy Stitcher, and Mrs. Ellen Riley, both of Cumberland, and 16 grandchildren.

The body is at the George Funeral Home where the family will receive friends today and tomorrow from 2 to 4 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

The LaSalle Mothers Club will recite the Rosary at the funeral home today at 8 p. m.

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's will recite the Rosary tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Absentee Votes Swell Margin For Republicans

85 Civilian Ballots Counted

Some 85 civilian absentee ballots were counted late yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors and the only effect of this action was to increase even more the overwhelming Republican victories assured with the unofficial count of the votes Tuesday night.

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman; John Zapf and Victor M. Hebb, members of the Board of Election Supervisors; John R. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, Democratic and Republican registrars, will begin their official canvass of the votes received on voting machines in 45 polling places at 10 o'clock this morning.

Oppose Three Issues

A majority of the civilian absentee voters opposed three of the nine issues in Tuesday's election and tied at 23-all on the Question 7, which was a referendum on changes in the unemployment compensation laws approved by the General Assembly in 1961.

The tally on the civilian absetee votes counted yesterday:

WILL SPEAK HERE — Rev. Dr. Walter M. Michael, above, former pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, will speak at the church at the Sunday morning worship service in connection with the start of a weeklong 180th anniversary celebration. South Approach To Thruway Is Started Here

The $448,488.20 contract was awarded by the State Roads Commission to the local firm late in September.

The contract calls for grading, draining and surfacing with bituminous concrete the Thruway approach from Third Street northerly to Thomas and Wineow streets.

It also includes the relocation of Cresap Street and the extension of West First Street.

Total mileage in the contract is seven-tenths of a mile, including dual lanes for .486 mile and single lane for .210 mile.

John D. Bushby, District 6 engineer, said the company made an official start on the project Tuesday.

Field offices for the SRC and the contractor have been placed on Wineow Street and construction shanties are being built.

Mr. Bushby said buildings on the right of way are being removed and that utilities, including power, telephone, gas, water and sewage have started to relocate lines.

78 Donate Blood At Lonaconing

A total of 78 pints of blood was collected yesterday when the mobile unit from Johnstown Regional Red Cross Blood Center visited the VFW Home in Lonaconing. This was seven pints short of the quota set for the visit.

Rev. Leslee E. Schwindt, blood chairman, reported 50 donors were scheduled and 38 kept their appointments. There were 50 walk-in donors and eight donors were rejected. The 78-pint total included 13 first-time donors and 19 replacements.

Five persons became one gallon donors. They are Raymond Goodwin, Mrs. James Bogey, Miss Una Mae Vinci of Nikep, Mayor Harold W. Moyer and Daniel Nightengale.

Mrs. Dolly Gardner joined the two-gallon club.

Dr. Mikio Kato and Dr. Leslie R. Miles Jr. were the physicians on duty at the blood center.

Rev. Mr. Schwindt served in his capacity as blood chairman for Lonaconing for the last time before moving to Thurmont. He expressed his appreciation to the community, doctors, nurses and donors, for their efforts in behalf of the blood program.

The bloodmobile will be at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company today and tomorrow, where the quota is 300 pints for the two-day visit.

Walsh Wishes Hughes Success

Del. William Walsh, Democratic candidate for State Senate, yesterday issued a statement congratulating his opponent and thanking those who supported him.

He said:

"I wish to congratulate my opponent, George R. Hughes, Jr., upon his election as state senator for Allegany County in yesterday's election, and to wish him every success in the performance of the duties of that important office.

"I also wish to thank all those who supported me, particularly the many friends who actively worked for me, and I wish to assure them that I will always deeply appreciate their interest and help."

Md. Assembly Leadership Contests Seen

Plenty Of Rivals For Top Offices

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP(— Democrats victorious in retaining their somewhat reduced majorities in the Maryland legislature continued to politic Wednesday over who will lead them in Annapolis.

The behind-scenes maneuvering has been going on for months, but will step up, now that Tuesday's election has cleared out probables and left only definite starters.

The top legislative seats of Senate President and House Speaker both will be up for grabs when the new General Asesmbly convenes in January for three months.

Perry O. Wilkinson, the Speaker, lost in the Democratic May primary for congressman-at-large and George W. Della, the president, was defeated for renomination.

Boone Vs. White?

A. Gordon Boone, the veteran House floor leader from Baltimore County, has been rated privately as a logical leading contender for Speaker.

But E. Homer White Jr., an equally longtime member from Wicomico, has been industriously courting votes in event the Democratic caucus is given a free hand in choosing a speaker.

White was substitute speaker during the last session. Normally, the governor, in this case Democrat J. Millard Tawes, dictates the legislative leadership.

If Boone accedes to the speakership, he will leave a large void not only as a floor leader but the accompanying job of heading the ways and means committee.

At one time, Dale Hess of Harford was described as being groomed to succeed Boone. But advance grumbling from other veteran Democrats in the House led to talk of a change in the organization, splitting the posts of floor leader and finance chairman.

Hess was mentioned as floor leader and the name of Marvin Mandel, chairman of the Baltimore city delegation, as ways and means chairman. Mandel, although conceded to be able, had been considered hands off for a top spot in the past because he had been associated with Jack Pollack.

Declares Independence

But Mandel has issued a declaration of independence from the Baltimore political leader.

On the Senate side, Frederick C. Malkus Jr. of Dorchester, James A. Pine of Baltimore County, William S. James of Harford and Winship Wheatley of Prince Georges are considered the prime candidates for leadership.

Since the political policy is to try to share the wealth geographically, the aspirations of Pine and Boone could depend on the other since they come from the same county and also between Malkus and White who are from the Eastern Shore.

Malkus, a senator since 1951 and two-term chairman of the judiciary committee, definitely plans to lay a strong claim to the presidency based on seniority.

"They're going to have to gom over me," he promises. If they do, Malkus said that while he will not be an obstructionist, he will feel free to offer a legislative program of his own beyond that sought by the administration.

Pine served during the 1962 legislative session as majority floor leader. James is considered an expert in finances and Wheatley in law.

Deadlock Possible

Organization of the Senate could prove difficult if agreement is not reached beforehand in the office of Gov. Tawes. There will be no more than 22 Democratic senators and if a deadlock develops in caucus the Republicans could have a field day.

During the past four years, there were only three GOP senators and the governor didn't have to worry about them. It could be different on future close roll call votes if Democrats are split.

In addition to retaining senators from Allegany, Calvert and Somerset counties, the Republicans took seats in Anne Arundel, Frederick, Garrett and Montgomery.

By Thursday, they might have regained another in Carroll. Edward O. Weant, the Democratic incumbent, led by only 31 votes, 6,731 to 6,700, over Joseph H. Hahn Jr. in Tuesday's unofficial count.

Although there will be 117 Democratic delegates, two more than during the past four years, their majority will be less. The number of GOP delegates jumped from seven to 25 as the House was enlarged to 142 members in a reapportionment move.

Allegany and Garrett went solid Republican in the House. Their biggest new gains were three of four in Harford and six of 10 in Montgomery.

Gov. Tawes, Reviewing Campaign, Says Press Encourages Reckless Charges

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP)—J. Millard Tawes, newly re-elected Democratic governor of Maryland, complained Wednesday that newspapers and other communications media encourage reckless charges by political candidates against an incumbent.

"Editorial writers with great solemnity proclaim the need to keep campaigns on a high plane—to confine the discussions to the issues," Tawes said.

"And yet, just make a speech or issue a statement on education, public health, conservation, or prison reform and see what is done with it in the news columns.

"It is either ignored entirely or buried among the advertising on an obscure, inside page."

Tawes spoke at a luncheon of the Advertising Club of Baltimore about 12 hours after he won a second four-year term over Republican Frank Small Jr.

Small had summed up his various criticism of the Tawes administration during the campaign to one basic issue: "Do the citizens of Maryland want to restore honesty and integrity to their state government or do they want four more years of the wheeling and dealings and boss control . . . "

Tawes for the most part had refused to reply and repeatedly in his statements had talked about what he considered accomplishments.

He told the Advertising Club a person in office must stand on his record regardless of what it is.

"The person without a record and without responsibility is left free to attack and criticize, and if he is of that nature and inclination to attack and criticize recklessly, without too much fear of being called to acount for his statements and actions.

"I merely point out that the zeal on the part of the news media to create interest for their customers makes it difficult for political candidates to conduct their campaigns on a high plane the people have a right to expect of them."

Tawes, who had been the object of a bitter Democratic primary attack also in May, said of his own campaigns while expressing an understanding of news attitude:

"There is no combat, no human interest, no novelty in talking about building parks or conserving nat-

Area Sewer Authority Is Urged

Commission Asks Interceptors To Existing Plants

The formation of an Allegany County Sewage Authority, armed with full power and responsibility for handling all sewage problems in Allegany County, was strongly recommended last night by the City-County Water-Sewage Commission.

This suggestion was included in a report of the advisory commission to the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Allegany County Commissioners and presented in a public report meeting held in City Hall Auditorium.

More than 150 persons representing the governing bodies of virtually every community in the county heard William A. Douglas, committee chairman, present the report.

Would Advise

In the report which is being submitted to city and county officials and area legislators, the city-county commission set up at the suggestion of Mayor Earl D. Chaney recommended that the two governing bodies set up a Citizens Advisory Commission to evaluate any sewage or water questions which might require joint action.

One of the major suggestions in the report was that the money which would be spent in building several sewage treatment plants now under consideration should be used instead for interceptor sewers to carry sewage from various sections of the county to existing treatment plants in Westernport and Cumberland.

Mr. Douglas stressed that the commission believes there would be a decided saving in operating and administration costs of the county's sewage were handled by the existing plants.

During the meeting, Mr. Douglas cited engineering estimates which indicated that $677,360 could be saved if interceptor sewers were built to the two big plants, instead of providing separate treatment facilities to serve LaVale, Mt. Savage and Frostburg.

Most Approve

The money saved, he said, would help finance the local share of additional interceptors. Reactions to the proposal varied but were generally favorable.

The report presented to the city and county governing bodies was signed by all but one member of the commission — Horace P. Whitworth, Westernport attorney, who deferred his sanction until he had time to study the engineering reports.

Mr. Douglas said he does not believe the Allegany County Sanitary Commission was given enough scope and is working on a district basis, which the commission believes is wrong.

But Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, said the Sanitary Commission has access to the full faith and credit of the county and can do anything it wants as long as the community agrees.

Has Broad Powers

He said it can acquire, purchase or replace any existing system but could not acquire facilities in a community unless the governing body agrees.

Leonard Glass, of Matz, Childs Associates, said the Sanitary Commission has "all the author-

Text Of Water-Sewage Commission Report

Following is the text of the report of the City-County Water-Sewage Commission to the County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council.

In line with authority from the Allegany County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland setting up the City-County Water-Sewage Commission in August of the present year, we wish to tender our first report, copies of which we are forwarding to our State Senator and Delegates for their information, and we are also asking the newspapers to publish the report for the information of all the citizens of Allegany County.

First, we want to stress the fact that this is not and is not intended to be a criticism of any of the acts of past or present governing officers or commissions of Allegany County.

Secondly, we have withheld our report until after the election just completed as we do not feel this report is a matter of party politics in any way, but that it definitely affects both the normal and economic health and well-being of every citizen of Allegany County, regardless of party affiliation.

When this Commission was first set up we had some trouble in arriving at just what our position was and what we were supposed to accomplish as we have no legal authority that we can find; also we have no funds with which to operate or carry on our work. However, we finally decided that this commission could and should accomplish something for the benefit of our entire community just by acting as an advisory body.

As this is both a water and sewage commission, we want to take the time to heartily commend any and all officials who were responsible for the overall study of water resources for the County as contained in the "Report to the Allegany County Commissioners on Water Supplies from the Savage River Reservoir" by Matz, Childs & Associates dated June 1962.

As regards sewage, however, we find we have to take a dim view of the present setup and the authority at present in the hands of the Allegany County Sanitary Commission. We feel that this commission does not have enough authority or scope to complete its work in the proper manner, and of necessity it is forced to go ahead on a piecemeal basis which we are afraid in the final analysis will be too costly and not to the best interests of the County as a whole.

Would Appoint Two Boards

We further feel that the present setup is due largely to the fact that there is not the proper cooperation between the governing bodies of the City of Cumberland and Allegany County and of the other incorporated towns in our County. In view of the above we have come to two main conclusions, and wish to make the following recommendations:

First, we would recommend that the City and County governments set up a "Citizens' Advisory Commission" composed of seven or nine responsible and representative citizens of both the City and the County to weigh and evaluate any questions requiring joint action by both units of our government. This Commission to make an advisory report on any of these questions to said governing bodies before action is taken on same.

Second, we would strongly recommend the formation immediately of an "Allegany County Sewage Authority" with full powers and responsibility to handle all questions pertaining to sewage in the County, including all incorporated cities and towns therein, so that this service can be handled to the best advantage and at the cheapest possible cost to all citizens of the County. This authority would of necessity immediately have a study made of our overall sewage problems, which could be accomplished very quickly as it would largely mean merely the coordination and expanding of studies already completed.

We find the present Cumberland treatment plant is designed for a population of 65,000 people, and we also find the population analysis as furnished the City of Cumberland by Blair and Stein Associates shows the 1960 population of Cumberland as 33,400 which means this treatment plant is working at very little over 50 per cent of capacity. This also means that this plant is sufficiently large to handle all sewage within the Cumberland drainage area for a period of 15 to 20 years unless we would have a very large increase in population due to the location of new industries in this area. This plant is further designed so that it can be enlarged to handle a population of 80,000 at very little additional cost.

We also find at the present time there are plans in process of being completed to establish sewage treatment plants in LaVale, in Cresaptown, and also the Bowling Green area, which, if installed, would mean that we very shortly would have to install other treatment plants in Frostburg, Mount Savage, and possibly the Lonaconing area. Sewage treatment plants, as we all know, are not desirable additions to any neighborhood. Generally, they do not add to the scenic value nor do they help in purifying of air in their immediate vicinity, and we therefore feel that the construction of these numerous plants is going to meet with considerable objection from out citizens. The construction of these various plants would also mean that the Cumberland plant and possibly the Westernport plant would never operate at capacity which would entail considerable loss due to the money invested in these two plants.

Two Plants For Whole County

In view of the above we would very strongly urge that the money that would be invested in these additional treatment plants be invested instead in intercepting sewers to carry all sewage to the two existing plants in the County.

We find that recommendations were originally made by Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer and designer of the Cumberland plant that all sewage within the Cumberland drainage area be treated at that plant. This would mean that we would have an intercepting sewer running up the Potomac Valley, also another intercepting sewer running up Wills Creek, branching off through LaVale, and running up to Eckhart to take care of the entire Braddock Run drainage area. This same collecting sewer would run up the Wills Creek Valley to Corriganville, with a small branch running up to Ellerslie if desired, and the main line running up Jennings Run through Mount Savage to the City of Frostburg. As regards design for Frostburg, we feel the logical thing would be to run this interceptirg sewer through the old C & P railroad tunnel where we feel it could be carried at an elevation to collect a minimum of 80 per cent of Frostburg's sewage, and the balance which would be at a slightly lower level could be easily handled by a pumping station to life the sewage to this interceptor.

Supply Store Broken Into, Money Taken

The breaking and entering and theft of some change from a cash register at Automotive Supply Inc., 253 North Centre Street, and the attempted breaking and entering of two other local business establishments apparently were the work of the same person, city police said yesterday.

Someone broke the window on the north side of the Automotive Supply store and gained entrance, according to police, who said a small amount of change was taken.

An attempt was made to break into the Knox Street Garage where a large lock was broken on the door facing Knox Street. Another door near Hay Street was jimmied, apparently with a large crowbar, they added.

There also was an attempted entry of Goldsmit-Black Inc., 316 Bow Street. Two side windows and a window on the front door were broken, police said.

A partial description of a man who was reported to have been seen in the vicinity of Goldsmit-Black was given to police.

Redistricting May Mean Fight In Legislature

Bill Defeated In Referendum

By HERB THOMPSON

BALTIMORE (AP) — The six Democrats and two Republicans elected to Congress from Maryland may be casting some nervous glances toward Annapolis when they take their seats next January.

The Maryland Legislature has been ordered by voters to tackle again the problem of creating a new 8th congressional district. And this time the redrawing of lines could affect every district in the state and involve a fight over whether Baltimore City's declining population is entitled to retain three seats.

Maryland earned an eighth seat on the basis of its 1960 population, which reflected substantial growth in the suburban counties around Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

The Democratic administration of Gov. J. Millard Tawes, after conferring with the six Democrats then in Congress, decided to create the new seat by splitting Prince Georges and Howard counties away from the populous Southern Maryland 5th District and giving them a congressman.

5th One Of Largest

A population of more than 720,000 makes the district one of the nation's largest.

With a strong shove by the administration, the bill was passed over protests by the smattering of Republicans and some Democratic legislators from urban areas that it did nothing to relieve inequities which also existed between other congressional districts.

The redistricting bill was petitioned to referendum by the Maryland League of Women Voters and the state's voters turned it down Tuesday by a thumping majority of 195,735 to 110,041 with some polling places still to report.

While a decision was pending on the 1961 act, the new seat was filled on an at-large or statewide basis. It was won by Democrat Carlton R. Sickles of Prince Georges over Republican Newton I. Steers of Montgomery. Both big counties are in the Washington suburban area.

The Present Districts

The seven districts to be considered in a new bill, their approximate 1960 populations, and their congressmen are:

1st District, 242,000 residents of nine Eastern Shore counties — Republican Rogers C. B. Morton won over two-term Democrat Thomas F. Johnson after Johnson was indicted in a savings and loan mail fraud case.

2nd District, 620,000 population in Baltimore, Harford and Carroll counties — Democrat Clarence D. Long won over Republican J. Fife Symington. The seat was vacated by Democrat Daniel B. Brewster, elected to the U.S. Senate.

3rd District, 239,000 in Baltimore City — Democrat Edward A. Garmatz was unopposed for his ninth term.

4th District, 289,000 in Baltimore City — Democrat George H. Fallon elected to his 10th straight term.

5th District, 720,000 in six Southern Maryland counties and eight precincts of South Baltimore — Democrat Richard E. Lankford of Annapolis re-elected to fifth straight term.

6th District, 605,000 in five counties of Western and Central Maryland including populous Montgomery on the fringes of Washington

The Seventh District, 359,000 in Baltimore City — represented by Democrat Samuel N. Friedel since it was created in 1952.

Conflicting Interests

If an equitable redistricting is to be attempted, it will involve either taking away a congressman from Baltimore City or adding to the population the three now represent. An attempt to redraft the city's legislative districts also has been promised by leading legislators.

The three biggest counties — Baltimore, Prince Georges and Montgomery — all can be expected to strive for congressional on their own.

An effort also may be made to add to the Eastern Shore's representation, although geographically it is the state's largest.

A variety of plans and considerable fireworks could develop when the problem is reconsidered in the 90-day session starting next January.

J. H. STITCHER

Service Set Saturday For J. H. Stitcher

Requiem mass for John H. (Ditty) Stitcher, 65, a 35-year veteran of the Cumberland Police Department who died yesterday morning in Sacred Heart Hospital, will be celebrated Saturday at 9 a. m. at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Interment will be in Greenmount Cemetery.

Pallbearers, all members of Cumberland Police Department, will be Lt. Raymond R. Johnston, Sgt. John H. Newhouse, William E. Valentine, Fred O. Daum, Presley C. Jenkins and Ernest M. Powell.

Mr. Stitcher, a popular "cop on the corner," retired December 21, 1961 because of ill health. His most recent illness developed on October 27 while he was attending the Maryland-South Carolina football game at College Park. He had been hospitalized since October 30.

Mr. Stitcher was appointed to the force on April 3, 1927 by J. Alfred Reid, police commissioner. In 1942 he formed the Cumberland Police Boys Club and for more than ten years served as a one-man instructor staff for thousands of boys in Cumberland.

The veteran public servant spent his evening hours and days off helping boys in Cumberland. He once commented: "I love all sports, but my greatest thrill from sports is being a 'teacher', not as a participant".

The year after the PBC was organized (1943), he worked with more than 150 Cumberland youngsters, teaching them the fundamentals of football, baseball, basketball, volley ball, tennis and above all, sportsmanship. These classes were held at Central YMCA, Allegany and Fort Hill high schools, and his work drew favorable comment from public school officials of the area.

Officer Stitcher was born June 28, 1897 in Cumberland, a son of the late John and Caroline (Becker) Stitcher.

He was a veteran of World War I and fought in five major battles with the Second Division.

He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, the Holy Name Society of the church and Aerie 245, FO Eagles.

His first wife, Helene (Rice) Stitcher, died in October of 1940.

Survivors include his widow, Evelyn (Hockman) Stitcher; four daughters, Mrs. William B. Nies, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs. George Silberzahn and Mrs. William Deangler, both of Baltimore, and Miss Margaret Ann Stitcher, at home; five sons, Joseph H. Stitcher, Gardena, Calif.; John H. Stitcher Jr., stationed with the Air Force at Patrick Air Base, Fla.; Charles W., Thomas R. and David A. Stitcher, all at home; a brother, P. Frank Stitcher, Cumberland; two sisters, Miss Dorothy Stitcher, and Mrs. Ellen Riley, both of Cumberland, and 16 grandchildren.

The body is at the George Funeral Home where the family will receive friends today and tomorrow from 2 to 4 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

The LaSalle Mothers Club will recite the Rosary at the funeral home today at 8 p. m.

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's will recite the Rosary tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Absentee Votes Swell Margin For Republicans

85 Civilian Ballots Counted

Some 85 civilian absentee ballots were counted late yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors and the only effect of this action was to increase even more the overwhelming Republican victories assured with the unofficial count of the votes Tuesday night.

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman; John Zapf and Victor M. Hebb, members of the Board of Election Supervisors; John R. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, Democratic and Republican registrars, will begin their official canvass of the votes received on voting machines in 45 polling places at 10 o'clock this morning.

Oppose Three Issues

A majority of the civilian absentee voters opposed three of the nine issues in Tuesday's election and tied at 23-all on the Question 7, which was a referendum on changes in the unemployment compensation laws approved by the General Assembly in 1961.

The tally on the civilian absetee votes counted yesterday:

South Approach To Thruway Is Started Here

The Cumberland Contracting Company this week began construction on part of the south approach of the Cumberland Thruway.

The $448,488.20 contract was awarded by the State Roads Commission to the local firm late in September.

The contract calls for grading, draining and surfacing with bituminous concrete the Thruway approach from Third Street northerly to Thomas and Wineow streets.

It also includes the relocation of Cresap Street and the extension of West First Street.

Total mileage in the contract is seven-tenths of a mile, including dual lanes for .486 mile and single lane for .210 mile.

John D. Bushby, District 6 engineer, said the company made an official start on the project Tuesday.

Field offices for the SRC and the contractor have been placed on Wineow Street and construction shanties are being built.

Mr. Bushby said buildings on the right of way are being removed and that utilities, including power, telephone, gas, water and sewage have started to relocate lines.

78 Donate Blood At Lonaconing

A total of 78 pints of blood was collected yesterday when the mobile unit from Johnstown Regional Red Cross Blood Center visited the VFW Home in Lonaconing. This was seven pints short of the quota set for the visit.

Rev. Leslee E. Schwindt, blood chairman, reported 50 donors were scheduled and 38 kept their appointments. There were 50 walk-in donors and eight donors were rejected. The 78-pint total included 13 first-time donors and 19 replacements.

Five persons became one gallon donors. They are Raymond Goodwin, Mrs. James Bogey, Miss Una Mae Vinci of Nikep, Mayor Harold W. Moyer and Daniel Nightengale.

Mrs. Dolly Gardner joined the two-gallon club.

Dr. Mikio Kato and Dr. Leslie R. Miles Jr. were the physicians on duty at the blood center.

Rev. Mr. Schwindt served in his capacity as blood chairman for Lonaconing for the last time before moving to Thurmont. He expressed his appreciation to the community, doctors, nurses and donors, for their efforts in behalf of the blood program.

The bloodmobile will be at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company today and tomorrow, where the quota is 300 pints for the two-day visit.

Walsh Wishes Hughes Success

Del. William Walsh, Democratic candidate for State Senate, yesterday issued a statement congratulating his opponent and thanking those who supported him.

He said:

"I wish to congratulate my opponent, George R. Hughes, Jr., upon his election as state senator for Allegany County in yesterday's election, and to wish him every success in the performance of the duties of that important office.

"I also wish to thank all those who supported me, particularly the many friends who actively worked for me, and I wish to assure them that I will always deeply appreciate their interest and help."

Md. Assembly Leadership Contests Seen

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP(— Democrats victorious in retaining their somewhat reduced majorities in the Maryland legislature continued to politic Wednesday over who will lead them in Annapolis.

The behind-scenes maneuvering has been going on for months, but will step up, now that Tuesday's election has cleared out probables and left only definite starters.

The top legislative seats of Senate President and House Speaker both will be up for grabs when the new General Asesmbly convenes in January for three months.

Perry O. Wilkinson, the Speaker, lost in the Democratic May primary for congressman-at-large and George W. Della, the president, was defeated for renomination.

This opened up a wholesale reshuffling in the key posts, three on each side as presiding officer, floor leader and judiciary chairman.

Boone Vs. White?

A. Gordon Boone, the veteran House floor leader from Baltimore County, has been rated privately as a logical leading contender for Speaker.

But E. Homer White Jr., an equally longtime member from Wicomico, has been industriously courting votes in event the Democratic caucus is given a free hand in choosing a speaker.

White was substitute speaker during the last session. Normally, the governor, in this case Democrat J. Millard Tawes, dictates the legislative leadership.

If Boone accedes to the speakership, he will leave a large void not only as a floor leader but the accompanying job of heading the ways and means committee.

At one time, Dale Hess of Harford was described as being groomed to succeed Boone. But advance grumbling from other veteran Democrats in the House led to talk of a change in the organization, splitting the posts of floor leader and finance chairman.

Hess was mentioned as floor leader and the name of Marvin Mandel, chairman of the Baltimore city delegation, as ways and means chairman. Mandel, although conceded to be able, had been considered hands off for a top spot in the past because he had been associated with Jack Pollack.

Declares Independence

But Mandel has issued a declaration of independence from the Baltimore political leader.

On the Senate side, Frederick C. Malkus Jr. of Dorchester, James A. Pine of Baltimore County, William S. James of Harford and Winship Wheatley of Prince Georges are considered the prime candidates for leadership.

Since the political policy is to try to share the wealth geographically, the aspirations of Pine and Boone could depend on the other since they come from the same county and also between Malkus and White who are from the Eastern Shore.

Malkus, a senator since 1951 and two-term chairman of the judiciary committee, definitely plans to lay a strong claim to the presidency based on seniority.

"They're going to have to gom over me," he promises. If they do, Malkus said that while he will not be an obstructionist, he will feel free to offer a legislative program of his own beyond that sought by the administration.

Pine served during the 1962 legislative session as majority floor leader. James is considered an expert in finances and Wheatley in law.

Deadlock Possible

Organization of the Senate could prove difficult if agreement is not reached beforehand in the office of Gov. Tawes. There will be no more than 22 Democratic senators and if a deadlock develops in caucus the Republicans could have a field day.

During the past four years, there were only three GOP senators and the governor didn't have to worry about them. It could be different on future close roll call votes if Democrats are split.

In addition to retaining senators from Allegany, Calvert and Somerset counties, the Republicans took seats in Anne Arundel, Frederick, Garrett and Montgomery.

By Thursday, they might have regained another in Carroll. Edward O. Weant, the Democratic incumbent, led by only 31 votes, 6,731 to 6,700, over Joseph H. Hahn Jr. in Tuesday's unofficial count.

Although there will be 117 Democratic delegates, two more than during the past four years, their majority will be less. The number of GOP delegates jumped from seven to 25 as the House was enlarged to 142 members in a reapportionment move.

Allegany and Garrett went solid Republican in the House. Their biggest new gains were three of four in Harford and six of 10 in Montgomery.

Gov. Tawes, Reviewing Campaign, Says Press Encourages Reckless Charges

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP)—J. Millard Tawes, newly re-elected Democratic governor of Maryland, complained Wednesday that newspapers and other communications media encourage reckless charges by political candidates against an incumbent.

"Editorial writers with great solemnity proclaim the need to keep campaigns on a high plane—to confine the discussions to the issues," Tawes said.

"And yet, just make a speech or issue a statement on education, public health, conservation, or prison reform and see what is done with it in the news columns.

"It is either ignored entirely or buried among the advertising on an obscure, inside page."

Tawes spoke at a luncheon of the Advertising Club of Baltimore about 12 hours after he won a second four-year term over Republican Frank Small Jr.

Small had summed up his various criticism of the Tawes administration during the campaign to one basic issue: "Do the citizens of Maryland want to restore honesty and integrity to their state government or do they want four more years of the wheeling and dealings and boss control . . . "

Tawes for the most part had refused to reply and repeatedly in his statements had talked about what he considered accomplishments.

He told the Advertising Club a person in office must stand on his record regardless of what it is.

"The person without a record and without responsibility is left free to attack and criticize, and if he is of that nature and inclination to attack and criticize recklessly, without too much fear of being called to acount for his statements and actions.

"I merely point out that the zeal on the part of the news media to create interest for their customers makes it difficult for political candidates to conduct their campaigns on a high plane the people have a right to expect of them."

Tawes, who had been the object of a bitter Democratic primary attack also in May, said of his own campaigns while expressing an understanding of news attitude:

"There is no combat, no human interest, no novelty in talking about building parks or conserving nat-
